$500,000 PLAN TO ADVERTISE CITY OFFERED

CONVENTIONS SOUGHT; ALSO NEW BUSINESS

Committee Will Report on Project's Merits in Three Weeks.

FIRMS PLEDGE FUNDS IF MOVE IS FAVORED

Case Declares Capital Fails to Exploit Its Charm or Background.

Plans for organizing a promotional bureau as an adjunct to the Washington Board of Trade for the purpose of advertising Washington and the surrounding country and attracting tourists, conventions and new business to the National Capital will be studied by a committee of seven representative citizens, it was decided yesterday afternoon at a meeting of leading business men, bankers and railroad men at the Board of Trade headquarters.

A tentative plan for the bureau was presented by A. C. Case, vice president and general manager of the Palais Royal. W. W. Everett, vice president of Woodward & Lothrop, suggested the appointment of a committee. The personnel of the committee is to be announced by George Plitt, president of the Board of Trade. The committee will report to the board of directors of the Board of Trade three weeks after the day of its appointment.

Fund of $300,000 Needed.

A fund of at least a half million dollars will be necessary to "remap" Washington, Mr. Case told the group. He added that the establishment he represents will contribute a substantial sum if plans are agreed upon for the bureau. Several others voiced a similar promise. The railroad men said that they were virtually certain their railroads would back the bureau. They explained they were not in a position to give a definite pledge as yet.

"The important thing," Mr. Case pointed out, "is to bring thousands of visitors to our city. The first step toward increasing the growth of a city is to get people to that city so that they may see what it contains and of what it consists. It has been demonstrated that a given number of sight-seers to a city will produce a given number of permanent residents.

"The business interests of this community have within the District of Columbia and within driving distance of the Capitol Building, an absolutely incomparable wealth of material rich in historic value and of interest to every man, woman and child in the United States, if properly brought to their attention.

Government Can Not Do It.

"The Government can not be expected to develop our commercial possibilities for us. The business interests must do that for themselves by modern promotional methods, and effective publicity.

"Our failure to properly draw the attention of the general public to the attractions of our community, is undoubtedly the reason that many other cities and communities in the United States have grown in population—in business and in wealth—a considerably higher percentage than Washington has grown.

Mr. Case drew particular attention to Los Angeles. He pointed out that climatic conditions in Washington are superior to those in most places, and added that the historical attractions in the surrounding country are assets that no other place in the country can equal.

Mr. Everett suggested that bureau function for various other "committees and councils" recently formed to promote business. This was approved by E. J. Murphy, past president of the Board of Trade. Mr. Everett observed that until the present time a convention bureau in Washington has been financed mainly by the hotel men.

Hight Urges Cooperation.

Frank S. Hight, president of the Willard Hotel Co., declared that the hotel men here have been hampered in operating the bureau by having the reputation of being selfish and attracting tourists and conventions for their own profit. Denying that this was so, Mr. Hight declared that a bureau of this kind can be made successful only through cooperation between the hotel men and the business men of the community.

Dan Moorman, general passenger agent of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, pointed out that $1,500,000 was left in Washington by visitors last year. Other railroad representatives who spoke included Allan Smith, assistant general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad; S. Bur-

Calvin Coolidge

Says: The report of proposed cooperation between the two parties in the Senate to pass appropriation bills at the coming short session of the Congress and prevent the necessity for a special session for that purpose, is welcome and encouraging news. The responsible elements in the Senate intend to conduct the Nation's business and not permit that function to be assumed by irresponsible minorities. A special session with no regular business greatly agitates the country, as the past months have shown. The amount of money expended would be large. The people want no agitation and no increased taxes.

When a new President is coming in who certainly will have a special session, delay in appropriations might be warranted. But to attempt to force a special session by congressional action is close to an usurpation of power. It encroaches upon the executive authority which is entrusted with calling special sessions. A disposition to transact the business of the Nation speedily and leave the President responsible under the Constitution for any further action will have wholesome effect on the country. It represents political sanity and will increase public confidence in the Senate.

DO-X, 24 ABOARD, DESCENDS AT SEA

FLIGHT CONTINUES TODAY

Bordeaux, France, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—The largest flying boat in the world, the German DO-X, bobbed tonight on a calm sea between the fortified island of Re and the city of La Rochelle, interrupted after a trying day in which it had left England for Bordeaux on another leg of its projected flight to the United States.

Late tonight, the huge ship reached this point and threw out its anchor after traveling on the surface along the coastline for 50 miles or more. There it awaited, comfortably, the coming of daylight.

As the DO-X made the French coast en route from England this afternoon, some of its 12 engines began to work badly and it lost speed, requiring two hours to fly from Cherbourg to Ushant and 20 minutes from there to Douarranenez. The DO-X held its course, however, until it reached Les Barges, a small coastal point near Sables D'Olonne. By that time, it is understood, four motors were giving trouble.

It was 5:50 p. m., night was falling fast and the dense sea mist, dispelled by the bright winter sun early this morning, again was creeping over the waters.

At its low speed, the DO-X could not hope to reach Bordeaux until late at night. The flight would have been attended by a certain risk in the darkness and fog. So the captain decided to taxi along the coast for a while, since the ship could make a respectable speed on the surface even if it could not do so well in the air with crippled motors, and then ride out the night at anchor somewhere.

In addition, the French authorities had arranged for a stop for gasoline and oil for refueling the DO-X at the small port of St. Nazaire de Charente, 4 miles west of Rochefort. It was decided to head for that point. Confusing this little town with the great port of St. Nazaire, the mouth of the Loire farther north, was responsible for a report that the DO-X had landed at St. Nazaire.

Hence with all these considerations, the big plane came down to the surface like a seagull just off Les Barges and taxied gracefully over the calm sea.

Thereafter it skimmed down the coast, the drone of its engines heard by people ashore, but her lights invisible through the mist and darkness, to a point between the Island of Re and the City of La Rochelle.

There, in the shelter of the island, where French convicts spend their last night in France before being

ARMY-NAVY GAME SCHEDULED DEC. 13

$500,000 "GATE" IS SEEN

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH
(Sports Editor of The Post).

The Army and Navy have surrendered to popular demand and unemployment distress, have laid down their objections and declared a truce in the rupture of athletic relations so that charity may benefit from a football game agreed to yesterday, with December 13 as the date and New York as the scene.

Negotiations for the game, which is expected to yield more than $500,000 for the unemployed, were crowned with success when Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, commandant at West Point, announced that he had accepted Navy's challenge to play, with both academies forgetting for the time being their eligibility differences which had caused the break in relations in 1927.

Gen. Smith's acceptance left only the matter of details for the staging of the contest to be settled, and to that end Maj. Philip Fleming, graduate manager of athletics at Army, left West Point by airplane to confer with Lieut. Comdr. Fred C. Reinecke, who holds a similar post at Annapolis, but he was forced down in Philadelphia by the murky weather and the conference will be held today at Baltimore, where Navy meets Southern Methodist.

Yankee Stadium has been suggested as the most logical site for the game, with its seating capacity of 80,000, but the Polo Grounds is also a possibility. Five dollars a seat is being considered as the admission price, but there is also a probability that the tickets will be so scaled as to command much more for the best seats. An informal proposal has been made that box seats be sold at $1,000 each.

The scheduling of the game was the chief topic in military circles here yesterday with Secretary of War Hurley and Secretary of Nav. Adams expressing themselves as "well pleased" with the turn of affairs so soon after it had appeared that there would be no game.

Admiral Robison broke the news to the Middies while 2,000 of them were assembled in the mess hall at noon yesterday. There was a loud clatter of cutlery and a frenzy of cheers. Only one class at the academy remembers the 1927 battle against its traditional enemy.

Navy was the first to propose resumption of relations in the interest of charity at the suggestion of newspapermen and a committee of New Yorkers headed by Grover Whelan.

HOOVER READY FOR TAX RAISE; DEFICIT LOOMS

Keeping of One Per Cent Reduction Is Believed Out of Question.

UNCERTAINTY DELAYS REQUESTS ON BUDGET

ISSUE MAY PROMPT LEGISLATIVE ACTION

Treasury Against Change in Policy of Taking Care of National Obligations.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Indications yesterday were that the President has given up any hope of retaining the 1 per cent tax reduction that has been in effect the past year.

On top of statements by Senators Reed, of Pennsylvania, and Smoot, of Utah, that continuance of the reduction was out of the question, the President made known that he expected a Treasury deficit at the end of the current fiscal year. He does not look for a large one and inasmuch as there have been surpluses for the past several years he does not look upon a small deficit this year as disturbing the stability of the Government at all.

He is withholding the final budget recommendations and the estimates for increased appropriations for public works until the last moment in an effort to determine more definitely what the Nation's revenues are to be.

Tax Increase Implied.

But he is prepared for a deficit. He made no direct reference in his discussion of the matter to the continuance of the tax reduction, but the general interpretation placed upon his remarks was that in the face of a deficit it was now out of the question.

He has apparently come to the expectation of a deficit most reluctantly, as about a month ago he characterized predictions of one as premature.

At the time the 1 per cent reduction was put into effect it was estimated that it would lop $160,000,000 from the treasury revenues. In view of the greatly reduced income returns, however, it is not believed that it would figure that high now.

There are two schools of thought on the continuance of the reduction regardless of how much it would amount to under present conditions.

One-Year Trial.

One is that a "tax reduction" in the face of a deficit is inexcusable. Those who look upon it as a tax reduction recall that the 1 per cent slice was put into effect only for one year and with the understanding that it was a one-year proposition to eat into the Treasury surplus then existing. The reduction is automatically discontinued at the end of the year without any legislative or excutive action.

To continue the reduction, in fact, would require tax reduction legislation.

On the other hand, there is no escaping the fact that not to continue the reduction, income taxes next year will be 1 per cent higher than they were this year, which means they will be increased to that extent.

Opposed by Smoot.

Here is where the other school of thought comes in, contending that it is not only politically but economically unwise to "increase taxes" at the present time.

This school insists that the reduction should be continued even if the payments on the national debt must be decreased, which would most surely have to be done.

Senator Smoot, chairman of the Senate finance committee, and Senator Reed are against this. Senator

ALLARD RECANTS CONFESSION OF BAKER SLAYING, DECLARING HE HOPED TO ESCAPE SENTENCE

Prohibition in the Senate

Rifling of Senators' Offices Made Drys' Spy Very Uneasy

Never Took Part In or Knew of Such Searches, Butts Declares.

If Instructed, He Could Easily Have Entered Rooms, He Says.

By ROGER BUTTS.

During the period I served under the Prohibition Bureau two developments on Capitol Hill made it uncomfortable for me as an "undercover" agent in the Senate Office Building.

One of these was the rifling of the offices of a number of senators which leaked out in the spring of 1930. The other was the fact that during the four months I was operating against bootleggers in the Senate Office Building, the Department of Justice was trying to get a ruling from the Supreme Court as to whether or not the purchaser of liquor is equally guilty with the bootlegger.

The first senator to complain that his office had been searched and his files rifled was Senator Hiram Johnson, of California. Shortly afterward, Senator Kenneth McKellar and Senator William E. Brock, both of Tennessee, made the same complaint.

I remember one of the senators inquired of the Department of Justice if members of the Senate were being "shadowed" or having their offices searched by Government agents and Attorney General Mitchell gave out the statement that no agent of the Department of Justice had been assigned to the Senate Office Building for such a purpose.

At that time the Prohibition Bureau was still under the control of the Treasury Department.

Doubts if Other Undercover Agents Annoyed Senators.

Shadowing Man With Green Hat Long Kept Secret, He States.

Since Vice President Curtis, Col. Thayer, the secretary of the Senate, and my superiors in the Treasury Department all knew I had been operating since the commencement of the session in the Senate Office Building I naturally felt uncomfortable when these reports about raids on senators' offices came out in the newspapers.

As a matter of fact, that was the first I heard or knew about them. During the entire time I was on Capitol Hill I never par-

Capital Detective Finds Story at Variance With Case Facts.

CONVICT IS GRILLED FOR THREE HOURS

BANK RECORDS FAIL TO BOLSTER TALE

Special to The Washington Post.

Schenectady, N. Y., Nov. 14.—Harry J. Allard, today recanted his confession that he killed Mary Baker in Washington, D. C., on April 11.

Allard's repudiation came after a three-hour grilling by Detective Sergt. John A. Flaherty, of the Washington homicide squad. The confession of the suspect was at a complete variance with the established facts in the murder, Sergt. Flaherty said. Allard admitted to him that the story was fabricated in an attempt to evade a five-year sentence imposed upon him here for the larceny of automobiles.

Allard also admitted to Sergt. Flaherty that he had written a letter to Inspector Shelby on November 1, in which he named himself as the probable killer of Mary Baker. He signed the communication "Leo White."

Nagal Murder Doubted.

Sergt. Flaherty also disclosed that the records of the Citizens Trust Co. of this city, failed to show that Allard had cashed a check in the amount of $30, which he said had been sent to him by Miss Baker.

Authorities here also doubted that Allard was guilty of the slaying of Frank Nagal, Washington, D. C., painter in McIntosh County, Ga., in the latter part of December, 1928. Allard had given Miss Baker's "knowledge" of his identity as the Nagal "slayer" as the motive for his "murder" of the Navy Department clerk.

Early yesterday Inspector Shelby received a telegram from Sergt. Flaherty which read: "Allard admits Baker murder, but his statements do not fit in with facts of the case."

No Check Drawn.

Capt. Edward J. Kelly and other detectives spent yesterday in breaking down the story of Allard. Investigation of the bank records of Miss Baker at the National Savings & Trust Co. disclosed that no check had been drawn on her account there in the name of Harry . llard.

Navy Department records show that Miss Baker had not had any time off in December, 1928, when Allard said she accompanied him to Georgia, at which time, he said, he committed the Nagal murder.

Miss Mildred Sperry, house maid of the slain girl, denied that Allard had met her in a house near Fairfax, Va. She denied that she knew him or that Mary Baker had ever gone on a trip to Georgia with a man.

Unable to Produce Letter.

Dr. Thomas F. Baker added weight to this denial with the assertion that his daughter had not gone to Georgia at that time.

So far, Inspector Shelby says, Allard has been unable to produce the letter which he said Mary Baker had sent to him.

Authorities believe that Allard sent, or caused to be sent to Schenectady police, the letter which was mailed from Scotia, N. Y., signed "W.

DANVILLE STRIKERS BRING APPEAL HERE

TIE-UP AFFECTS 4,000

The 4,000 cotton mill workers who are on strike in Danville, Va., have carried their cause to the Federal Government.

A committee of eight, representing the Danville strikers, came here yesterday and called on Secretary of Labor Davis. What happened at the conference was not made known, but it is expected that as a result of it Department of Labor conciliators will make another attempt to break the deadlock between the workers and the mill owners.

The strike, the most serious in the country at present, has been on now for nearly eight weeks. Both sides are receiving outside help—the mills being aided by other Southern mills which are filling their orders, and the strikers by organized workers in all parts of the country, who are contributing to the fund out of which the families of the strikers are being fed.

The committee which came here from Danville to see Secretary of Labor Davis was made up of three union officials and five of the strikers. The three officials are Francis J. Gorman, first vice president of the United Textile Workers; William Kelly, second vice president of that organization, and Miss Matilda Lindsay, of the National Women's Trade Union League, who has helped Gorman organize the women workers at Danville.

Gorman left Washington last night for Birmingham, where he will address the Southern wing of his organization and appeal for funds to help out the Danville strikers. He expects to return here about the middle of next week.

Ten years ago, Danville was held up as an industrial Utopia. In the mills there existed a system known as "industrial democracy." The workers and the mill officials had a government modeled somewhat after the government of the United States.

Mal Daugherty Loses Plea Against Bank Trial

Washington Court House, Ohio, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—A verdict against Mal S. Daugherty was returned late today by a jury that heard his plea for abatement of fifteen indictments charging mishandling of funds of the defunct Ohio State bank of which he formerly was president.

Daugherty sought dismissal of the indictments on the ground that two special investigators were admitted to the quarters of the Fayette County grand jury, which returned the indictments after investigating the affairs of the bank. The verdict means that Daugherty must stand trial on the fifteen indictments, on which he is held under $40,000 bond.

RALLY BY W. C. T. U. MAY ANSWER WETS

HOOVER'S MESSAGE READ

Houston, Tex., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—The Women's Christian Temperance Union will stand firm against all attempts at repeal of national prohibition and hopes through education to obtain "willing obedience and orderly enforcement," Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president, said in addressing the fifty-sixth annual convention of the organization tonight.

The W. C. T. U. leader asserted the American people would never support a repeal program.

Plans for a rally by dry organizations in Washington coincident with the convening of Congress December 1 to "show the dry members of Congress that there is a lot of dry strength and to hearten them" were discussed today by the executive committee prior to the first general convention session. Greetings to the W. C. T. U. members were received from President Hoover. In a telegram to Mrs. Boole he expressed his "profound

FOUR DIE, MANY HURT IN MADRID OUTBREAK

CRY "VIVA REVOLUCION!"

Madrid, Nov. 15 (A.P.).—With a suddenness which left the city aghast, a series of labor riots exploded in the center of the business section today, and within half an hour four men had been killed, a dozen seriously wounded and 50 others injured.

Thousands of workmen poured into the streets, augmenting a crowd which had gathered for funeral services for four workers who perished yesterday in a building collapse. The demonstration began as a protest against the erection of flimsy buildings which endangered the lives of workmen, but it developed quickly into a vicious battle.

Mounted police charged the crowd as the cry "Viva Revolucion!" was raised and as the rioters flung stones at the officers, sabers were swung freely. Merchants hastened to raise iron shutters and lock their doors as the mob stoned shops and offices.

Lone Robber Escapes With $200,000 Gems

Los Angeles, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—A lone robber held up the M. Reingold Co., wholesale jewelers, in the financial district here today and escaped with unset diamonds believed to be worth $200,000. He walked past Dorothea Kirk, secretary to the president, M. Reingold, and into Reingold's office. The proprietor was knocked unconscious, gagged and bound with adhesive tape.

David Dautioff, a clerk, told the police he heard Reingold kicking the door of his private office. He and Miss Kirk investigated and found their employer on the floor. Miss Kirk said she had heard no noise and was unaware of the robbery.

Confession of Theft Laid To Clara Bow's Secretary

District Attorney Claims 30-Page Admission That Star's Confidante Until Recently Stole $35,000 From Employer; Accused's Attorney Enters Denial.

Los Angeles, Calif., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—District Attorney Buron Fitts said tonight Miss Daisy Devoe, until a few days ago private secretary to Clara Bow, screen actress, had made a 30-page confession "of the theft of $35,000 of Miss Bow's money and property."

With this information, Fitts said "this office has no other alternative under the law than to place the matter before the grand jury." He said Miss Devoe will be summoned for questioning by the grand jury next Tuesday.

Informed of the district attorney's statement, Nathan Friedman, Miss Devoe's attorney, said he had visited Fitts and was told the district attorney was "very sorry," but the charges would have to be drawn up. Friedman said Miss Devoe would deny the alleged confession.

Friedman said Miss Devoe would file a damage suit against the district attorney's office on the ground she was kept in "technical custody" unjustly for some 60 hours and compelled to open her strong box and surrender the contents to investigators.

In a formal statement Fitts said:

"This matter came before this office in the nature of a formal request for a criminal complaint

Wan and Weary Trio, Resolutely Hiking From Baltimore to Washington, Finds Food and Shelter at State Police Barracks in Laurel.

Wan and weary after a strenuous walk, three small children last night found haven in the Maryland State Police Substation at Laurel. Their shoes nearly worn off in a hike of more than 20 miles, the youngsters gratefully accepted food and shelter from the kindly policemen.

According to the story pieced together by Policeman C. Dillinger, the children, William Bailey, 10 years old; Thelma, 9, and Roman, 6, had trudged all the way from Baltimore to the Laurel substation en rout to Washington, in search of their mother.

They told the policemen that she had quarreled with their father, Boyce Bailey, of Baltimore, and had gone to Washington to live more than a week ago, taking them with her. The mother had brought the children back to Baltimore Friday and left them with their father's brother, Harry Bailey.

Missing their mother, all three decided they would return to Washington and look for her. Undaunted by the prospect of an almost 50-mile tramp, they packed their belongings in a large basket yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock and started on their trek.

The 6-year-old was borne in the basket most of the way, his tiny legs refusing to carry him. Almost exhausted, the children stopped at Bunkey's Inn, near Laurel, and told

N. P." which connected him with the Nagal murder in Georgia.

The prisoner had told authorities that he had met Mary Baker at an address on Sixteenth street in February, of 1928. Investigation there revealed that neither Mary Baker nor Allard was known to the occupants.

Hold Confession False.

Capt. Kelly and Inspector Shelby said that the confession was obviously false. Allard had "admitted" that he met the girl near Thirteenth street and New York avenue about 5:00 o'clock on April 11. Facts in the case show she was in her car on B street near Seventeenth street at 6 o'clock with a man who was beating her.

Allard said that the girl was slain in his car, while evidence in the hands of police show that the slaying took place in her automobile. The suspect had also said that he and Mary Baker had stopped for something to eat at a drug store in Rosslyn but investigation there failed to lend corroboration to his assertion. Allard said the proprietor knew him well.

Suspicion of Allard developed from two sources. While the local police were investigating the contents of the Worcester letter, Schenectady authorities were following a letter received by them from Scotia, N. Y., linking Allard with the crime.

Text of Letter.

The letter from "Leo White" received by Inspector Shelby on November 2, read as follows:

"Dear Sir:

"My wife lived with Harry J. Allard, of Schenectady, N. Y., for two years. He told her all about the killing of a man on a gin party in Darien, Ga., and said the only one that knew the right name was a Mary Baker in Washington, D. C.

"Last April, Allard went to Worcester, Mass., staying there two days. Then he went to Boston. He brought my wife to see me. I was doing time then. They went back to Worcester. Allard showed my wife a letter that was from Mary Baker in Washington.

"She told him to come to Washington as soon as he received the letter. He went the next Tuesday from Schenectady and was back in Schenectady in four days. I think it was on a Saturday that he arrived.

"Now in her letter Mary Baker said if he didn't come and do as she asked she would tell how he killed Frank Nagels (Nagal) in Darien, Ga. It looks as though he went there and him and Mary went for a ride and he killed her in his car.

Blood on Car.

"He had a Hudson sedan and there was a bloodstain on the front seat. It wasn't there when he went to Washington, but was there when he got back. My wife tried to wash it off and it wouldn't come off.

"It looks as though Allard killed her because she wanted him to do something he didn't want to do. She was going to give him away about killing Nagels (Nagal) in Darien, Ga. How she knew, he never told my wife. Myrtle told me after Allard broke with her."

Upon receipt of this letter Inspector Shelby and Capt. Kelly communicated with authorities at Schenectady and were informed that Allard had confessed to the Nagal killing. His confession as made to Sergt. Joseph A. Loft, of the Schenectady police, read in part:

Facts Again Vary.

"Well, after I came from behind the house Nagal and I had an argument because he insulted my girl and he struck me. I knocked him down and he pulled a small knife from his pocket and tried to hit me with it. I took his wrist and turned it with the knife toward him and pushed it into him. I got up.

"He was dead. I put him in the car. I don't remember if it was in the front or the rear. We stayed there for a half an hour. I then threw him out of the car. I got back to Washington, D. C., a few days later."

Authorities of McIntosh County, Ga., where the Nagal murder occurred, informed local authorities that Allard's "confession" of the killing is at variance with facts unearthed by them.

U.S. Starts Crusade Against Illiteracy

Clarksburg, W. Va., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—War on illiteracy was declared here tonight with the launching of a nationwide crusade of enlightenment by a national advisory committee, appointed by President Hoover.

The occasion chosen for the official opening of the campaign was the annual convention of the West Virginia State Teachers Association, West Virginia having been the first State to organize an advisory committee to work in collaboration with the national body.

Outlining the origin of the national committee and its aims, Herbert S. Houston, New York, a member of the group, said that work started by Cora Wilson Stewart, Kentucky mountain teacher, to "make human beings alive with the light of knowledge," was to be continued and expanded. Mrs. Wilson is a committee member.

"Over on the Rapidan," he said, "President Hoover found children with inadequate schools and grown-ups among his neighbors who couldn't read or write; as a result he lent his powerful support to this movement to eradicate illiteracy." Nearly all States have followed the example of West Virginia in forming advisory committees.

Policemen Offer Blood for Woman

Two of Maryland Force to Undergo Transfusion at Hospital.

Maryland State Police are versatile fellows, passing their time in chasing speeders, settling disputes, and other police work, as well as instructing school children in safety and civic duties. Yesterday, three members of the force transferred their zeal for service to the walls of Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, where they volunteered their blood for a comrade's wife.

The sick woman is Mrs. Wollenberg, wife of Policeman Wollenberg, who is detailed at the Golden Ring station on the Philadelphia road. She is unable to undergo a necessary operation until a blood transfusion is made.

Policemen Theodore Klapproth and C. Dillinger of the Laurel substation yesterday accompanied Policeman Wollenberg to the hospital for blood tests. If their blood doesn't match, other members of the force will try today.

Savants Debate Farm Versus City

Richmond, Va., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—What the South is going to do about industrialism was debated here tonight by two pronounced Southerners—Stringfellow Barr, of Virginia, and John Growe Ransom, of Tennessee. Barr is editor of the Virginia Quarterly Review at the State University; Ransom is professor of English at Vanderbilt. Barr writes history and Ransom poetry.

Their meeting was arranged after Barr had published his views that the South must accept industrialism, and Ransom replied advocating the superiority of agrarianism. They were introduced tonight by Sherwood Anderson, well-known American author.

"Reject industrialism entirely in favor of joy of work and leisure and home as guaranteed on the farm," said Ransom.

Industrialism in the South, Barr said, "is based on a profoundly Southern like of good living and an equally Southern dislike of quixotic nonsense. The South's problem is not whether it wil ladopt the machine, but how it will adopt it."

Union of Federal Workers Lauded

Editor of Labor Advocates Five-Day Week in Radio Address.

Give the worker the five-day week and fill the pay envelope with money needed to meet the American standard of living, advocated Edward Keating, editor of the trade paper, Labor, in a radio talk last night over Station WOL, in which he paid particular tribute to the Federation of Federal Employes.

"I have seen it grow from extremely humble beginnings until today it holds a conspicuous place in the labor movement of America, and commands the respect and confidence of the President of the Republic, the chiefs of the great governmental departments and of the overwhelming majority of the House and Senate," he asserted.

"The Federation and the other great unions among Uncle Sam's workers have accomplished a great deal in the way of increasing wages and shortening working hours. If my fellow 'white-collar' workers have the brains to support properly these organizations, they can accomplish infinitely more. Only last week the federation announced that it would ask for the five-day work week. Our Government, the wealthiest in the world, and the largest employer of labor, should take the lead in this most desirable reform."

School Board Appoints Conference Delegate

Special to The Washington Post.

Purcellville, Va., Nov 14.—M. B. Costello, of Leesburg, was appointed delegate to represent the county school board at the conference of the Virginia Education Association to be held in Richmond the last week in November. His expenses were ordered paid. Teachers who attend the conference will be allowed full pay.

The resignation of Mrs. Rebie Critzer Piggott at Mount Gap School was accepted and Mrs. Mattie C. Carter was appointed to complete the school term. The school board permitted John Compher to transfer from the Brooklyn to the Lovettsville School. One-half the cost of a new well at Lovettsville was authorized.

Danville Union Wishes To Withdraw Charges

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Nov. 14.—Members of the Danville Painters Union have appealed to the Commonwealth's attorney, asking that a warrant charging L. B. Hackworth, treasurer, with embezzlement be quashed.

The committee informed the official that restitution had been made. The State official took the matter under advisement pending an inquiry into the facts.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Nov. 14.—Six Danville banks with Christmas Savings Clubs will disburse, December 8, $253,500 among 8,420 subscribers.

This is a smaller sum than that reached by the Christmas clubs last year when five clubs, distributed $310,000 among 8,450.

Byrd Party Scout to Get Medal.

Paul A. Sipie, Washington Boy Scout who accompanied the Byrd expedition to the Antarctic, will receive the Henry Reed Hatfield annual medal of the National Junior Forum at a meeting of the organization in Philadelphia November 22. The award is designed to stimulate youth toward leadership.

UNEMPLOYED COUNT WILL START TODAY

350 TEACHERS TO HELP

Names of four more schools were added yesterday to the list of points at which jobless workers may enroll in the unemployment census which the District Commissioners' committee will start today. At the same time, five schools previously listed were withdrawn.

There are two white and two colored schools among the four new ones announced yesterday. The former are the Dennison School, on S street between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets northwest, and the Wilson Teachers College, at Eleventh and Harvard streets northwest. The latter are the Phillips School, on N street between Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth streets northwest, and the Berret School, at Fourteenth and Q streets northwest.

Five Schools Withdrawn.

Schools at which it had been announced previously that enrollments would be taken, but which were removed from the list yesterday, are the Ross School, Harvard street between Eleventh and Thirteenth streets northwest; the Smallwood School, I street at Third street southwest; Stanton School, Hamilton road, Good Hope, southeast; Kalmia Road Portables, Fourteenth street and Kalmia road northwest, and the Rosedale Portables at Twentieth and Rosedale streets northwest, the last named being colored.

The committee, which is headed by Frederick A. Delano and already includes 148 members with more names to be added, has prepared a large number of cards for registration of the jobless, on which the answers to 13 questions will be tabulated. The questions pertain to the physical and financial condition of the applicant, his education and other experience, what wages a worker desires and what he will accept, race, nationality and length of residence in Washington.

Questionnaires to Be Analyzed.

The results of these questionnaires will be analyzed by the committee and every effort made to place the workers in the jobs for which they are best fitted, as promptly as possible.

Mr. Delano last night expressed his appreciation of the response given by public school teachers to the call for volunteers to assist in compilation of the census. Approximately 350 teachers have volunteered for the work, augmented by about 40 social workers, while numerous citizens have placed automobiles at the service of the census workers for messenger service and have volunteered to assist personally in every way possible. "The committee on unemployment is deeply grateful for the wholehearted cooperation of the school teachers and citizens of Washington," Mr. Delano said.

The program includes ether-wave music on the theremin, by Mrs. Ralph Richards; songs by Mrs. Paul Tyler; poems by Mrs. C. Terry du Rell; whistling by Miss Madeline Morse and piano selection by Greta von Bayer and Frances Gutelius.

OUSTED PROFESSOR TO APPEAL TO ROME

Dr. Rolbiecki, C. U. Assistant in Philosophy, Regards Dismissal Unjust.

INFORMAL TALK BLAMED

Dismissal of the Rev. Dr. John Joseph Rolbiecki from his position as assistant professor of philosophy at Catholic University here recently will be appealed by him to the Congregation of Studies in Rome, the appellate body of the Vatican for internal troubles of faculty members in Catholic educational institutions the world over.

The appeal will be taken on the basis of what Dr. Rolbiecki considers his unjust dismissal from the university by its rector, the Right Rev. James H. Ryan, who yesterday was reported as out of the city over the week-end.

It was learned at the university that Mgr. Ryan ousted Dr. Rolbiecki as the result of remarks said to have been made by the latter at an informal meeting of the faculty during the summer in a general discussion of the internal organization of the institution, where various changes to modernize certain phases of curriculum administration have been effected.

Dr. Rolbiecki was said to have made inquiries at the gathering regarding what appeared to be his dual status as a member of the faculty of the graduate school, and his affiliation also with the school of sacred sciences as a teacher. The phrasing of his remarks, rather than the issue involved, was understood to have conveyed an impression to Dr. Ryan which led that official to take his action.

Dr. Rolbiecki, one of the younger members of the faculty, during his service there has specialized in the natural sciences. About ten years ago he received his doctorate.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 14.—William Rawlings, 23-year-old Negro living near Davidsonville, Anne Arundel County, who last July shot and killed his uncle, Nace Rawlings, on the St. George Barber estate, must hang for his act. A jury returned a verdict of guilty in the first degree, and Judge Robert Moss promptly announced the death penalty.

The Negro killed his uncle with a single-barreled shotgun following a quarrel over a Negress, Cora Crane. The woman was living with Nace Rawlings and the nephew took a liking to her and extended an invitation to a dance. When the uncle protested the trouble occurred.

Jury Awards One Cent Damages in Collision

Following a deliberation of several hours, a jury in circuit court at Rockville yesterday awarded the sum of 1 cent in damages to Gorman Edwards, of Colesville, Md., who had filed suit for damages of $65 against William R. Wheeler, of Colesville, as the result of an automobile accident.

The accident took place March 29 on the Old Bladensburg road, at its intersection with Colesville pike. Mr. Edwards was represented by Walter W. Dawson, Rockville attorney, who recently was elected a member of the House of Delegates on the Republican ticket, and Mr. Wheeler was represented by Stedman Prescott, newly elected State's attorney of the county, who takes office next month.

Rain Adds One Inch To Lynchburg Supply

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 14.—Rain on Pedler River Wednesday night amounting to .40 of an inch, caused a 1-inch rise of the water in the lake from which Lynchburg draws its water supply. This brought the level of the water back to 299 inches, a gain of 13 inches.

Water department officials are hopeful that heavier rains will come before freezing weather sets in, as it would leave the city in a bad plight should the small streams freeze with so small storage in the dam.

Airship Mail Line to Span Atlantic If Plans Work Out

U. S., English and French Companies to Discuss American-European Route; Direct Service Between Miami and Cristobal to Start; Bermuda Hop Seen.

(Associated Press.)

Both the Old World and the new figured yesterday in the air-mail routes contemplated by the Postoffice Department.

W. Irving Glover, Second Assistant Postmaster General, said the Pan-American Airways, Inc., and Imperial Airways, Ltd., of England, were planning the transatlantic service by way of Bermuda and the Azores.

In South America, the service from Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, to Santos, Brazil, the commencement of which was prevented by the Brazilian revolution, will begin on November 27. On December 2, direct service will be started between Miami, Fla., and Cristobal, Canal Zone. Both lines will connect with the present South American service.

The Postoffice Department was ready to give mail to the transatlantic service when the operators are ready.

Negotiations were described as virtually complete whereby Pan-American Airways, now operating southward from the United States to the West Indies, Mexico and South and Central America, would operate the leg between Bermuda and the States.

The status of the project east of Bermuda was not known to the department, but Mr. Glover understood that Imperial Airways, which connects the British Isles by air with Europe, India and Agrica, would handle the route with newly developed flying boats of great operating radius.

Arrangements are expected to be completed when Maj. G. Woods-Humphrey, managing director of the British company, arrives tomorrow to discuss plans with Pan-American officials.

Mr. Glover said the department had given the subject much study and that "it would appear naturally a subject in which Aero Postale of France also would be interested."

Mr. Glover said Charleston, S. C., might be the American terminus. This would place the line below the bad weather belt and involve a shorter over-water flight than direct Bermuda-New York connections.

Companies to Discuss Project.

New York, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Plans for an air-mail line between the United States and Europe are to be discussed here next week by representatives of the leading international airway companies of three nations—the United States, England and France—Juan A. Trippe, president of Pan-American Airways, said today.

The three companies at the conference will be Pan-American, Imperial Airways, Ltd., of England, and Aero Postale of France.

A representative of Aero Postale has been here for several days conferring with Mr. Trippe on operation of the competing lines of the two companies in South America and Maj. G. E. Woods-Humphrey, managing director of Imperial Airways, is on his way to the United States and will arrive tomorrow.

Reports Are Confirmed.

Mr. Trippe confirmed reports that negotiations already had been carried on and plans made by Imperial Airways and Pan-American for operation of an air mail line between the United States and Bermuda, which is a British possession.

London, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Officials of the Imperial Airways tonight expressed amazement at American dispaches, quoting W. Irving Glover, Second Assistant Postmaster General of the United States, to the effect that plans for an Atlantic airmail service already had been negotiated between the Pan-American and Imperial Airways.

Admit Line Being Considered.

The officials admitted that such a line was under consideration but implied the negotiations had not gone far.

"We can not understand the reports," said an official, "our representative, Maj. Wood S. Humphrey, will not even arrive in the United States to commence discussions until Sunday.

"And even supposing everything has been settled, I don't see how service could be started within a year, as the American dispatches say. To organize the necessary equipment for such a service would take at least three or four years."

TO SUE ESTATE

DOROTHY RUSSELL CALVIT.

ACTRESS' DAUGHTER WOULD SHARE WILL

New York, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Samuel Kornbluth, New York attorney, today confirmed a report that Dorothy Russell O'Reilly Calvit, daughter of the late Lillian Russell, intends to sue for half of a $1,000,000 estate left by the late Alexander P. Moore, former Ambassador to Spain.

Moore, who died in February of this year, married Lillian Russell in 1912. Mrs. Calvit now holds that he entered a verbal agreement to leave her half of his property.

Because of this agreement Lillian Russell rejected an offer of marriage from "Diamond Jim" Brady, which carried with it a settlement of $1,000,000, the attorney said.

Incensed Over Articles.

Kornbluth declared he interviewed several persons in Pittsburgh and learned that Moore executed a will carrying out the alleged agreement with his wife, but that he became incensed at magazine articles Mrs. Calvit wrote about him.

The attorney said Moore then tore up the will and executed one which recently was filed for probate in Pittsburgh, leaving $100,000 to the Spanish queen to be used for charity; $25,000 to Mrs. Dorothy Caruso Ingraham, widow of Enrico Caruso; $10,000 to Jessie Livermore's son, Paul, and $1,000 to Mrs. Calvit. The residue of the estate went to a nephew and two nieces.

Awaits More Evidence.

Mrs. Calvit, 46, lives on Long Island. Until an accident caused amputation of a leg several years ago she followed her mother's footsteps on the stage. She receives $50 a week from Lillian Russell's estate.

Kornbluth said an action to break Moore's will would be filed when sufficient evidence had been collected. Mrs. Calvit will allege her mother left the bulk of her own estate to Moore, believing he would pass it on to her, he said.

Mrs. Calvit's father was Edward Solomon, an English playwright, Lillian Russell's second husband.

Petersburg Drives To Aid Unemploye

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Nov. 14.—Twenty-seven thousand dollars has been appropriated by the United States Government for work on the Petersburg National Battlefield Park, of which $9,000 is available immediately and about $1,800 in additional work is to be paid through the postoffice here during the Christmas season, making approximately more than $44,800 available for employment in the Petersburg area.

The City Council may appropriate $10,000 for materials to be used in construction work on needed public improvements if the industrial roll of honor can furnish a like amount for the payment of unemployed persons to be put to work by the city.

At the mass meeting last night, $6,550 in cash contributions and cash attended by more than 500 persons, pledges were turned over to the committee. The drive to raise $100,000 to give employment to the unemployed men and women of Petersburg is meeting with much success and it is believed that the goal will soon be reached.

Kiwanians in Manassas Hear Virginia Executive

Special to The Washington Post.

Manassas, Va., Nov. 14.—With Lieut. Gov. Edwin P. Hill and other high officials of Kiwanis International in attendance the Manassas club observed ladies' night here this evening. Mr. Hill responded to a welcome speech by Robert A. Hutchison, president of the local club, and lauded the progress which the organization has made in its several years of activity, referring particularly to its work among the underprivileged children of the county, and its interest in public health nursing and education.

The program, which was under the direction of F. R. Hynson, presented features by Mrs. Stuart Pattie, W. Burton Corning, Harry Angelico, Gene Woodson, Mary Glenn, Worthe Storke, Robert S. Illingworth, Mrs. F. G. Sigmam, Mrs. Robert H. Smith and Raymond Ratcliffe.

Russian Colony Tract Is Obtained in Virginia

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Nov. 14.—A Russian colony is to be established in Prince George County, near Burrowsville. A tract of land of more than 300 acres has been secured for the colony, which is expected to be established by early next spring. Those who are to be colonized are Russians and Poles now working in the mines of West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Lynchburg Couple Weds.

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 14 (Special).—Henry Gregory Holt and Miss Marjorie Frances Mayberry, both of this city, were married here Monday night by the Rev. Joseph H. Lynch, pastor, First Methodist Protestant Church. Mr. and Mrs. Holt will make their home at 311 F street.

TRADESMEN ATTACK JOBS FOR OUTSIDERS

Call on Commissioners for Aid to Have Local Firm Build High School.

SCORE CAROLINA BIDDER

Strong protest against awarding contracts for District construction projects to outside contractors was voiced yesterday by a delegation of labor men and representatives of trade bodies who called upon the District Commissioners to request that the job of constructing the new Roosevelt High School be given to a Washington builder.

Nineteen bids were submitted for the project Wednesday, ranging from $1,249,000 to $1,443,000. The low straight bid was submitted by the National Construction Co., of Atlanta, Ga., but the low bid computed on the basis of fifteen alternatives permitted was said to be that of the W. P. Ross Co., of Goldsboro, N. C.

This is the second time a school bid by the Ross Co. has aroused protest, the previous occasion resulting in a public hearing held by the District Commissioners last summer. Objection to the company in both instances is that it uses North Carolina labor and materials.

Hits Wage Scale.

While the National company has its headquarters in Georgia, it has a Washington office and is declared to use local labor and to buy its materials here. This company now is building the Alice Deal Junior High School in the Reno section.

Those who called on the Commissioners to protest against possible award of the contract to the Ross Co. yesterday included Rudolph Jose, president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce; E. J. Murphy, chairman of the Buy-in-Washington Council; Robert J. Cottrell, secretary of the Board of Trade; Charles Young, executive secretary of the Building Trades Council; Michael McDermott, head of the Building Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, and John B. Colpoys, secretary of the Washington Central Labor Union.

In a conference with Maj. John C. Gotwals, Engineer Commissioner, it was pointed out by Thomas A. Lane, representative of the Bricklayers, Masons & Plasterers' Union, that the Rose Co. now is paying carpenters only 60 and 70 cents an hour on another construction job here, whereas the union scale is $1.37½.

Quotes Secretary Mellon.

He declared further that by accepting the bid of the local contractor the District could save about $100,000 through use of a certain type of limestone trim. Mr. Lane called attention also to the pronouncement recently of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon in which he said that "in line with the department's desire to have local labor employed on Federal buildings to the greatest extent possible, consideration is now being given to the inclusion of a paragraph in the specifications for public building construction which would notify bidders that the department will look with disfavor upon any departure by the contractor from the well-known policy of the Government to maintain existing rates of wages."

The points brought out in the protest to the Commissioners also were set forth in a letter sent to Secretary of Labor Davis by Mr. Lane, Mr. Young and George Crosby, representative of the Brotherhood of Carpenters.

Bedford County Fair Makes Profit of $131

Special to The Washington Post.

Bedford, Va., Nov. 13.—A net profit of $131 was made by the Bedford County Fair Association from the recent annual exhibit, J. Callaway Brown, secretary, reported at the annual meeting of stockholders Wednesday afternoon. The stockholders were much gratified with the success in a season of extreme drought and financial depression, in which some fairs did not exhibit at all and others ran deeply in debt.

Officers and directors were re-elected as follows: Dr. W. O. McCabe, president; J. K. Phelps, vice president; J. Callaway Brown, secretary-treasurer; James McIntyre, W. L. Lyle, W. C. Lazenby, W. P. Hurt, J. J. Scott, A. T. Holland, George W. Johnson, J. B. Walker, P. K. Arthur, John Bower, J. K. Phelps, G. B. Updike, W. O. McCabe, A. J. Cauthorn, F. O. Thomas, R. R. Logwood, M. E. Padgett, George P. Parker, E. C. Burks, W. B. Gray and S. R. Watson.

Cannon Is Still Unable To Move Without Pain

(Associated Press.)

Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, who has been in a hospital undergoing treatment for inflammatory arthritis since October 27, still was unable to move yesterday without pain.

Physicians said the arthritis had not spread. They added they believed the trouble was caused by a "latent infection left after the bishop suffered an attack of African fever in the Belgian Congo in 1927."

POSTOFFICE LEASE EXPOSE INFERRED

GO TO MINNESOTA NEXT

Chicago, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—The Senate committee investigating alleged irregularities in postoffice leases expects to make more tangible disclosures when it reaches St. Paul Monday, its chairman, Senator John J. Blaine, of Wisconsin, said tonight.

"But," he added, "we'll really break it wide open when we get back to Washington."

The senator would not say what revelations the inquisitors expect from their inquiry, which ended its Chicago phase tonight after a day which saw two mysteries injected into the hearing by Jacob Kulp, Chicago business man.

Mr. Kulp Tells of Warning.

First of the mysteries was the unidentified man who, Kulp testified, had come to him with the warning that he was "going to get into trouble over the St. Paul (commercial substation) lease," and offering to square things "for a consideration."

Second was the letter which, Mr. Kulp related, had been written to him by a person, whose name he did not reveal, stating that Mr. Kulp was "in a hole" in connection with his financing of the Quincy substation in Chicago.

Part of the day was devoted to questioning of Mr. Kulp in regard to a proposed, but never built, substation in New York City over the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks between Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth streets.

Kulp Says His Bid Was Low.

He told of learning from Dr. Hubert Work, then Acting Postmaster General, that a contract for the building had been awarded to a subsidiary of the Pennsylvania Railroad, the deal involving $24,900,000 over a twenty-year lease. Later, Mr. Kulp said, bids were reopened, and he and several others submitted bids, Mr. Kulp's being low, at $19,245,000.

He had understood, Mr. Kulp testified, that the Pennsylvania subsidiary was to turn over the land to the low bidder for $2,000,000.

"But," Mr. Kulp added, "we never got the land. The Pennsylvania kept us like a cat keeps a mouse. It was always tomorrow and the next day. I had gone to see T. W. Hulme, vice president of the Pennsylvania, and he told me I had a lot of gall trying to "bust" up what he had arranged. Meantime we got a letter from the Postoffice Department saying if we did not get the land by a certain date we might consider ourselves the same as if we were not low bidders. We never got the land."

Dr. Cogan Honor Guest At Georgetown Dinner

About 150 professors of the dental and foreign service departments of Georgetown University will be the guests of President W. Coleman Nevils, S. J., at a dinner and reception at 7:30 o'clock this evening in the senior refectory of the college.

The guest of honor will be Dr. William N. Cogan, dean of the dental school, who was made national president this year of the St. Appollenia Society, a Catholic dental organization. Mrs. Cogan and the wives of other professors will be among the guests. This is the second faculty dinner of the year, the law and medical professors having been entertained previously.

Knights of Columbus Will Receive Report

M. J. O'Leary, representative of the supreme council, Knights of Columbus, will address three Washington councils next week on the subject of business administration and special activities. He will speak before Carroll Council on Tuesday, Spalding Council on Thursday and Keane Council on Saturday.

His report will show the Knights of Columbus membership as of last June 30 as 613,611 in 2,555 councils in the United States and its insular possessions.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

IT was bound to come, this clamor for Senator Fess' scalp as chairman of the Republican national committee. It was an inevitable sequence in this country's political processes.

One did not have to be a sage to predict it. There was nothing new or unexpected about it. It was a stereotyped move in the political checker game, a hundred years old.

And as long as the statement-making business in this country is pitched on such a high plane you may expect the same thing to happen the next time anyone of Fess' prominence utters his views on a controversial question.

It just proves there is nothing new under the political sun and apparently never will be. Indeed, the outlook is that we will never get even a diversion.

* * * *

MR. FESS says one day that the Republican party had better stick to the dry side of the prohibition argument. The next day somebody on the other side hollers, "Resign, resign!"

One knew perfectly well that somebody would do this. It is the present day obvious political thing to do. Yet they say politics is so profound.

Now just why Senator Fess should not say that the Republicans had better remain dry, if that is what he wants to say, is beyond my comprehension. It is my guess that the gentleman is absolutely right, but that is beside the point.

WHY is it—what is there about the processes of our politics that inevitably inspires a demand for a man to resign when he expresses what is on his mind?

It is not that his resignation would change conditions one bit. It cannot be compared with voting against a man whose views are not your own. Senator Fess' seat in the Senate is not under challenge at all.

Why, you had exactly the same ridiculous thing a few months ago when every time Mr. Raskob would open his mouth a few Southern Democrats would holler "resign, resign!"

At the time it did not make a particle of difference from the standpoint of Democratic politics who was chairman of their national committee, Mr. Raskob or a Mr. Jones.

Neither does it make the slightest difference now who is chairman of the Republican National Committee—and will not until 1932 campaign time rolls around. The position is nominal from now until then.

* * * *

IT IS just such as these meaningless clamors to resign every time a man opens his mouth that makes for the lack of frankness in American politics.

It is getting to the point where one in any sort of office must talk in riddles and ambiguities all the time if his head is not to be cut off.

Of Fess, some politicians are saying: "Wasn't that a pig-headed statement to make?" Just why it was, if it was what he thought, is more than I can understand. There has not been a single loss of life or even a missed meal as the result of it.

Liquor Kills One; Other Is Treated

Two Weeks' Drinking Bout Told by Men Taken to Hospital.

Samuel J. Head, 44 years old, of 5021 Klingle road northwest, was found dead on the floor of his home yesterday by his brother-in-law, George C. Burgess, who also lived there. Death was attributed to alcoholism.

According to Burgess, he and Head had been drinking for the past two weeks. Emergency Hospital attaches, who answered a call from police, said that the man had been dead for some time. Burgess, who is 40 years old, was taken to the Seventh Precinct and charged with being drunk, and was then taken to Gallinger Hospital for treatment.

Police have taken part of the liquor found in the house and will have it examined. Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt later issued a certificate of death by alcoholism.

Raccoon Stunned, Captured in Yard

Found Clinging to Blind; Believed to Be Pet Which Escaped.

E. L. Sanford, of 1360 East Capitol street, is fortunate. He doesn't have to hunt raccoons—they come to him.

Mr. Sanford walked into his backyard last night, noticed a strange animal perched on the blind of a second-floor window and struck at it with a stick. It fell to the ground, stunned, so he put it in a box for safe keeping.

Undecided as to its identity, he visited the Ninth Precinct Police Station and after describing the animal as having a black patch across its face and rings on its tail, was informed that he had a raccoon in his possession. Mr. Sanford believes his captive may have been the pet of someone in the neighborhood, since the animal did not run when encountered.

Thief Gets Ring and Watch.

A ring containing three diamonds valued at $100, a gold watch worth $75 and $4 in bills were taken from Miss Georgia McGuire, of 828 Eighteenth street northwest, police were informed last night.

Smith Firm Head Is Sued by Bank

Southern Maryland Trust Seeking to Recover $20,279.88.

Samuel J. Henry, former president of the F. H. Smith Co., was named defendant in a suit filed yesterday in District Supreme Court by the Southern Maryland Trust Co., of Seat Pleasant, Md. The bank alleges that on September 20, 1927, Henry borrowed $35,000, but has neglected to pay back the sum, except for repayments totaling $9,625. Under the suit the plaintiff seeks to recover $20,279.88, which includes interest.

Henry gave shares of the Smith Co. as collateral, the declaration states, and these were sold for a negligible amount.

Henry is under several indictments in connection with Smith Co. affairs, and on Thursday won his right to a separate trial on a charge of conspiracy to embezzle $5,000,000 of the company funds and to destroy records.

Aged Woman Is Found Dead in Bed by Sister

Auntie Marie Matthews, 65 years old, of 223 L street northeast, was found dead in bed at her home yesterday morning by her sister, Margaret McDonald, who also lives at that address.

Dr. Andrew Bowie, of 500 H street northeast, who answered a call to the home shortly after the body was found, stated that the woman died as a result of a cancer. The coroner issued a certificate of death by that cause.

SWISS EXPOSE PLOT TO SLAY DELEGATES

Police Prepare to Prevent Harm to Soviet Group at Geneva Parley.

LETTER BARES DETAILS

Geneva, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—The Exchange Telegraph today said that the Swiss police have been observing great secrecy in connection with a plot discovered yesterday to assassinate members of the Soviet delegation to the preparatory dirarmament commission.

The letter was not regarded as a hoax for the police had been made aware of the presence in Switzerland of a number of Soviet enemies who got into the country without passports.

The agency said the conspiracy was revealed through a letter written in Russian and addressed to the Soviet delegation and the secretary general of the League of Nations.

It was stated in this letter that it was the intention of a white Prussian to board the train as it was leaving with the delegation for the frontier and to shoot the members of the party including Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet foreign minister.

The Swiss police have adopted special precautions regarding Russian delegates at Geneva since the assassination of Vaslav Vorovsky at Lausanne in 1923. Vorovsky was attending the Lausanne Conference, then in session.

Tomorrow is youth day at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church. Dr. Charles C. Selecman, president of Southern Methodist University at Dallas, Tex., will preach in the morning, and the pastor, Dr. William A. Shelton, in the evening, with special messages to the young.

As guests at the morning service the football squad of Kentucky Wesleyan College, Winchester, Ky., will occupy pews, with the president of that college, Dr. Clarence M. Dannelly, who is an Alabamian, the son of a Methodist minister in that State. In the evening at 7 o'clock, the Rev. E. O. Harbon, of Nashville, will speak to the young people on "The Glory of Youth."

Robbed by Passenger, Cab Driver Reports

Millard W. Newman, of 920 D street southwest, yesterday told police of the Fourteenth Precinct he had been held up and robbed of $20 then forced to drive the robber nearly 50 miles to Weaverton, Md., where the latter jumped from the cab and escaped in the darkness.

Newman, who is 27 years old, said he had picked up the man at Fourteenth street and Florida avenue about 4 o'clock yesterday morning. He was told to drive to Thirty-third and Macomb streets, he said. There the holdup occurred, he added.

U. S. Official's Funeral Held in Mexico City

Mexico City, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Funeral services for Edward P. Lowry, second secretary to the United States Embassy, who was killed in a fall on Tuesday, were held today at the embassy residence. Officials of the Mexican government and the entire diplomatic corps attended.

The body was placed in the chapel of the American Cemetery, pending decision of the widow as to whether she will take it to the United States for burial.

W. C. T. U. PROPOSES RALLY HERE TO IMPRESS CONGRESS

sense of the value of their work both in behalf of higher ideals of life and public service and aid of law enforcement." The convention opened with an hour of worship.

Mrs. Boole said the wets "made some gains in Congress" in the recent elections, but were "a long way from the necessary two-thirds of the House and Senate to submit an amendment for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and a long way from the necessary majority to modify or repeal the national prohibition law.

"It is clear," she said, "that the leaders of the Democratic party in the wet States are committed to outright repeal. It is also clear that the leaders of the Republican party in New York and New Jersey are desirous of committing their party to repeal with modifications.

"Outright repeal would leave twenty States with prohibition in the Constitution. It would leave seventeen States with prohibition enactments. It would more than double the border line and some dry States would be hampered by surrounding wet States.

"Who would patrol that border line? Would interference with State enforcement not create a great dissatisfaction and result in repeal of legislative prohibition very promptly? We do not believe the American people will support such a program."

Hoover's Stand Cited.

"Improved personnel in charge of enforcement," she said, "is creating greater respect for enforcement officials.

"President Hoover, on taking the oath of office, accepted his responsibility and on numerous occasions since his inauguration has reiterated his stand."

In the nearly eleven years since national prohibition became operative the people have "forgotten" many of the evils of the legal sale of liquor, she said, and it would be the purpose of the educational campaign to "recall history of the temperance movement to show the steps by which we reached prohibition."

"We do not deny that the law is violated, * * * but neither should laws be changed at the demand of the lawbreaker," she said. "This opposition savors of rebellion."

HOOVER EXPECTS TREASURY DEFICIT AT END OF YEAR

Smoot says that even by using the interest payments on the foreign debt to us the reduction can not be continued. Use of these interest payments toward the deficit could be made without any legislative action.

Legislative action would be necessary to use any of the payments on the principal of the debt for other than paying off our national debt.

Sentiment in Congress.

There is, however, a growing sentiment in Congress for just such legislation and for a policy of slowing down in the liquidation of the national debt. It is uncertain just how strong it is and very probably will not amount to anything without administration support.

The Treasury is known to be against any change in the national debt policy. The record that has already been made in paying off this debt is one of which Secretary Mellon is very and justly proud.

If Mr. Hoover has ever entertained any thought of slowing down the liquidation process his attitude yesterday seemed to be that he had definitely given up any thought of doing so.

The President's announcement made at his semiweekly conference with the Washington correspondents was as follows:

"We have deferred giving any final consideration to the estimates that we will need to put up to Congress until the last moment because we want the maximum experience with incomes.

"We have not as yet received the figures as to the amount we will ask of Congress for the expedition of public works. There are some other matters, some of which may overrun our income by some comparatively small percentage, and as we have had surpluses over many years we probably can stand a small deficit over one year without disturbing the stability of the Government at all."

The income tax rates in effect this year and the permanent schedule which would become operative next year if these are not continued follow:

Individual net income, $4,000 and less—Emergency ½ per cent; permanent, 1½ per cent. $4,000 to $8,000—Emergency, 2 per cent; permanent, 3 per cent. $8,000 and over—Emergency, 4 per cent; permanent, 5 per cent.

Corporations and insurance companies—Emergency, 11 per cent; permanent, 12 per cent.

FESS' DRY VIEW HIT AND ALSO DEFENDED

Britten Declares Chairman Should Resign Before Request Is Made.

BROOKHART SEES RIFT

(Associated Press.)

The dry stand taken by Senator Fess, of Ohio, chairman of the Republican National Committee, was the subject of a renewed attack and a new defense yesterday from within the Republican ranks.

Representative Britten, Republican, Illinois, issued a statement last night saying Mr. Fess "Should not wait until he is requested to resign," but should immediately turn over the Republican committee's management to "someone who can properly sense public opinion."

Earlier Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, a Republican advocate of prohibition commended the call for a dry reorganization sounded by Senator Fess, saying he, too, believed the Republican party might split if it abandoned firm advocacy of prohibition

Fess Has Little to Say.

Mr. Fess himself had little to say, referring to demands from within the Republican wet ranks that he resign, however, the Ohio senator indicated he certainly would not, at least so long as a battle waged over the dry stand he had taken. Following his original statement earlier in the week, Senator Fess took steps to make known he had spoken personally and not as chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Meanwhile, a majority of the members of President Hoover's Law Enforcement Commission stuck at the task of working out their own proposal for solution of the problem.

It was assured that the commission's report will be in the hands of President Hoover before the end of next month, but there was a growing opinion on Capitol Hill that the Chief Executive will try not to inject the troublesome prohibition issue into the coming short session. It was held the report itself undoubtedly will be submitted, but that it may be sent to Congress without definite recommendations or perhaps with reserved recommendations from the President.

Representative Britten's attack upon Senator Fess yesterday was the second within a week, and this time he hit out also at the Antisaloon League and Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Statement by Britten.

"Senator Simeon Fess," said Mr. Britten, "is chairman of the Republican national committee, and as such his views on prohibition are very naturally presumed to portray the attitude of the Hoover administration and the Republican party toward that vexatious question.

"If Senator Fess is indebted to the Antisaloon League for something it has done for him in the past, he may feel duty bound to repay that debt even though doing so carries him down to defeat with the fast-sinking saloon league, but he should not be permitted to drag the entire Republican party down with him and his unpopular associates."

Dr. Arthur J. Barton, a Wilmington, N. C., pastor, and chairman of the executive committee of the Antisaloon League, also issued a statement yesterday, saying he believed the "suggestion" that the drys in Congress will agree to propose repeal to the States "will not get anywhere."

"No well-seasoned dry of long experience could think of giving his support to such a proposal," Dr. Barton said. "Any dry who did so would be called to doom immediately by his constituents."

An estate valued at $400,000 was left by John S. Larcombe, who died November 8, according to the petition for the probate of his will filed yesterday in District Supreme Court.

The widow, Mrs. Mary A. Lipscomb of the Wyoming Apartments, receives $5,000 in cash and household effects and the use of a Maryland farm. The residuary estate is to be held in trust for the widow and a son, John S. Larcombe, jr., and a grandson, Blair B. Stringfellow, jr., of Boston, Mass. Riggs National Bank is named as executor, and the petition for probate was signed by Sidney F. Taliaferro, as vice president, and was filed through Attorney Frank J. Hogan.

Universalists to Give Plays.

Three one-act plays will be given tonight in Perkins Hall, Universalist National Memorial Church, at 8:15 o'clock under the auspices of the Y. P. C. U. The plays are "Sauce for the Gosling," "A Radio Idyll" and "Poor Old Jim." There will also be special musical numbers.

DANVILLE STRIKERS ARRIVE IN EFFORT TO SEE PRESIDENT

There was a house of representatives, a senate and a cabinet, and these considered mill problems much as Congress considers legislation here.

Wage Cut Resented.

Two things led up to the collapse of "industrial democracy"—the establishment of the "stretch-out" system two years ago, and a pay reduction last February.

Under the stretch-out system, the mill workers had to attend to more cotton looms than they had been attending to theretofore. They tolerated this, but the 10 per cent reduction in their wages brought a revolt.

The upshot was that the workers turned on their company union, or industrial democracy, and called upon President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, to help them out. Green sent Vice President Gorman, of the United Textile Workers, to Danville, an organization was formed, and the strike followed.

The strikers say that Harry R. Fitzgerald, president of the mill company, has declined all offers to discuss a settlement.

Previous Peace Efforts.

In a manifesto to his employes last winter, Mr. Fitzgerald characterized the union representatives as "foreign agitators," and said that they were simply out to collect dues from the employes.

Hugh Kerwin, commissioner of conciliation of the Department of Labor, sent two of his men to Danville to try and bring the strikers and the mill owners together, but their efforts were in vain. It is expected, however, that as a result of yesterday's conference between the Danville committee and Secretary Davis that these efforts will be renewed.

Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia, also sought to mediate the differences between the mills and the workers, but President Fitzgerald declined the offer.

The most important development in Danville yesterday, according to a dispatch from The Post correspondent there, was the conviction of William Murdoch, of New Bedford, Mass., an alleged Communist.

Jail Term Imposed.

Murdoch was convicted of criminal libel by a jury in the Corporation Court for distributing dodgers in the name of the National Textile Workers of America, and was sentenced to serve 6 months in jail and to pay a fine of $100.

Murdoch sought to prove the truth of the statements in the allegedly scurrilous dodger. He told the jury that when he denounced Gorman he had reference to a purported statement by Gorman that Fitzgerald, the mill president, had employed Dewey Martin, an alleged Communist. Murdoch's motion for a new trial was overruled.

The first civil action for damages arising from the strike was brought in Danville yesterday when Miss Sallie Hudgins, a nonunion worker, filed suit for $15,000 damages against 50 members of the union. She alleged that on October 20 she was forcibly restrained by union members from going to work.

C. W. Bolick, organizer of the union, said that the suit represented another effort to disrupt the strike.

"Of course," he said, "we believe we know who is behind this suit, and we are wondering where the money came from to enter the courts."

CATHOLIC CHURCH TO HAVE CARNIVAL

CONFERENCE IS CALLED

Next week will be homecoming week at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Eighth and N streets northwest. Plans for this have been under consideration for several months, and the big feature will be an indoor carnival and bazaar.

Each evening during the week one of the former pastors or assistant pastors of the church will be the guest of honor. Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament will be given each evening at 7:30 at the new Grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes, celebrated by the guest of the evening.

Monday night has been designated the "Mgr. Connelly night." Mgr. Connelly, pastor of St. Peter's Church and spiritual director of the Washington Union of Holy Name Societies, will formally open the bazaar at 8 o'clock.

Tuesday evening the Rev. Charles E. Roach, of Bryantown, will be guest of honor.

Guest of Honor.

The Rev. James E. Connell, pastor of Holy Comforter Church, will be the guest of honor on Wednesday evening.

Thursday evening has been designated "Father Beaven night." The Rev. Ambrose O. Beaven, pastor of St. Charles' Church, Pikesville, Md., and the Rev. Joseph T. Kennedy, assistant pastor of St. Joseph's Church, this city, are to be guests of the evening. Father Kennedy was a former parishioner.

The Rev. John H. Eckenrode, pastor of St. Margaret's Church, Belair, Md., and the Rev. Theodore T. Skrzynski, assistant pastor of St. John's Church, Frederick, are to be the guests of honor on Friday evening.

Father Riordan Night.

Saturday will be "Father Riordan night." The Rev. Michael J. Riordan, former pastor of the Immaculate Conception Church, will celebrate Benediction at 7:30 and will formally close the bazaar.

A religious note of the week will take place on Thursday morning, when a solemn mass of requiem will be celebrated for the souls of former parishioners. The mass will be said at noon in the new Purgatorian Shrine.

The Rev. Francis J. Hurney, pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, is honorary chairman of the homecoming week. He is being assisted by the Rev. Stanislaus Czyz, chairman; Mr. and Mrs. James Nolan, Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Froehlich, Stephen B. Clements, Francis Anthony McCann, Dr. Felix Heley, Frank Horstkamp, John Cannon, Mrs. Margaret Wills, Mrs. C. L. Williams, Miss Ethel Wilson, John Murray, Miss May Keefe, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Simonds and Mr. and Mrs. Edmund J. Myers, Mr. Roger O'Hanlon and Mr. Patrick Shugrue.

Industrial Conference.

A regional meeting of the Catholic Conference on Industrial Problems will be held at the Washington Hotel December 9 and 10.

This conference, with headquarters in Washington, is a national organization. Though it has never held a meeting in Washington, it has held regional and local conferences throughout the country.

Its purpose is to promote a better understanding of industrial problems in the light of Catholic teaching. It follows entirely the conference method. It passes no resolutions and takes no action on questions of industrial policy.

The officers of this organization are: Dr. J. E. Hagerty, director, School of Social Administration, Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio, president; the Rev. R. A. McGowan, assistant director, social action department, National Catholic Welfare Conference, secretary treasurer; the Rev. Dr. John P. Boland, Buffalo, N. Y.; Mr. James W. Byrnes, of St. Louis; Mr. E. F. Du Brul, of Cincinnati; the Rev. Joseph Husslein, S. J., director, department of sociology and social sciences, St. Louis University; Mr. Leo E. Keller, of Detroit, Mich.; Miss Elizabeth Morrisey, professor, Notre Dame College, Baltimore, Md.; the Rev. Dr. A. J. Muench, rector, St. Francis Seminary, St. Francis, Wis., and Mr. Charles F. Wills, of Chicago, Ill., vice presidents.

Others on List.

Miss Linna E. Bresette, social action department, National Catholic Welfare Conference, Washington, field secretary; Dr. David A. McCabe, professor, economics department, Princeton University, Princeton, N. J., and Mr. Frederick P. Kenkel, director, central bureau of the Central Verein, St. Louis, Mo., ex-officio members executive committee.

A committee on arrangements is now being organized. Dr. John A. Ryan, of the Catholic University, will act as chairman.

Church Society to See Films Showing Indians

Dr. R. Lyman Sexton, member of the Appalachian Trail Club, has returned from a reconnaissance of the Great Smoky Mountain National Park with 5,000 feet of new moving picture films. With Director of National Parks Dr. Horace M. Albright and Associate Director Arno N. Cammerer the whole region was traversed and studies made of the inhabitants and other features which will disappear as the national park is developed.

A selection from these films with some of the proposed Shenandoah Park will be shown before the Men's Society of the Church of the Covenant and First Presbyterian Church at the Church of the Covenant, Eighteenth street between P and Q, where the arrangements are in charge of Mr. Charles M. Potter.

In a varied career Dr. Oliver has taught medicine, served as surgeon in the Austrian army, written a number of books and preached the gospel. Highly educated, he is a graduate of Harvard, Johns Hopkins, the General Theological Seminary and the University of Innsbruck. At one time he resided in Washington, with his father, the late Gen. Robert Shaw Oliver, who was at one time Secretary of War.

An Englishman, who was for some years a Wesleyan and a preacher in the Southern Methodist Church, Dr. Richard Wilkinson will be the missioner at Trinity Church in Takoma Park. He is the rector of the aristocratic St. John's Church in Montgomery, Ala., where Jefferson Davis had a pew when he was chosen President of the Confederacy. Dr. Wilkinson is a preacher of eloquence and rare gifts, and on occasions pours forth a stream of tender speech that greatly moves his hearers. Grace Church, Woodside, and Silver Spring Mission will cooperate with Trinity Parish in this mission.

This diocesan mission is part of the Bishops' Crusade, which was initiated by Bishop Darst of North Carolina two or three years ago. In other communions it would bear the name of revival. The greatest religious movement of modern times was a revival in England preached by a certain Church of England clergyman known as John Wesley, of which Archbishop Davidson of Canterbury said some years ago, when speaking of another noted revival: "The first great mistake the Church made was when it let Mr. Wesley and the Wesleyans get away from her; and now we make a second mistake when we let Gen. William Booth and the Salvation Army get away."

Of course, this is a paraphrase of what the good doctor said. His exact language is found in Harold Begbie's notable biography of Gen. Booth. What the good doctor was aiming at was, that the great social and energizing Wesleyan movements should never have been lost to the Church.

There are a great many very religious people who seem to think that the stage is now set for another of those great revivals, which have made history in America, to sweep over the country. They all had their beginning in some such work as this which the Episcopalians are carrying forward. Who knows but that this mission may be the match to set the torch aflame?

Episcopalians Plan Preaching Mission

35 Eminent Missioners Will Hold Services; Begin Tomorrow.

By DAVID RANKIN BARBEE.

A mass religious crusade of unusual moment will radiate from the Protestant Episcopal churches of Washington next week, beginning tomorrow. Under the leadership of the Right Rev. R. E. L. Strider, Bishop Coadjutor of West Virginia, 35 missioners will begin a preaching mission at various centers throughout the Diocese of the District of Columbia.

The general theme of the mission is "The Fundamentals of Christianity and the Christian Life."

Bishop Strider will open the mission at the great meeting in Constitution Hall, which will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock and at which Bishop James E. Freeman will preside. In addition to Bishop Strider, Dr. William C. Sturgis, of the College of Preachers, will speak. Others taking part in the services will be the Right Rev. Irving Peake Johnson, Bishop of Colorado, and the Right Rev. Philip Cook, Bishop of Delaware.

Most of the missioners will be present, but not in vestments. The music will be furnished by the Cathedral Choir and men and boys and by the boy choirs of five other Episcopal churches of the diocese, under the direction of Edgar Priest, organist and choir director of the cathedral. The complete service will be broadcast over WMAL.

This mission is not confined to Episcopalians alone. Like the Gospel itself, it is for every one, and nothing will please the Washington rectors and their bishop more than to see their churches crowded nightly to hear the bread of life broken for sinners.

Bishop Strider is a native of West Virginia, educated at the University of Virginia and at the Theological Seminary at Alexandria. He is regarded as one of the ablest pulpiteers in his church. "He comes with a strong message on the verities of the faith, and should command wide and instant attention," says the Rev. Dr. Ze Barney Phillips, rector of the Church of the Epiphany.

Each night during the week, beginning tomorrow night, Bishop Strider will preach at the Epiphany, and each day from 12 to 12:30 he will give a meditation on personal religion at the same place.

Bishop Strider will preach at St. John's in the morning and during the week of the mission that parish will cooperate with the Epiphany.

At St. Luke's Church, Fifteenth and Church streets northwest, Father Spence Burton, of the Society of St John the Evangelist, will be the missioner. He will preach every evening. St. Luke's announces congregational singing, and issues this invitation: "Get closer to God. Learn to live better." Associated with this church are St. Mary's Parish and St. George's Mission.

Among the unusual men who will conduct this mission is the Rev. John Rathbone Oliver, M. D., of Baltimore, who is an eminent psychiatrist and criminologist of Baltimore as well as a clergyman. Dr. Oliver has been assigned to St. Thomas' Church, Eighteenth street between P and Q, where the arrangements are in charge of Mr. Charles M. Potter.

CHURCH TO RECEIVE LARGE NEW CLASS

200 BY CHRISTMAS, AIM

At the 11 o'clock service at Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle, tomorrow morning, another large group of new members will be received into the fellowship of the congregation. Indeed, it was thought probable on Wednesday of this week that the number to be received would exceed even the high-water mark of July 13, when 64 came into the church. With the 46 received in April, the 92 in July and the 60 in October this group will bring the total of new members added in less than eight months up to a total of more than 260.

It is doubtful if any congregation of any denomination in the Nation's Capital has ever surpassed this record, and some of those who have studied the church history of the city are inclined to believe that it never has been equaled. The figures gain added significance from the fact that they represent almost entirely new blood in the congregation, the church having been without a confirmation class during these months. Those who have joined the church have come from nearly two-thirds of the States, Alaska and seven foreign countries.

Easier Every Month.

Speaking of the work, which is claiming the attention of the entire religious community, a member of the Luther Place Council said yesterday: "The most stirring thing about this remarkable development is the fact that it becomes easier each month to add new members. People coming to Luther Place are finding there a zeal and an enthusiasm that only outstanding success can kindle. Every member is on tiptoe to make the people who come as visitors feel that they are honored guests, with a welcome that is genuine and sincere. With 'whosoever comes a stranger must go a friend,' as their motto, the members have succeeded in making their visitors feel at home in a way that has commanded the appreciative comment of every one who attends the services. Those who express an interest in considering the matter of membership are giving their cards to Dr. Rasmussen faster than he is able to call on them.

"The new members received heretofore, and to be received tomorrow, come from every section of the city and its environs, and from every walk of life. Kensington and Capitol Heights, Clarendon and Hyattsville, and all the territory between, are represented in the new membership. Graduates of Columbia, Harvard, Wisconsin, Ohio State, Stanford, Johns Hopkins and other universities share fellowship with street car motormen, department store clerks, printers and plumbers.

Planned For Three Years.

"When our council laid out its program, based on the calling of Dr. Rasmussen to our pulpit, we figured that we might be able to add 300 to our membership in three years. After our great experience in July we began to say that we could reach that goal between April 1, 1930, and July 1, 1931. We now believe that it will be attained by Christmas of this year. A class is already forming which will be received on December 21. This class is to be known as our Christmas gift to the King, and the number of those indicating a purpose to be a part of it makes us confident that the 300 mark will be reached, if not passed.

"Our chief joy is that those who join become so deeply interested in the work. They are as active in our auxiliaries as the members of years' standing. In our every member visitation, which begins a week from tomorrow, we have just as many new members as old ones ready to go out on this happy mission of the church."

Dr. Rasmussen will preach at both the morning and evening services tomorrow. His morning sermon will represent a continuation of his series on the church and man's relations to it. His evening sermon will be a dicussion of contrasting typesof men pictured by the Psalmist.

Tardieu Cabinet Wins Its Second Vote in Day

Paris, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—The Tardieu government was upheld by 47 votes today in a question of confidence on the cabinet's finance policy.

This was the second vote of confidence for the Tardieu ministry in one day, for at 4 o'clock this morning the government obtained a majority of 53 votes on its foreign policy.

Farewell Is Planned To Missionary Nurse

At Mount Moriah Baptist Church Monday evening the executive committee of the Lott Carey Baptist Foreign Mission Convention, U. S. A., is sponsoring a missionary mass meeting and a farewell service to Miss Minnie C. Lyon, a graduate nurse, who returns to Brewerville, Liberia, to take up work in connection with missionary stations where she has served for more than six years.

Dr. C. S. Brown, of Winton, N. C., president of the convention; Dr. W. T. Johnson, of Richmond, Va., chairman of the executive board, and other representatives, in and out of the city, will speak.

Topic Box Liked At Men's Service

Attendance at Calvary Methodist Largely Increased.

When the men of the church took charge of the Sunday evening services at Calvary Methodist, on Columbia road near Fifteenth, the attendance began to pick up and a number of new features were introduced which have added to the attractiveness of the worship.

One of these features was a "topic box," from which came subjects which the members of the congregation wished the pastor, Dr. Mark Depp, to preach on. These sermon topics have put Dr. Depp on his mettle, as he is pledged to the short discourse for this service. He now has enough topics to keep him busy through the winter.

The congregation is also enjoying the singing of "request" numbers in the evening song service. This opportunity of selecting the hymns on the part of the congregation makes these services more personal and informal than ever. It is the intention of the minister and the assisting men's committee to create an atmosphere of informality and good fellowship in Calvary's Sunday evening services which will appeal to all.

Tomorrow evening Dr. H. M. Dudley will lead the singing of the old familiar hymns, Charles Brett will lead in prayer, Mr. C. E. Beckett will read the Scripture and Mr. George S. Colison will make the announcements. A musical feature of the evening will be a trombone solo by George Gaul.

Revivals Will Continue At Deanwood Baptist

The Rev. J. C. Olden will preach tomorrow morning at the Deanwood Baptist Church in connection with the largely attended revival which he is conducting there. Revival services will continue throughout the week.

Tomorrow night a service of gospel and song will be conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Leon Wormsley, and the choir under the direction of T. H. Ward.

Dr. Pierce Resigns Pastorate Here

Congregational Minister Accepts Call to Nashville.

Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the First Congregational Church, has resigned his pastorate here and accepted a call to the Collegeside Church in Nashville, Tenn. He succeeds Dr. William E. Barton, one of Lincoln's numerous biographers and the father of Bruce Barton, the writer.

Nashville is an educational center, and Collegeside Church is set down in the midst of Vanderbilt University, Peabody College, Scarritt College, Y. M. C. A. Graduate College, Ward-Belmont, with an enrollment of 5,000 students. In the same city is Fisk University, a Negro school, founded by Gen. Clinton B. Fisk, of the Union Army.

In addition to his ministerial duties Dr. Pierce will fill a chair in the Vanderbilt University School of Religion. Dr. Pierce leaves here November 30 and takes up his duties in Nashville December 1. His resignation has been accepted and the pulpit committee of First Congregational Church is looking for his successor. His ten years' pastorate has been noteworthy. President Coolidge had a pew in his church, and he was one of the presidents of the Washington Federation of Churches.

Huge Prayer Meeting Planned for Dr. Snyder

Next Thursday will mark the first anniversary of the coming of Dr. Henry W. Snyder as pastor of St. Paul's English Lutheran Church. It is Dr. Snyder's ambition to have the largest midweek prayer service in Washington, and on his anniversary night the congregation is planning to gratify his wish by assembling in full force at Epiphany Chapel, Sixteenth and U streets, and congratulating him on the achievements of his first year as their pastor.

Dr. Snyder was formerly pastor of the First Lutheran Church of Johnstown, Pa., where his work attracted the attention of Lutheranism throughout the United States. He was drafted by St. Paul's of this city and his presence was at once felt in every line of activity.

Rev. Mr. Miller to Speak At Church of Pilgrims

The Rev. P. D. Miller, of Atlanta, Ga., educational secretary of home missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, will be the guest preacher at the Church of the Pilgrims, on the Parkway at Twenty-second and P streets northwest, on Sunday morning.

On Thursday, at 7:45, the minister, Dr. Bird, will continue his series of lectures on the Old Testament, the subject being "The Appeal of the Old Testament to the Children."

Church of the Brethren Organizing Men's Club

At the Washington City Church of the Brethren a men's club is being organized under the leadership of Dr. Resser, and a Boy Scout troop is also being formed.

Plans are being laid for a big week early in December, which will be climaxed with the dedication of the new church school.

W. R. Castle Named To Cathedral Chapter

Bishop James E. Freeman announces the appointment of Mr. William R. Castle, jr., Assistant Secretary of State, to membership on the chapter of Washington Cathedral. The chapter is the board of trustees in charge of the Cathedral property.

Mr. Castle takes the place of the late Alexander Smith Cochran, of Yonkers, N. Y. Other lay members include Messrs. Charles C. Glover, Corcoran Thom, James Parmelee, George Wharton Pepper, Dr. William C. Rives, Dr. William Holland Wilmer and Gen. John J. Pershing.

Interdenominational Bible Lectures.

The Rev. R. Dunwoody Walker, visiting clergyman, will open a series of interdenomination Bible lectures tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Washington College of Law, 2000 G street northwest. His subject will be "Convincing Testimony Regarding Unseen Realities." He will deliver other lectures in the college at 8:15 p. m. on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Newspaper Man Found Dead.

Los Angeles, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Raymond J. McClelland, 45 years old, assistant telegraph editor of the Los Angeles Times for the last four years, was found dead in his apartment last night. Police said they believed he had committed suicide by inhaling gas. He had been ill.

Seaman's Body Sought in Vain.

San Pedro, Calif., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Search, impeded by heavy seas, was made today for the body of William I. Winn, 18-year-old apprentice seaman from the aircraft carrier Lexington, who washed overboard, drowned yesterday. He was the son of C. H. Winn, of 230 North Twelfth street, Reduondo, Cal.

Librarian Will Address Central Mission Meeting

Mr. Voorhees, of the Library of Congress, will be the speaker tomorrow night at 7:45 in the Central Union Mission Chapel, 613 C street northwest. Special music will be furnished by John Knapp, of the Metropolitan Baptist Church, and the Smith brothers, from the United Brethren Church.

During the coming week groups from the following churches will conduct the service. Monday night, the B. Y. P. U. of Kendall Baptist Church; Tuesday night, the A. B. Pugh Class of the Mount Vernon Place M. E. Church South; Wednesday night, the Christian Endeavor of Calvary Baptist Church; Thursday night, the Christian Endeavor of the First Congregational Church; Friday night, the Live Wire Class of the Metropolitan Baptist Church, and Saturday night, the Adult Bible Class of the Fourth Presbyterian Church.

English Embargo On Apples at End

Virginia Shippers Assert Only Better Grades Will Be Exported.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 14.—Virginia apple growers have no intention of dumping an inferior grade of fruit on the English market as a result of the lifting of the embargo in the United Kingdom tomorrow, it was said by prominent growers and shippers here today.

The embargo, effective from July 7 to November 15, barred from British ports all apples below the grade known as U. S. No. 1, and had the effect of keeping out partly ripe fruit and also commercial and utility grades. Shipments from New York last Saturday for British ports were below normal, aggregating only 28,113 barrels, 52,159 boxes and 519 baskets.

Large quantities of Virginia apples of all the good grades are being shipped this fall to countries on the continent, and today an English dealer operating here received inquiries from firms in Spain for Virginia York Imperials.

Preacher Will Discuss Present Hard Times

"The World's Financial Depression: Is there a Conspiracy Against the Prosperity of the United States," will be the subject of the lecture on Bible prophecy by Dr. B. G. Wilkinson, dean of theology, Washington Missionary College, Sunday night, 7:30 o'clock, in Mount Pleasant Hall, 1813 Columbia road northwest.

Dr. Wilkinson returns from a summer of travel and study. He is a lifelong Bible student, and will present facts in answer to the question whether the hard times will continue.

PEW HOLDERS' LIST FOUND BY CHURCH

TO MARK ANNIVERSARY

Plans are maturing rapidly now for the celebration of the founding of the Georgetown Presbyterian Church, which is the oldest church of that denomination in Washington, and has had one of the most distinguished histories of any church. It is 150 years old.

The Post's Church Page has covered rather fully the great history of this old congregation, and its several moves from one location to another until the present one was chosen in 1879.

Antiquarians have unearthed, among other documents, a list of the early pew holders, and as they were the ancestors of many families now living in Georgetown, the names have wide interest. They are:

Pewholders in 1805-06—James Calder, David English, Jonathan Finley, Eleanor Curlan, William Knowles, Benjamin Betterton, Clephane & Makie, Joseph Wheaton, Mrs. Templeman, Alexander Carmichael, William King, John Baltzer, William Thompson, Jasper M. Jackson, Christian Kurtz, John Banks, Sarah Cruikshanks, Nathan Loughboro, Francis Glazgo, Robert Ober, Nicholas Hedges, Richard Bellett, Jeremiah Mosher, John Craven, Daniel Reiter, Daniel Bussard, Joseph Bromley, John Heugh, Francis Dodge, Whetzel, Ezekiel King, John Mantz, Andrew Ross, William Crawford, John Laird, Sarah Suter, Edgar Patterson, James A. Morsel, C. F. Polz, Joshua Dawson, George Thompson, Mrs. George French, Thomas Beall of George, David Peter, John Peter of Tudor Heights, William Wyman, James Melvin, Jane White, Charles Love, James Dunlop, sr., and David Wiley.

Pewholders in 1813-19—In addition to 28 of the old pewholders registered in 1806 the list contains the following names: Carnahan, McKay, Doyle, Tenney, Kaber, George A. Cossitt, Forrest, F. H. Gillis, Henry Knowles, Peabody, Crittenden, Cathcart, Swatz, Wilbert, Jacob Mountz, James Greer, Attwood, Milligan & Barnes, Belt, Joseph Arny, Isaac Bartlett, William Noree, William Hardy, Talbot, William Crawford, R. Riggs, Robert Ould, Lavely, Ellis, Walker, Michael Weaver, Ranney, Oertly, Watson, Dunihils, Wingerd, Beall & Bahror, Davidson, Clementson, Musten, Robinson, Robertson, Charles E. Mix.

Among the relics to be on exhibition at the celebration is an original plat showing these names written in pencil and still clearly legible.

Harry Gaze Will Give Three More Lectures

Harry Gaze, of London, England, is giving the last three of his free lectures tonight, Sunday, and Monday, 8 o'clock, at the Masonic Auditorium. "How to Grow Young and Stay Young" will be the topic tonight. For Sunday evening Mr. Gaze has chosen the subject, "The Dynamic Power of Scientific Prayer." The final lecture, on Monday evening, will be on the subject, "How to Realize Your Desires and Make Your Dreams Come True."

Atlanta Preacher Will Be Heard.

The Rev. S. L. Morris, of Atlanta, Ga., will speak at the Central Presbyterian Church tomorrow morning and night. Dr. Morris was for some years executive secretary of Assembly's Home Missions for the entire Southern Presbyterian Church.

SPECIAL SERVICES TO HONOR DR. SIZOO

Tomorrow Will Make 20th Anniversary of His Ordination.

IN CAPITAL SINCE 1923

Tomorrow the services in the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church will have in them a special feature. It is the anniversary Sunday of the ordination of Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo to the gospel ministry. It is Dr. Sizoo's custom each year to have a special service. This year marks the twentieth anniversary of his ordination to the ministry, and he will speak of phases of the life of the church and of the ministry in connection with that event.

Dr. Sizoo graduated from the New Brunswick Theological Seminary and was ordained in the Reformed Church of America in 1910. He took postgraduate work at Union Theological Seminary. Dr. Sizoo spent a recent summer at Oxford.

He began his ministry as a missionary, specializing in education and evangelistic work for the Dutch Reformed Church in India. Dr. Sizoo spent the years 1910 and 1911 there. In 1912 he returned to America because the rigor of the heat was too much for him. He had a pastorate in Walden, N. Y., until 1917. While there Dr. Sizoo was vice president of the State Christian Endeavor Union and member of its executive committee. In the beginning of 1917 Dr. Sizoo accepted a call to the Second Reformed Church of Somerville, N. J. He was grand chaplain of the Grand Lodge of the Masonic Fraternity of New Jersey.

In 1929 he was the guest minister of the American Church at The Hague. It was during his time of service at The Hague that the Queen of the Netherlands observed the twentieth anniversary of her coronation and Dr. Sizoo was delegated to bring greetings to her majesty from his denomination. Shortly after the interview the Queen of the Netherlands sent him a personally autographed photograph with a personal letter, which he treasures very much and has hanging in his study.

In 1923 Dr. Sizoo began his ministry in Washington. Since he has been in Washington he has traveled rather extensively each summer in Europe, the Near East, Egypt and the United States. He received the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity from Hope College in Michigan and from Rutgers College in New Jersey.

It was in his church that the body of William Jennings Bryan lay in state, and Dr. Sizoo preached the eulogy. Vice President Dawes and Dr. Sizoo are very warm friends. Gen. Dawes never missed a Sunday while Vice President if Dr. Sizoo's church.

During his ministry the church has been enlarged and more property has been bought for parish house equipment. A few years ago Mrs. Robert Lincoln presented to the church the Lincoln Memorial Tower, including the chimes and clock.

Dr. Sizoo has just been unanimously elected member of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church. He has also been appointed a member of a special committee making a survey of the problem of marriage and divorce.

It is a singular historic fact that the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church traces its history back through 128 years and Dr. Sizoo is the seventh minister in that succession.

Fire Department Promotions Listed

Captain and Two Lieutenants Are Assigned to New House.

Lieut. C. L. Satterfield, of No. 25 Engine Company, was promoted to the rank of captain in the Fire Department by the District Commissioners yesterday and will be assigned to command of the new No. 31 Engine Company, soon to be put into service at Connecticut avenue and Everett street.

To fill the vacancies created by promotion of Liston and Stein, Privates R. E. Hunt and M. S. Mason were promoted sergeants and eighteen recruits were appointed to the Fire Department with grade of privates. They are James A. Giant, Joseph T. McGlynn, Hugh C. Hoy, Frank M. Hodge, Earl Johnson, Joseph C. Reynolds, George L. McConnell, Uriah M. Westbrook, Paul J. Lynch, Jesse C. Arnold, Henry M. Carver, Wilbur B. Carmalt, Ernest A. Brust, George L. Goodenough, James F. White, Robert A. Loftis, Clarence J. Short and Wilbur Lee Brown.

Hearing on Packers' Consent Decree Ends

Six weeks of hearing on the petitions of Armour & Co. and Swift & Co. for modification of the packers' consent decree came to an end yesterday. The case ended with the testimony of five witnesses who rebutted charges that there was a lack of competition in prices in territory around Vernon and Amarillo, Tex.

The packers are seeking a modification of the decree signed in 1920, and alleged that changed merchandising conditions have made such an order necessary. More than 100 witnesses testified during the hearing, and testimony of another 100 was admitted by stipulation.

DAISY DEVOE ADMITS THEFT, ALLEGATION against Miss Daisy Devoe for embezzling money and property belonging to Miss Clara Bow.

"The matter was regularly referred to Blayney Matthews, chief of the Bureau of Investigation. After several days of investigation he reported that Miss Devoe had made a 30-page confession of the theft of $35,000 of Miss Bow's money and property, a great deal of which was found in her possession.

"It is the policy of this office, before issuing a complaint against a private citizen, to investigate thoroughly and completely the case in order to prevent a mistake or miscarriage of justice. This investigation was completed today and this office has no other alternative under the law than to place the matter before the grand jury."

Friedman said Miss Devoe would surrender as soon as formal charges were filed. The attorney denied the 30-page document was a "confession" and said it simply was a "complete account of what has been going on."

EIGHT BODIES FOUND IN LYONS DISASTER

Water Hampers Excavation in Hill-Slide Debris; 100 Still Buried.

SHORING UP IS PLANNED

Lyons, France, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—The bodies of two women, crushed beyond recognition, were lifted today from the ruins of one of the twelve houses destroyed yesterday by a landslide along the slopes of the Fourviere Hill.

It brought the number of bodies recovered to eight, but as the work of excavation among the debris proceeded, it appeared the number of those killed in the catastrophe might exceed estimates.

The working crews were hampered by water from broken mains.

Mayor Herriot, greatest of the optimists, said he thought not so many bodies remained in the wreckage, for relatives of those reported missing had not been inquiring today in any great numbers and he assumed they had found those whom they had feared were lost.

Engineers decided today that the entire Fourviere Hill must be shored up permanently to prevent a repetition of such a disaster as that which has overwhelmed the city, and plans for the work already have been begun.

Meanwhile, digging in the ruins must go on for several days longer, for it is probable that nearly 100 bodies are still buried.

Two historical landmarks disappeared when the earth slipped out from under buildings in the Hill district. The Chemin Neuf, an ancient road in the center of the area, was opened in 1562 by Baron Des Adrets as a link between the lower and higher parts of the city and after the siege of Lyons.

The old Hotel Petit Versailles, on the Rue Tramassac, which now is a pile of fallen masonry, served as an inspiration to the rollicking Rabelais for many of his writings.

A statute of the Virgin rests peacefully on a ruined wall, and it has become a shrine.

BAPTISTS CONFER IN CITY NEXT WEEK

Sunday School Work and Mission Included in Long Program.

WILL LAST THREE DAYS

The Columbia Association of Baptist Churches will hold its fifty-third annual meeting with the Grace Baptist Church, at Ninth street and South Carolina avenue southeast, next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The officers of the association are the Rev. Samuel Judson Porter, moderator; W. W. Everett, vice moderator; S. G. Nottingham, clerk, and George B. Bryan, treasurer.

The main features at the Tuesday morning session will be the reading of the letters from the churches, and the enrollment of delegates. In the afternoon reports from all the boards and institutions of the association will be read, and an address by the Rev. Gove G. Johnson. On Tuesday night there will be exercises by the children of the Baptist Orphanage. A roll call of the Sunday schools, conducted by E. B. Shaver will be followed by an address on "The Youth and the Age," by the Rev. Austin K. DeBlois, president of the Eastern Theological Seminary.

Address by Miss Tate.

The session on Wednesday morning will be in charge of the Woman's Missionary Association of the District, and in addition to devotional exercises conducted by Mrs. Grant M. Hudson and reports, addresses will be made by Miss Helen Tate, missionary to Spanish-speaking people in New York City, and Miss Kathleen Mallory, corresponding secretary of the Woman's Missionary Union of the Southern Baptist Convention.

The main feature on Wednesday afternoon will be an address by the Rev. S. D. Bawden, missionary to the Lone Star Mission, India, and in the meeting Wednesday night two addresses will be delivered by Miss Kathleen Mallary on the "World We Know," and by W. C. Coleman, former president of the Northern Baptist Convention.

The annual sermon of the association will be preached on Thursday morning by the Rev. H. M. D. Jones, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, and the three out-of-town speakers for Thursday afternoon will be the Rev. J. W. O'Hara, superintendent of mountain schools, Southern Baptist convention; Dr. Henry T. McDonald, president of Storer College, and Miss Kathleen Mallory.

For Young People.

Thursday night will be given over to the consideration of young people's interests, and an address will be rendered by the Rev. Henry Alford Porter, pastor, First Baptist Church, Charlottesville, Va., on "You Are You."

One of the principal features of this annual session will be a men's banquet at 5:30 Wednesday evening at the Grace Baptist Church, and in connection with the dinner W. C. Coleman, of Wichita, Kans., will conduct a conference on "The Place and Work of Men in the Modern Church."

The chairman of the program committee is the Rev. F. W. Johnson, pastor of the entertaining church, and associated with him are the Rev. Samuel Judson Porter, S. G. Nottingham, Dr. Henry W. O. Millington, E. B. Shaver, Mrs. O. D. Howe, Mrs. E. E. Richardson and Fred Braugh.

Howard Buildings To Cost $770,000

New dormitories for women at Howard University will occupy an entire block. There will be three buildings, accommodating 345 students. The cost will be $770,000. Plans have been prepared by the university staff of architects headed by Albert I. Cassell. The area will be landscaped and special features added to make it ideal for women's residence.

Ground for the dormitories, adjacent to MacMillan Park, is part of the land originally owned by Howard University, on which have been residences of the faculty of the school of religion. These dwellings, which have historic interest, have been moved to the university campus, together with adjacent top soil and sod, and serve to beautify the Fourth street entrance.

The contract for the project was awarded the Maiatico Construction Co. as the lowest of ten bidders, the difference between the lowest and highest bids amounting to $80,000. The committee of awards consisted of Dr. Emmett J. Scott, secretary-treasurer of Howard University; James F. Gill, chief of the buildings division of the Department of Public Buildings and Public Parks; Albert I. Cassell, university architect, and P. H. White, of the Interior Department.

Six Bids Are Made To Raze Old Mart

Lowest Is $5,725; Work Will Not Be Started Before January 1.

A bid of $5,725, submitted by H. Herfurth, Inc., was the lowest of about a dozen bids for razing the old Center Market opened yesterday in the office of James A. Wetmore, Supervising Architect of the Treasury.

The contract is to be awarded soon, but work of tearing down the old building on Pennsylvania avenue, between Seventh and Ninth streets cannot start until after January 1. Work is already under way on construction of the new farmers' market unit of the Union Market Terminal on Florida avenue, between Third and Sixth streets. This is planned as a private enterprise to replace the Center Market, which is to be removed to make way for the new Internal Revenue Building. The project was indorsed by the Farmers Association, representing more than 2,000 dealers, and a contract for construction of the building, which is to cover 5 acres, was awarded to Warren P. Brenizer Co. for $15,000.

Resignation Announced Of Rector C. Sparling

Having accepted a call to Lexington, Ky., to be dean of Christ Church Cathedral, the Rev. Christopher Sparling, rector of the Church of the Prince of Peace, has announced his resignation. He will take up his new duties January 1.

During the nine years of his pastorate, Mr. Sparling has built a new parish house, one of the finest in the diocese, and also a fine rectory. A beautiful stone altar has also been installed. The membership of the church has more than doubled.

SENTENCE SERMONS

By Rev. Samuel Judson Porter, D. D.
(Pastor of the First Baptist Church.)

CALL TO WORSHIP.

LIKE the notes of an Angelus bell the call to worship comes to us from the conversation between the divine Master sitting weary by the wayside well and the Samaritan woman who had come to draw. The call is threefold, springing from three statements—two of them uttered by the woman, one of them by the Master Himself:

The Call from the Past: "Our fathers worshiped." Belonging to a mixed race whose worship was sadly cluttered with superstition and paganism, this woman's consciousness of the past was stirred by the Lord's appeal to her better nature, and suddenly she remembered that her forebears had been given to worship. Whatever else we may be able to get away from, we still belong to our race, and their best customs pursue us hauntingly. For us all, out of the hallowed past comes the call to worship, as we remember those who lived before us and who found in the sanctuary, it may have been the humblest "meeting house" hidden in some quiet rural spot, consolation and strength and hope for their trials and toils, and who now sleep in the churchyard awaiting the "resurrection of the just." "Our fathers worshiped"—it is a glorious heritage not to be scorned.

The Call from Within: "Men ought to worship." We are so natured that, when we worship, we are functioning on our highest possible level. To neglect worship means that our noblest powers are left to lie unused and undeveloped. The fish is designed to swim in the sea, the bird to fly in the air, the eye is made for light, the ear for pleasant sounds, so the soul of man is made for God and must pine in unrest till it rests in Him. We live too low, if we do not break our narrow earthly confines, and rise like the chrysalis to move in the upper regions of light and sweetness—and this we do in worship. "I will fly," said Sidney Lanier, "I will fly in the greatness of God, as the marsh hen flies in the freedom that fills all the space betwixt the marsh and the skies."

The Call from Above: "The Father seeketh such to worship Him." The whole story of the Gospel is a story of gentle, persistent, loving seeking. The shepherd seeks the lost sheep; the father seeks his lost child; God seeks wandering men to come back and worship and enjoy Him. It has been said that a man is "lost" when he has drifted away from the place where he belongs and the person to whom he belongs and is in danger of not getting back. He is "found" when he gets home to the place that knows him and the persons who care for him. The heavenly Father cares and seeks to bring men back home.

Noted British Women Ban 'Old Maid;' Seek Substitute

Miss Ishbel Macdonald Prefers "Bachelor Girl," While Dame McIlroy Thinks "Spinster" Best; Latter Sees Marriages for Love on Increase.

London, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Two of England's best-known women are agreed that "old maid" is not the proper way to speak of an unmarried woman. But they are in dispute conserning a substitute.

Miss Ishbell MacDonald, daughter of the premier, said at the opening of the unmarried women's exhibition today that she preferred the term "bachelor girl."

Said Miss MacDonald:

"Women are entitled to be called bachelor girls, rather than be regarded as failures in the marriage market. I am greatly annoyed when people, discussing some attractive girl, remark that she would 'make a good wife.' And they wonder why she doesn't marry.

"People don't seem to realize that a girl, because she is nice and has common sense, is not going to become a 'good wife' just for any one. Her choice has been much reduced by the war."

Many girls, she added, prefer professions now open to them rather than the alternative of "humdrum married life."

"I don't mean that all married life is humdrum," she went on. "But it may appear so to some girls, compared with careers and a bachelor life of their own."

Dame Louise described "spinster" as a "good old-fashioned English word," much preferable to the modern term. She also expressed the opinion that there are many more "love marriages" now than there were in the Victorian era, because girls now are independent "and don't have to accept the first proposal."

Dame Louise expressed approval of the use of cosmetics.

"Girls used to have either brains or beauty," she said. "Nowadays they have both."

Atlanta Bank Director Resigns.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Col. Luke Lea, newspaper publisher, announced today that he had resigned as a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta. His action was taken, he said, so that he might give his entire attention to his own affairs. The resignation is effective today.

NO DEFICIT NECESSARY.

The country will not hear with any satisfaction the news that Senator Smoot favors restoration of the full income tax as a means of avoiding a slight deficit. There is reason to believe that Senator Smoot will not be supported by a majority of Congress when the facts are fully developed. It may be agreed that a deficit will occur if Congress makes extraordinary appropriations to relieve unemployment while failing to retrench in more or less unnecessary Federal activities, and if the Treasury continues to turn enormous sums toward the reduction of the national debt.

But it is not necessary to incur a deficit in order to speed up employment. Payments upon reduction of the public debt can be made smaller. The public is hard pressed and needs all the tax relief that can be given. Business is having a hard time in keeping its employes paid. Throughout the whole business community there has been a splendid spirit of cooperation in maintaining wages and in avoiding lay-offs. It is now the Government's turn to cooperate, not by exacting higher taxes, but by remitting taxes and by temporarily cutting down the huge payments upon the public debt. Some legislators hold that payments on the public debt are so fixed that there can be no reduction—that the sinking fund arrangements are inviolable. This is pure nonsense. Congress can cut down the size of debt payments for a while, whenever it desires to do so.

The references to a possible deficit, emanating from President Hoover as well as from Senators Smoot and Reed and Representative Byrns, are possibly intended to put a damper upon the enthusiasm of reckless legislators who are about to propose extravagant appropriations for the relief of the unemployed. It is well to discourage reckless proposals, but at the same time the public should not be made to fear that Congress will be stingy in unemployment relief legislation. The millions who are bearing a heavy load with courage and hope should not be discouraged by the prospect of a deficit and extra taxation, when by readjustment of public debt payments generous provision can be made for relieving the jobless while at the same time avoiding both a deficit and extra taxation.

The present generation is being made to pay more than its just proportion of the cost of the war. Posterity will receive benefits from what this generation has done in sacrificing life as well as property in prosecuting the war. There will be more taxpayers in the future than at present. The Government's income will be greater, and the annual installments on the public debt can be more easily met. International relations do not require rapid extinction of the public debt, while the domestic situation certainly calls for the easing of the burden at this time.

While plans are being laid for providing work through appropriations for public works, the Navy should not be forgotten. The security of the United States depends upon its prepared strength. A treaty has been made which recognizes the right and duty of the United States to build up its Navy to a certain level. Recently a body of pacifists met in Washington and adopted a resolution urging "restraint" in building up the Navy, as a pacifist example to other nations. This resolution strikes a note that is abhorrent to Americanism, because it aims at enfeebling the defenses of this country. But it also strikes a false economic note, by urging that the Government, while men are jobless, shall refrain from engaging in the most important public works of all—the upkeep of the national defense. Naval construction within the limits of the treaty would set hundreds of thousands of hands at work, and the product of their labor would be assurance of peace and safety to the country.

President Hoover has given full assurance of this Nation's peaceful intentions. Now if he will give equal assurance that the United States intends to remain strong enough to protect its people, and will ask Congress to provide special funds during this distressed time to expedite the building of necessary warships, he will help the unemployment situation and fortify the country's sense of peace and security.

All the money required for expansion of public works, including warships, can be made available without increasing taxes or incurring a deficit, if Congress will command the Treasury to cut down the installments upon the public debt for the time being.

ARMY-NAVY FOOTBALL.

The administration has not been able to solve the multitudinous problems connected with disarmament, and the unemployment situation and the economic depression continue to be vexatious, but at least the Military and Naval Academies have been brought together for a post-season football game in New York on December 13.

It is true that the breach has not been permanently healed. "This game," says Gen. Smith, superintendent of the Military Academy, "is a special game for charity and has no relationship to the canceled contract between the academies or to the existing athletic situation between them and is not to be considered as a resumption of the contract."

"As the game is played for charity," remarks Admiral Robison, of the Naval Academy, "the present status of athletic relations between the two academies will remain unchanged and no question of eligibility rules need be considered."

To Grover Whalen, late police commissioner of New York, is accorded chief credit for negotiating the rapprochement. With Mr. Henry W. Taft, Col. Cornelius Wickersham, Col. R. C. Patterson and Col. Edward Underwood, of the Salvation Army, Mr. Whalen visited the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy and finally the President, and asked them to bring the two service teams together. Many difficulties had to be ironed out. Neither team had a "free" date on its schedule. There was the question of frozen ground late in the season. Midyear examination at both academies begin around the 10th of December. But Mr. Whalen succeeded in his important mission. The game will be played.

The purpose, of course, is worthy. It is not unlikely that $500,000 will be raised through the game, a sum that can be utilized to good advantage to mitigate distress during the winter.

Despite the reservations by the heads of the academies, the charity game may lead to a resumption of athletic relationship between the two schools. Possibly next year Mr. Whalen or some one else, by appealing to the Cabinet, the Diplomatic Corps, and foreign governments will negotiate a complete accord between the academies, to the end that the Army-Navy football game may again become an annual event.

LOWER TAX SHOULD BE RETAINED.

Senator Reed is pessimistic over the prospects of continuing the 1 per cent reduction on income taxes. He forecasts a Treasury deficit where the administration had hoped for a surplus, and doesn't see the slightest chance of continuing last year's rates.

Representative Wood, chairman of the House appropriations committee, is more hopeful. His program is to match the reduction in revenue with economy in the budget. In this way he believes it will be possible to maintain the 1929 tax rates without creating a deficit. Budget estimates will be hewn down. Rigid economy will be applied everywhere, except in the building program for relief of unemployment.

There is no reason why the expenses of the Government should not be trimmed down proportionately with the revenue. The cost of materials has been reduced, and the Government can erect buildings for less money than has been authorized by Congress. The Treasury is obtaining credit at a remarkably low figure—1.72 per cent interest annually. Prospects are good for an early increase in revenue, both from incomes and from customs receipts. Payments on European war debts will augment the total funds available.

The most direct way in which Congress can contribute to an improvement in business conditions is to maintain this tax reduction. Congress will be swamped with quack remedies for the depression and unemployment, and the advocates of such projects will be opposed to reduction. But any direct appropriation from the Treasury for the benefit of the unemployed at the expense of the taxpayers would unquestionably prolong the period of depression. Relief through the tax rolls is a positive contribution; relief by any method approaching the dole would subsidize idleness and throw another impediment in the way of recovery.

A year ago when Congress considered this question of tax reduction members of both houses were encouraged by the approach of an election year. Now they have no such incentive, but the country has much greater need of taxation relief than it had then. The way in which legislators handle the question this year will test their sincerity in voting last year for a reduction just before the beginning of their campaigns for reelection.

Congress can find a way of making the 1 per cent reduction effective on 1930 incomes if it so desires. Rigid economy would no doubt make the lower rates possible without reduction of payments on the national debt. But public opinion would approve a slowing up on liquidation of the war debts for the purpose of aiding business recovery.

If Congress fails to continue the tax reduction, any other program it may adopt for relief of the unemployed will prove ineffective. A move to increase the number of men on Government pay rolls while at the same time restricting business improvement is progress in the wrong direction. By and large the program for relief of the economic situation will be judged by Congress' action on the tax rates.

EDWARD P. LOWRY.

The United States diplomatic service lost one of its most energetic and useful men in the death of Edward P. Lowry, Second Secretary of the American Embassy at Mexico City. Maj. Lowry, who was only 43 years old, was killed in an accidental fall from a balcony. His untimely passing is especially tragic because of the promise of achievement he had shown in the diplomatic field.

Maj. Lowry first made a name for himself in the Army. Having fought in the Philippines and the World War before he began his diplomatic career, he gained a broad experience in many lands. As United States Consul at Guadalajara he won the confidence of the Mexican people and demonstrated remarkable aptitude for the foreign service. His work as second secretary to Ambassador Morrow, especially his inquiry into the Mexican agrarian situation, was invaluable to the Government.

The career of Maj. Lowry lends encouragement to any young man who wishes to enter the foreign service. He had no fortune, but rose to a responsible position by virtue of his native ability, his attractive personality and his untiring industry. Even though his career was cut so short, the life of Maj. Lowry will continue to be an inspiration to ambitious young men who wish to devote themselves to the diplomatic service.

Those two New York women who haven't been out of their hotel room for five years probably have a miniature golf course on the floor.

Gen. Ludendorf predicts war in 1932. Really, he's too wrought up over the American prohibition controversy.

A MILLIONAIRE FARMER

From the Red Cross Courier.

Permission has been granted the Courier to print a letter received from a large-scale farmer in North Carolina by a Red Cross field representative. The letter, in part, follows:

"You will recall the hail devastation in July when the wind and hail beat out my screens and sashes, and blew down big limbs and stuck them through the top of my house; and blew down several of my outbuildings, tore up my grape vines, and blew away my crop of peaches, apples, pears and pecans, and tore up the trees very badly. Last, but not least, it tore up every hill of everything I had planted, consisting of a variety of garden vegetables and staple crops.

"But I pulled off my coat, rolled up my sleeves, pulled off my shoes and socks, rolled up my breeches, threw my old coat one way and my hat the other and went to work and planted the most of my land again. It came up and took a good start and grew. And about the time I was getting happy about my second crop the army worms came along and ate them up in a night's time; but I still didn't give up and planted a lot of late vegetables after the devastation of the army worms, and I will tell you about them later in this letter.

"On a Sunday morning I walked out to my pasture and in crossing the footlog that led to the pasture I slipped in the creek with my Sunday clothes on, and lost my eyeglasses in the scramble, which cost me $22 to replace them.

"My old gray horse ran into a wire fence and broke his leg and he had to be killed.

"A friend of mine gave me a half-ton of fertilizer and I sent my boy after it and in crossing the street-car track he broke my wagon and it cost me more to have it fixed than the fertilizer was worth.

"Stray dogs have killed and crippled about half my sheep and killed one of the finest registered hogs I ever had.

"My boy had an automobile wreck and I investigated it myself and decided that he was all in fault, and repairs for both cars and other little incidental expenses relative to the wreck all cost me about $100.

"My wife's sister lives with us and she had to go to the hospital for a complication of troubles and was operated on, and I have had to hire extra servants and nurses and doctors to wait on her, which I am very glad to do, as she is really the brains of the whole family, for we all love her and look upon her as the 'Chancellor of the Exchequer.'

"Strange to say, we are milking three fine cows and are picking snap beans, lima beans, corn, okra, and are digging a few sweet potatoes. We have a fine lot of late watermelons that sprouted from the stubbles left by the hail. I have an acre in rutabagas and an acre of late winter varieties that are as fine as I ever saw for the time of year. I have plenty of wheat yet and enough bacon to last us until next year this time, and enough hogs to make all the meat we will consume next year if they have good luck.

"I just wanted to drop you these few lines to let you know that the E. family were still millionaires, eating three meals a day, and so happy when we know that we are getting so much more than we are entitled to. And if you know anybody that is hard up and having a hard time and needs money, and is not making enough to pay taxes and fertilizer bills, don't send them to me as I don't care to associate with people that are always complaining when, in fact and truth, Hades would be a lot worse place to live in than eastern North Carolina in the hail district.

"I apologize to you for this long letter, but after all I have written the half has not been told."

The Red Cross worker writes: "I went among the stricken families with Mr. E. Although he was the heaviest loser of them all, his cheerfulness was infectious. He always had a ready word of comfort, and you could watch their expressions of real misery change to hopefulness. And he is sharing food supplies with the neighbors, thereby inspiring them in service for others."

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

OLD BILL IN MONEY MATTERS.

Old Bill's attitude to money
In these careless times seemed funny.
Bills disturbed him, debts upset him,
Owing money used to fret him.
Large or small the obligation
From the very day he made it,
This was Old Bill's exclamation,
"I can't rest until I've paid it!"

If he owed a hundred dollars
Old Bill stuck to saw-edged collars
And the "good-enough-to-do" things,
Saying, "I can't strut in new things,
Put on airs and manners breezy
Just to make a pretty showing.
I don't feel the least bit easy
Meeting people I am owing.

"Good friends tell me not to worry,
Just forget it; do not hurry,
Take your time; pay when you can,
That's no way to be a man.
Friendship can't be kept with small ways,
Though they mean it when they say it;
What I owe to friends is always
On my conscience till I pay it."

Owing money made him fretful,
Ill at ease, but not forgetful.
None could coax him to evade it,
He'd not rest until he'd paid it.
And I think we'd all be better
And our friendships stronger builded
Could we say of every debtor
That he worried just as Bill did.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

My dear Louise:

Now that you are in college, home seems a dreary and deserted place to your mother and me. We think of you most of the time, and of course worry about you more than we should.

We might console ourselves in some measure by adopting one of the thousands of little kids that need homes, but the thought of assuming responsibility for another one—studying it and experimenting with it and planning endless strategy to shape its character—fills me with dread and misgivings.

Not for words would I again face the alternative of punishing a wee child or permitting it to develop faults and weaknesses to handicap it through life.

If there is any way to train a child and keep it free of temper, impudence, disobedience and deceit without some form of punishment, I have yet to discover it. True, I have seen children whose fond parents said they were "raised on love instead of punishment," but it was a mystery to me how anybody could love them.

I had to punish you. Sometimes, when your red-head temper was yet undisciplined and you persisted in disobedience, I switched you. It wasn't much of a switch—a shoot of privet half the size of a pencil—but to you it must have seemed a fearful weapon, and the look of pleading in your eyes so unmanned me that I could scarcely lift it.

That look has haunted me for years, and always will. You must punish them, my dear, to save them from misery in years to come; but oh! it is a cruel duty, and I shall not willingly assume it again.

Whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth. There doesn't seem to be any other way to save loved ones from the devil. You know numbers of youngsters who are making a mess of their lives for want of discipline.

In college you have discovered new rules and new ways of punishment. So many minor offenses make a major; so many majors result in the loss of privileges and liberties. I wonder if you have a minor yet? In any case you have discovered that wherever you go you are surrounded by laws and the breaking of laws is followed inevitably by some kind of punishment.

There wouldn't be any jails if punishment wasn't the hand-maiden of virtue.

You can't break any law of God or man without paying for it, Honey. When you violate the law of common sense there's a bill to pay.

Common sense urges you to avoid exposure while you have that cold. Don't be dumb enough to risk bronchitis or pneumonia for the sake of a little fun now. The fine is too heavy. Love,

DAD.

PRO AND CON

Various Aspects of Political Issues Discussed by the Press.

South Will Accept a Wet.
Houston Post-Dispatch.

The South may be reluctant to accept Roosevelt, but nothing is more apparent than that the Northern element in the party is laying its plans to ignore the South. The Northern-Eastern wing lacks little of having enough votes in its control to dominate the convention, and if the wets want Roosevelt, it is hard to see what will keep them from having him. And the odds are against any States in the South bolting the Democratic nominee again, even though they do not like him. For two reasons: They are still smarting under their disappointment in the Hoover administration, and leaders are apt to be scarce or another bolt. The chastisement that has been administered to Democratic leaders who directed the anti-Smith campaign in 1928 will discourage party leaders in the future from risking their political skins in another excursion outside the party.

If the wet trend keeps up, there would seem to be no reason why serious obstacles should arise in the path of Roosevelt to the nomination.

A militant and uncompromising dry, Richard Yates was under condemnation of the wet majority from the opening of the campaign. In Chicago, especially, he was marked for slaughter. Precedent demanded that the wets put him out of commission, and his escape from execution can be likened to the delivery of Daniel from the den of lions.

We suspect that a large proportion of the Yates votes were cast by wets in admiration of his consistency. They couldn't find the courage to put the steel into the heart of a fighter who stood by his guns and refused to run.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

To The Editor of The Post: Sir—I note there is creeping into the newspapers from time to time criticism of our good traffic system. Just who is it that is behind this sniping at our traffic rules?

The burden of the message seems to be that we must be like Oskaloosa, Brick Court House, and other well known seaports. Just why must the Nation's Capital copy towns with canal path streets?

If you want to find out something about the inside left-hand turn and the way it works, take an automobile trip as I have done this summer to Philadelphia, New York and intermediate points. Ask most any policeman you come to, particularly the giant in City Hall Square, on Broad street, Philadelphia, what he thinks of the inside left-hand turn.

Anybody will discover immediately that the reason why most cities use it is because of their narrow streets. They cannot make any other turn.

What a fine mess it will be when we have to line up in the middle of the street to make our left-hand turn, and then discover that the fire engine is coming across the street or up and down the street we are trying to get out of. Where do we go then?

The policeman in City Hall Square in Philadelphia told me that, as near as he could figure it, 90 per cent of the automobile accidents are due to the left-hand turn. If you know Philadelphia and its narrow side streets you can understand why they can't do anything but what they must do. How foolish to make left-hand turns in front of autos, taking your chances as in New York!

Must this great city, with its wonderful boulevards and avenues, go to a stupid left-hand turn, that is compulsory for physical reasons in cities that were laid out without any vision? Surely we do not have to copy the cities that were laid out when most of the streets were cow paths.

Let Washington be the model in this regard as it is now. We do not have to copy anybody in anything, unless the thing copied has proved merit. Let us not allow anybody to force something upon this city because of the physical disability of other cities.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of November 12 I read an article stating that Alderman Robert L. Flagg, of Richmond, hopes to bring about the dismissal of 45 married women in the employ of the government of the city of Richmond because their husbands are also employed in that city government. I immediately wrote the enclosed letter, which I should appreciate if you would print.

MRS. HARVEY W. WILEY,
Chairman, National Council, National Woman's Party.

Dear Sir: As chairman of the national council of the National Woman's Party I write to protest against the action sponsored by you, mentioned in The Washington Post, to dismiss married women from employment by the City of Richmond because their husbands also receive salaries from the Richmond city government.

The only grounds upon which to dismiss an adult human being engaged in a gainful occupation is incompetence, we hold. Whether that person is a man or woman, whether that person is married or single has nothing whatever to do with the question. Moreover, ability to do the job well should be the only criterion for holding a job.

Unless when engaged a woman is warned that dismissal will follow her marriage such an action, we believe, is illegal. But to prevent marriage is unsocial and contrary to public morals. Women are in industry today not for "pin money" nor for extra luxuries but for economic necessity to aid in the support of their families, whether such families comprise parents and brother and sister or whether they consist of husband and children.

We believe the right to work is an inalienable right of every human being whether necessary or not. It is a right as important to health and morals as life and liberty. We trust that the City of Richmond will not make the fact of sex or marriage the pretext of committing a grave injustice and of violating the American principle of fair play. Very truly yours, MRS. HARVEY W. WILEY.

Immediate Pyament of Soldiers' Bonus by Bond Issue Suggested as Cure for Depression.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have outlined to President Hoover a plan that will restore prosperity to the country within 30 days.

Let the Government pay off the war veterans' bonus certificates now, in Liberty bonds if the cash is not available. This will put the equivalent of $3,500,000,000 in the hands of 4,000,000 citizens scattered throughout the Nation; more ready money than any similar group of plain people ever had before in the history of the world. They will start building homes, buy furniture, clothes, automobiles, &c.—start the business ball rolling in such a huge way that its very momentum would keep it going for years.

A 3 per cent interest rate would keep these bonds at par in today's easy money market. Of course, Mr. Mellon objects to all this, pointing out the annual interest charges of $105,000,000. However, we know definitely that our Government takes in much more than $105,000,000 extra in income taxes and customs receipts in a prosperous year than it does in a year of depression such as we are now passing through. Furthermore, the loss in our total national income for this year alone, as compared to last year, will be at least twice the entire amount of these bonus certificates.

The Nation's business needs a stimulant now. WILLIAM CORMAN,
Detroit, Mich.

BUDGETARY LIMITS ON ARMS INDORSED

Commission at Geneva Votes Adoption of Plan Fought by United States.

SPONSORED BY BRITISH

Geneva, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—The preparatory disarmament commission, after three days of debate, adopted today the British proposal which sets forth that a majority of the commission associates itself with the principle of land arms limitation by the budgetary method.

The vote was sixteen to three, with six abstentions, including the United States, which, through its representative, Hugh S. Gibson, previously had declared the plan unacceptable.

Ambassador Gibson today explained that he was obliged to abstain from voting, as he would have preferred the commission first to have placed itself on record as to whether there really was a majority in favor of budget limitation.

Text of Resolution.

The British resolution, as presented by Viscount Cecil, reads:

"A minority of the commission associates itself with the principle of limitation by budgetary methods of land war material, while recognizing that certain members would prefer the direct method by specific enumeration, and that certain members would desire to see some combination of the two methods."

Viscount Cecil explained that its purpose was to put an end to the long debate by summarizing the sentiment of the commission and to leave the way clear from submission of rival proposals dealing with the limiting of materials.

Germany, Italy and Russia voted against the resolution. The abstentions, in addition to the United States, were Sweden, Turkey, Venezuela, Bulgaria and China.

Take Up French Plan.

The next matter before the commission is consideration of the French proposal that the budgetary method be placed in the hands of a group of experts for study. The results of this study would be reported to the various governments before the convening of the general disarmament conference.

The day's session again was enlivened by an exchange of remarks between Rene Massigli, the French delegate, and Maxim Litvinoff, the Russian representative, who yesterday had a verbal tilt with Viscount Cecil.

Massigli, in urging adoption of the budgetary method, asserted it was the simplest. Litvinoff, pouncing on this idea, declared if simplicity was the object of the commission, it would find that the simplest thing was no disarmament at all. The next simplest, he said, is just to limit in a single sphere.

Held in Inverse Ratio.

"Simplicity," he cried, "is in direct inverse ratio to disarmament. We must recognize that disarmanent is not a simple thing."

He reiterated his contention that budgetary limitation would not touch existing war materials, nor those accumulated up to the moment the convention was signed. He insisted that the budgetary method would place the industrially weak or undeveloped countries at a disadvantage, since they could not get so much for their money as the strong industrial states.

Before adoption of the British proposal, the commission voted down resolutions offered by Italy and Russia and polled a tie vote on a German proposal.

The German plan, submitted by Count von Bernstorff, was for direct limitation by enumeration of war materials. It resulted in a tie vote, 9 to 9, with seven absentations. Among those voting for the resolution was the United States.

The Italian and Russian resolutions were somewhat similar, each proposing a combination of budgetary and direct limitation.

Called One Effective Way.

Litvinoff, in offering his resolution for simultaneous application of the two methods, asserted, "it is the only effective means of reducing and limiting war materials." The vote was 12 to 5, with the United States voting against the proposal. Those in favor, in addition to Russia, were Germany, Italy, Holland and Turkey.

The Italian resolution, drafted with a view to detailing how to apply direct and budgetary limitation in combination was defeated by a vote of 11 to 9. Mr. Gibson abstained from voting.

The commission took note of the attempt on the life of Premier Hamaguchi, of Japan, and expressed its profound regret. N. Sato, the Japanese delegate, thanked his colleagues for their consideration.

District's Park System Needs $600,000 in 1931

Maintenance of the District's park system will involve an annual expenditure of $1,000,000 or more by 1946, it was estimated at a meeting yesterday of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission to study probable requirements for a fifteen-year program.

The amount needed next year will be $600,000, approximately, and this amount will increase steadily each year, although, it was pointed out, the estimates beyond the first four or five years must necessarily at this time be "strictly nebulous."

Lindberghs Are to Attend Hoover's Child Conference

(Associated Press.)

Aviation, the Lindberghs' guiding star, may be in semieclipse for a few November days while a pair of very prominent parents, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, consider another big, broad subject—child health and protection.

Seldom has any other interest than aviation—as a science, as a business, as a recreation—drawn the famous flying colonel into a crowd.

But the Lindberghs have accepted President Hoover's invitation to attend his White House child conference, starting Wednesday.

Several times the guest of President Hoover at his summer camp and at the White House, Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh may have become interested in the conference because it is a project close to the President's heart.

Then again——

What's best for babies in general has been worked out for the conference by 1,300 child experts—the most up-to-date information anywhere available.

Plenty of chances will be afforded for the parents to pick up a few pointers, applicable to one baby in particular!

Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., born June 23, is now almost 5 months old. In their reports, the child experts have laid great stress on the special needs of children from the age of 6 months to time-to-go-to-school.

Nursery schools, such as baby Lindbergh's aunt, Elizabeth Morrow, conducts, were pronounced a great advantage provided they are scientific in their supervision.

"But parents as well as teachers need instruction in how to supervise," the preschool specialist said.

In which case, Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh, who plan to fly to the conference, will set an excellent example.

BUTTS MADE VERY UNEASY BY RAIDS UPON SENATORS

The employes in the stationery room frequently deliver supplies to senator's offices. Sometimes the deliveries are made in the late afternoon after the senator and his staff have left for the day.

Never Ordered to Raid.

No one in the Prohibition Bureau ever ordered me to try to get into the office of a member of the Senate and look around for bootleg liquor. Since I knew that "the Man in the Green Hat" was coming to the Senate Office Building every day to make deliveries, I naturally concluded that the liquor he brought in was stored away in the offices of senators to which it was delivered. My instructions from the bureau did not call for confiscating these supplies.

During the four months I operated as an "undercover" agent in the Senate Office Building, three other prohibition agents were assigned at different times to cooperate in putting a stop to bootlegging on Capitol Hill. One of these agents, as I have related, worked with me for a few days in the Senate stationery room. Otherwise the activities of these agents were entirely independent of me, so that I can not speak of what they did out of my own personal knowledge. I do not know what their instructions were and never saw their reports, but I would be very much surprised to learn that any of them made the raids which some of the senators complained about.

Assignment Was Delicate.

When a prohibition agent has probable cause to believe that bootleg liquor has been delivered to an ordinary office, oftentimes the agent will make a search of the premises. We all understood, however, that our assignment to Capitol Hill was a delicate one. Any agent who searched the offices of a senator or congressman in the absence of instructions from the bureau would have been foolhardy, in my opinion.

Another fact regarding my operations in the Senate Office Building which I wish to make entirely clear is that I did not try to put any member of the Senate or any Senate employe in a hole.

It is true that after I succeeded in trapping Cassiday the list of his customers among members of Congress was seized when the arrest was made. This list was filed with the Prohibition Bureau in the Treasury Department and held there during the next five months before the original copy was turned back to "the Man in the Green Hat."

Along in April when I was finishing up my work in the Senate Office Building the Attorney General was appearing in the Supreme Court on a couple of cases in which the Government had sought conviction in the lower courts under the Volstead act against purchasers of bootleg liquor.

Purchaser Not Criminal.

The court decided later on that a purchaser does not commit a crime in obtaining liquor from a bootlegger. I suppose this cleared up the status of any senators or congressmen whose names had been found on Cassiday's customer list when the fake order I gave from the stationery room on February 10, 1930, resulted in his delivery and order of liquor at the Senate Office Building and the seizure of his list.

I never received any instructions from the Department of Justice while I was in the service. All my instructions came from the headquarters of the Prohibition Bureau, in the Treasury Department, and I tried to carry them out to the best of my ability. As I understood it, my position was like that of a police officer, a soldier in the Army, or any other person on the Government payroll. I was a year under age when I went to work on Capitol Hill but that only increased the responsibility I felt and I tried my best to perform my mission without asking any questions of my superior officers.

I kept the secret of what I was doing well enough so that no one outside of the Prohibition Bureau and the officials at the Senate discovered what I was doing in the Senate Office Building until six months after I had left there.

It was not until Vice President Curtis and Commissioner Doran had confirmed the report that I had been working on Capitol Hill as a prohibition agent that I decided to tell my story. I was assured that it was entirely proper for me to relate my experiences since I had left the service, in August, provided that I gave the unvarnished truth regarding my activities as a prohibition agent. This I have tried to do in presenting this series of articles to the public.

Man Enters Guilty Plea To Slaying by Blaze

James Hickson Williams, Negro, pleaded guilty yesterday before Justice Oscar R. Luhring in District Supreme Court to charges of second-degree murder in connection with the death October 3 of Miss Jessie Cammack, who was burned to death in the Denver Apartments fire. Williams recently pleaded guilty to four charges of arson, one of which involved the Denver Apartments blaze.

The Negro was indicted last Tuesday on a charge of first-degree murder, but United States Attorney Leo A. Rover permitted him to plead to the lesser crime. Justice Luhring has referred all the cases to the probation office and it was indicated that the Negro might escape with a 20-year sentence, the minimum on a second-degree murder charge.

Man Is Given 20 Years In Slaying of His Wife

Frank Cozzens, Negro, must spend the next 20 years in jail for slaying his wife, Fannie Cozzens, last August 11.

The sentence was meted out yesterday in District Supreme Court by Justice Jesse C. Adkins. The Negro pleaded guilty to second degree murder, although indicted on a first degree charge.

Second-Degree Murder Plea Brings 20 Years

Amos Mungo, Negro, yesterday was sentenced by Justice Oscar R. Luhring to serve 20 years in the penitentiary. The colored man pleaded guilty recently to a charge of second degree murder in connection with the death of Spofford Blackwell, Negro, last April 20.

Mungo was indicted on a charge of first degree murder, but was permitted to plead to the second degree charge.

BLOOD THRICE GVIEN JAPANESE PREMIER

CABINET SHIFTS HALTED

Tokyo, Nov. 14 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Sleeping quietly tonight in the imperial hospital here after three blood transfusions, Quko Hamaguchi, Japanese premier, shot Friday by an assassin in the railroad station as he prepared to attend the military maneuvers at Okayama City, appeared to be recovering from his injuries.

Removal of the bandages and an inspection of his wound made while he slept under the influence of a narcotic, indicated that there is little danger of peritonitis or of other complications within the next few hours.

Although the official bulletins are noncommittal, Premier Hamaguchi's physicians are hopeful of his recovery and at headquarters of the Minseito party which he represents, the prediction is that three weeks will see his recovery.

Meanwhile, reorganization of the cabinet, which seems probable due to the premier's incapacity, is in abeyance. The speculation was that War Minister Ugaki, entitled by his cabinet rank to take over the duties of acting premier, may pass on the honor to Foreign Minister Shidehara, on the ground of ill health.

Sagoya's Past Investigated.

Investigation of the 23-year-old assassin, Tomeo agoya, developed little today. At police headquarters he admitted membership in the Aikokusha, the patriotic association of a minor reactionary group.

Belief that the premier's economic policy led to the present depression in Japan is advanced as the motive for the attempted murder.

In the two transfusions at the hospital today, Yadanji Nakajima, Hamaguchi's private secretary, gave his blood for his chief and the 60-year-old statesman appeared to rally as a result.

The first transfusion was performed in the station master's office yesterday before Hamaguchi was taken to the hospital, with the premier's son, Iawne, giving the blood.

X-ray examination disclosed the bullet embedded in the pelvis. An operation early in the afternoon revealed eight perforations of the small intestine, of which some eight inches were removed.

Local Anesthetic Used.

A general anaesthetic was not administered, and during the afternoon Hamaguchi remained conscious and able to talk.

News of the shooting reached the emperor at Okayama City and he immediately ordered every assistance given to the stricken premier. His personal physician was ordered to attend.

With the recovery of the premier reported probable and the announcement of the minseito party acting as an offset to political confusion, the stock market was little affected by the attempted assassination.

SCHOOL PROJECTS WILL BE ADVANCED

Construction of 12 Buildings to Be Rushed to Relieve Jobless Situation.

REPAIRS ALSO HURRIED

Completion of school buildings and additions will be advanced fro mthree to five months under a ne wschedule arranged yesterday by the District Commissioners in order to relieve the unemployment situation.

Under the new program, twelve schools are slated for completion next year, with two more early in 1932, and any further practical method of advancing the work which may be found will be put into practice immediately, it was stated by Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, in a letter to the Board of Education.

The advanced schedule was prepared by the Commissioners in response to a suggestion by Harry O. Hine, secretary of the Board of Education, who called attention of the Commissioners to the resolution adopted by the school body early this month, urging that all repair and new construction work on schools be expedited as much as possible to provide jobs for jobless workers.

Maj. John C. Gotwals, Engineer Commissioner, now is completing conferences with the Board of Education regarding repairs or minor alterations to school buildings which might be carried out, and as soon as funds can be made available, these jobs will be rushed to completion.

Approximate dates of completion of new buildings as set forth by Commissioner Reichelderfer yesterday are: Gordon Junior High addition, November 16, 1931; Powell Junior High addition, November 21, 1931; Stuart Junior High addition, October 21, 1931; Hugh M. Brown Junior High, February 5, 1932; Roosevelt High, August 1, 1932; Congress Heights addition, July 11, 1931; Young Platoon, Northeast, September 1, 1931; Deanwood addition, July 23, 1931; Whittier addition, July 16, 1931; Broad Branch road, June 15, 1931; Crosby Noyes, Tenth and Franklin streets northeast, June 1, 1931; Horace Mann School, Wesley Heights, June 15, 1931; Authony Bowen addition, September 1, 1931; and Western High athletic field, September 15, 1931.

TROOPS IN STREETS KEEP HAVANA QUIET

END OF DISORDERS SEEN

Havana, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Havana's normal atmosphere of peace had returned today after the series of student disorders which resulted yesterday in suspension of the constitution for the city and the establishment of martial law.

Troops patroled the streets, challenging suspicious persons and forbidding public gatherings, but since 10 o'clock last night, when a 14-year-old boy was fatally wounded, the situation has been extremely quiet.

Physicians reported improvement in the condition of Arturo Tagle y Soria, a relative of former President Menocal, who was wounded last night when police dispersed a band of students. His chances for recovery appeared excellent, and the American consul was permitted to take a deposition from the patient.

No disorders of any kind were reported today and the government was confident the situation would be cleared within a day or two.

President Machado told the Associated Press today that he had received word from Gen. Alberto Herrera, chief of staff of the Cuban army, stating that conditions throughout the island were quiet.

Ambassador Guggenheim said that the embassy here did not contemplate any action in the situation. He believed that normalcy would be restored within a few days.

DO-X FORCED DOWN AT SEA OFF FRANCE

transferred to the penal settlements off the South American Coast, the Do-X cast anchor to ride out the night, cradled gently by the swells.

The Do-X will take off for Bordeaux early tomorrow morning.

Hectic Day Is Result.

The Do-X's adventures furnished a hectic day not only for those on board but for those on land watching its progress.

Even this morning, when the big ship left the Calshot Air Station in England, several false starts were made before it could be lifted from the water. This was caused partly by the heavy fog which veiled the coast and even prevented some of the passengers from reaching Calshot in time. Robert Hartmann, Lady Grace Drummon-Hay, newspaper correspondent, and another reporter were left behind, the DO-X thus taking off with only 24 persons aboard.

Thereafter the progress of the hugh seaplane was difficult to follow. The plane's wireless was so infrequently picked up that it was believed the apparatus could not be working and a confusion of reports poured in.

One was that the ship had landed at St. Nazaire. This was soon disproved, but details of the landing off Les Barges were difficult to obtain. As the ship neared La Rochelle, rumors spread that it had pulled up to the city and discharged its passengers for the night, but this also was disproved and it was not until several hours later that the real story of the day's flight became known.

These events caused aviation experts here to compliment the builders of the DO-X, for the big ship—it is as much a ship as it is a plane—showed it was able to descend on the water and ride through difficulties that might have brought disaster to other types of aerial craft.

There was some speculation here tonight that the DO-X might omit its visit to Bordeaux and hence speed the journey to Lisbon, whence the departure for the United States will be made, but no definite information on that point could be obtained.

Couple Asks $35,000 Auto-Crash Damages

Capt. and Mrs. C. C. Calhoun, of Braemur Forest, Chevy Chase, Md., filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court, seeking to recover $35,000 damages from Joseph A. Howard and his wife, Effie Howard, of 4109 Seventh street northwest, as the result of an automobile accident.

Capt. and Mrs. Calhoun told the court that the accident occurred April 6, 1929, at Twelfth and L streets northwest. Attorneys Frank J. Hogan, Edmund L. Jones and George E. Edelin appear for the plaintiffs.

Sister Shares Reeve Estate.

Ruth E. Jones, a sister, of 1445 Massachusetts avenue northwest, receives one-third of the income on a trust fund from the estate of Kate B. Reeve, according to her will, filed yesterday for probate in the surrogate's court at Brooklyn, N. Y. Miss Reeve died October 16, leaving "more than $10,000." She formerly lived in Brooklyn.

FOUR MEN KILLED IN MADRID RIOTING

Then, as quickly as it had begun, the fight was over and the rioters were routed.

The troubles came just as the city had settled into contemplation of more peaceful days to come, following the king's indorsement, two days ago, of plans for the first parliamentary elections Spain has had in seven years.

When the excitement had subsided the funeral services which had preceded the riot were continued and there was no further disturbance at the cemetery, where police guards had been established.

Tonight, however, strong patrols were in the streets, although the authorities did not expect a recurrence of the disorders.

$1,000 Damages Sought For Injuries in Crash

William J. Shea, of Fairmont street northwest near Thirteenth street, who is under indictment in Virginia on a manslaughter charge in connection with a fatal automobile accident last September 7, was named defendant in a suit for $1,000 damages filed yesterday in Municipal Court by one of the men alleged to have been injured in the crash.

Joseph Podruchny, of Sparrows Point, Md., the plaintiff, alleges he was seriously injured in the crash. Maurice "Mickey" Kelliher, widely known Washington athlete, was killed in the accident. Attorneys Nathan and Sidney Needle appear for the plaintiff.

Miss Hawes Is Bride of Mr. Preston

Couple Already on High Seas After Capital Ceremony.

THE wedding of Miss Eppes Hawes, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Harry B. Hawes, of St. Louis, and Mr. Lewis Thompson Preston, of New York, took place yesterday at noon in the presence of a small company of intimate friends of the bride and bridegroom. The ceremony was performed in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Curtis. Senator and Mrs. Hawes have been in their Washington home only a few days, having hastened their arrival to attend the wedding yesterday. The Rev. Dr. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives where Senator Hawes served several terms, officiated, and a wedding breakfast followed immediately after the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and wore a gown of white satin trimmed with bands of silver, the same trimming appearing on the long train. Her full tulle veil was held by a wreath of silver leaves and she wore long white gloves, the gown having no sleeves. She carried the ivory-bound prayer book carried by her great-grandmother, the late Elizabeth Giles, at her wedding. A shower of fresh orange blossoms was attached to the book with dainty silver ribbons.

Mrs. Allan A. Ryan, jr., of New York, formerly Miss Janet Newbold, of Washington; Mrs. Pillott Stuyvesant, of New York; Miss Peyton Hawes, sister of the bride, and Miss Laura Elisabeth Curtis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis, were the bride's attendants. They were dressed alike in gowns of yellow velvet, made with very long skirts and short coats, tied in front. Sable fur banded the edges of the short sleeves and they wore sable velvet berets, with short gloves to match. They carried bouquets of Talisman roses.

Pauline Curtis, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis, was the flower girl, and wore a quaint frock of yellow velvet, made in the empire mode, with an old-fashioned bonnet of the velvet trimmed with a soft ostrich feather of brown. She carried a gold basket filled with old-fashioned flowers. John H. Merriam, jr., and Larry Hume were pages and carried white ribbons to mark the aisle.

Mrs. Joseph Harriman, of New York, was the best man. The ushers were Mr. Crawford Hill, Mr. Walter L. Carey, Mr. W. Allston Flagg, Mr. Thomas N. McCarter, Mr. Frederick S. Whitlock, Mr. Edward M. McIlvain and Mr. Carter B. Carnegie, of New York; Mr. Rodman Wanamaker and Mr. Charles E. Clark, of Philadelphia, and Mr. Duncan E. Thayer and Mr. George Cabot, of Boston.

Mrs. Hawes, mother of the bride, wore a costume of maroon colored velvet, with a medium size hat of felt in the same color and a corsage bouquet of orchids.

After the wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Preston left for New York and sailed at midnight for Africa, where they will hunt big game. On their return to this country they will make their home in New York.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. Lewis Preston, uncle of the bridegroom, and Mrs. William Preston, his sister-in-law, both from New York; Mrs. Allan Ryan, who is passing a few days at the Mayflower with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fleming Newbold; Mr. and Mrs. Rodman Wanamaker, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Carey, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCarter, Mr. and Mrs. Crawford Hill, Miss Jane Sanford, Mrs. Adele Van Rensselaer, Miss Marian DeRhan, Mr. Lewis Thompson, Mr. Oliver Perrin, Mr. Robert Newman and Mr. W. S. DeRhan.

Italian Ambassador To Fete Count Volpi.

The Ambassador of Italy, Nobile Giacomo de Martino, has sent out invitations for a dinner at the embassy on November 19 in honor of Count Volpi di Misurati, former Italian minister of finance, who will arrive in Washington on Tuesday.

Senator Joseph R. Grundy, of Pennsylvania, arrived in Washington yesterday for a short visit.

Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, arrived in Washington on Thursday.

The Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Walter Ewing Hope, and Mrs. Hope, will introduce their daughter, Miss Marian T. Hope, to society in New York at the Colony Club on November 28. Miss Hope will also have a coming out party in Washington, the date to be decided later.

Maj. and Mrs. T. J. Camp have come from Fort Leavenworth to Washington. Maj. Camp is stationed at the Army War College. They are at home at 2319 Tracy place. Mrs. Camp is the sister of Miss Julia Mattis, who was hostess for their uncle, the late Senator William B. McKinley, and who since his death has continued to make her home here.

Mrs. William C. Meloy, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. David A. Greenlees, has joined Dr. Meloy in Philadelphia where he is taking a post graduate course in medicine at the University of Pennsylvania.

Mrs. George W. Steele, jr., wife of the naval attache at the American Embassy in Paris, entertained at her monthly Tuesday afternoon at home last week at her residence in the avenue Pierre-Ier-de-Serbie. Among the guests were several well known in Washington, Mrs. Steele's former home. Some of those glimpsed were Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Thaw, jr., Maj. Robert Le Grand Walsh, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Alsop and Miss Carolyn Nash.

Mr. and Mrs. McClure Kelley are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son, Andrew McClure, in Aurora, Ill., where they make their home. Mrs. Kelley was formerly Miss Theodora Catalani, niece of the Second Counselor of the Italian Embassy, Signor Giuseppe Catalani, and made her debut in Washington several seasons ago. Shortly after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Kelley moved to Aurora to make their home.

Turkish Diplomat Returns From Abroad.

The Counselor of the Turkish Embassy and Mme. Bedi Bey returned to this country yesterday on the President Roosevelt after passing the summer abroad. They came to Washington last evening and are at the Hay-Adams House.

Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, widow of the former Ambassador to the Court of St. James, is recovering from an optical operation at the Presbyterian Hospital in New York.

Mrs. Reid, recently placed Ophir Farm, her country estate at Purchase, N. Y., at the disposal of King Praja Dhipok and Queen Rambai Barni of Siam for their occupancy during their visit to this country next spring.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Ormond Lawson-Johnston have arrived in New York from their home in London, and will remain in New York several weeks before coming to Washington to open their country home, Kentsdale, for the winter.

Mrs. George Grant Mason, jr., daughter of Mrs. Lawson-Johnston met them in New York having come from her home in Havana to spend ten days or a fortnight with them in New York.

Senator's Daughter Married

MRS. LEWIS THOMPSON PRESTON was before her marriage yesterday Miss Eppes Hawes, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Harry B. Hawes, of St. Louis. The wedding took place in Washington at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Curtis.

Clarks Leave Next Monday For Mexico

Ambassador Will Return to Post Where He Aided Mr. Morrow.

Mr. J. Reuben Clark, jr., Ambassador to Mexico, will leave Washington on Monday accompanied by Mrs. Clark, to take up his duties at the city of Mexico. Mr. and Mrs. Clark have already formed many friendships in the Mexican capital as a result of prolonged sojourns, during which Mr. Clark acted as counselor to Ambassador Morrow. The American colony is preparing a welcome reception to the new Ambassador and his charming wife.

Ambassador Clark has been busy at the Department of State for the past few days receiving his final instructions. He paid a tribute yesterday to Mr. Edward P. Lowry, second secretary of the American Embassy at Mexico City, whose recent death by a fall terminated a remarkably successful and promising career. He was especially useful in the embassy on account of his knowledge of Spanish and wide acquaintance with Mexican officials throughout the republic.

Senora de la Barra, wife of the First Secretary of the Legation of Bolivia, Senor Don George de la Barra, has gone to New York to attend the horse show and will remain two weeks, after which she will visit friends on Long Island, returning to Washington at the conclusion of her visit.

Dr. and Mrs. Dye Sojourn in Capital.

Dr. Alexander Vincent Dye, Commercial Attache of the United States Embassy at Buenos Aires, and Mrs. Dye, who were married in Cleveland on Tuesday, have arrived in Washington, where they will spend their honeymoon.

Dr. Dye has been in the Government service since 1909, when he served as consul at Nogales, Mexico. After several years in business he reentered the service as commercial attache at Mexico City and later was transferred to Buenos Aires. Mrs. Dye was before her marriage Mrs. Alice McHardy Byrnes, of Cleveland.

Mr. Raul Diez de Medina, who last week resigned his position as Secretary of the Bolivian Legation to become an associate editor of the Pan-American Magazine, has been decorated by the Government of Cuba with the Order of Carlos Manuel de Cespedes with the rank of officer of first class. Yesterday he received the insignia from the Cuban Embassy in Washington.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Ernest Lee Jahncke, returned to Washington yesterday from Buffalo and New York, where he went to address an Armistice Day banquet of the American Legion and a meeting of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers.

Senator and Mrs. Smoot Arriving Today.

Senator and Mrs. Reed Smoot will arrive in Washington today from their home in Grove City, Utah, and will open their house at 4500 Garfield street for the winter.

KNOWN BUT

NOT ANNOUNCED
● Visitors from all over the world enter the Presidential Dining Room of The Mayflower and are instantly recognized by Fred, the genial maitre d'hotel. Fred just happens to be one of those persons with an unfailing memory.
● It was back in gay Vienna where hearts are cheered by the flow of the Danube and frothing Pilsner that Fred, as a boy, got started on this memory business. As his career progressed with service in the leading hostelries of London, Paris, Montreux, Geneva and other famed cities, Fred continued his habit of always getting out the correct name. And quite a few syllables he had to utter sometimes, too.
● Fred knows thousands of persons from every walk of life and they all know him. He also knows food and personal likes. He knows how a meal should be served and insists that the waiters follow his instructions.

Service Dance Is Attended By Navy Chief

Secretary C. F. Adams Presented to Guests by Admiral.

The first of the annual series of Navy and Marine Corps dances, always popular with the older officers of both services, was held last evening at the Willard, when ranking officials and their wives turned out en masse for what proved to be a highly successful party.

Numerous small and congenial dinner parties preceded the dance. Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Rufus H. Lane entertained a company at the Willard as did Commander Carrol S. Graves, retired, and Mrs. Graves, who entertained at their house on Idaho avenue. Others giving dinners were Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Norborne L. Rawlings, their guests, including Commander and Mrs. R. M. Warfield, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Oscar Badger, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Joseph Fowler, Lieut and Mrs. Wallace Dillon, Lieut. and Mrs. Wallace Sylvester, Lieut. and Mrs. L. Knakern and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harman.

Lieut. and Mrs. Henry R. Delaney had as their guests Commander and Mrs. E. H. Tennett. Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. A. W. Chandler, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. John R. White, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Theodore M. Waldschmidt, Lieut. Comdr and Mrs. S. O. Clayter and Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. James I. Rott.

Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Paul Richmond entertained Mr. and Mrs. Claude Dudley.

Capt. and Mrs. William H. Bell had in their party Rear Admiral Robert M. Kennedy, M. C., Mrs. Middleton Semmes Guest, of Annapolis; Lieut. and Mrs. Royal K. Joslin, M. C.; Lieut. and Mrs. Ralph S. Riggs and Mr. and Mrs. William Wrightaon.

Senator-elect James Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, is in Washington, having come to file a case before the United States Supreme Court.

Mr. Josephus Daniels, former Secretary of the Navy, and Mrs. Daniels are at the Grove Park Inn at Asheville, N. C., for a visit, having gone there from Raleigh.

The weekly hunt of the Riding and Hunt Club will take place today at 2:30 p. m. at Bradley Farms. Maj. William M. Grimes will be M. F. H. with Mr. Percy Neipold and Mr. Chester A. Gwinn as whips.

On Wednesday morning the first live hunt of the season took place at Bradley Farms. Quite a large field followed the hounds. The live hunts will be held Wednesday of each week at 8 o'clock with the drag hunts every Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Bradley Farms.

Among those who have engaged hunters to be sent out for the hunt today are Mr. John Finerty, Mr. Marshall Emmelous, Mrs. Burdette Wright, Mr. Norcio, Miss Elizabeth Martin and several Holton Arms School girls.

Mr. and Mrs. George Holmes Cushing will present their daughter, Miss June Cushing, at a ball December 10 at the Mayflower instead of at a tea dance.

The State committee of the Sons and Daughters of the Republic of the D. A. R. will give a theater party to the children who are members of their several clubs this morning at 9 o'clock, at the Fox Theater to see the picture, "The Big Trail."

Mrs. Minnigerode Andrews To Give Studio Talk.

Invitations have been sent out for a talk by Mrs. Minnigerode Andrews on the "History and Making of Silhouettes," Saturday afternoon in the studio of Miss Clara Hill, 6 Dupont Circle, when Miss Elizabeth Sawtelle, who recently returned from Ogunquit, Me., will show a few of her recent paintings.

Judge Milton D. Purdy and Mrs. Purdy have arrived in Washington and will be at the Highlands during their month's visit here. They have come from China where for five years Judge Purdy has been a member of the American Court in Shanghai. They are taking a vacation before completing the ten years of his appointment. Judge Purdy has been doing brilliant work, and reports from China are filled with praise of all he has accomplished in smoothing out difficulties and bringing order out of chaos in his particular field.

Judge and Mrs. Purdy are former residents of Washington, although their home is officially in Minneapolis, Minn., Judge Purdy having served as Assistant Attorney General a number of years ago.

Mr. Arthur Bradley Campbell will arrive in the Capital City today. Mr. Campbell is the son of the Marchioness of Huntly, formerly Mrs. James McDonald, of Washington.

Mrs. Armstead Davis has returned to Washington for the winter and will be at the Anchorage.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THOSE desiring to be transported to Spain may do so tonight by twirling the dial to WRC, at 6:15 o'clock for the Spanish program to be given by the Gas Light Co. ensemble.

Hereafter on Saturday nights, the ensemble will take its audience to different foreign countries.

Ted Husing stepped into a drug store telephone booth in New York to call the studio. He was considerably surprised to hear central say, "Pardon me, but aren't you Ted Husing, the radio announcer?"

Dicky and Blue Boy, the canaries on Cheerio's program, are back on the air after two month's moulting. They are also singing each morning with the Parnassus String Trio.

"OVER the radio or from the front row, Toscanini can often be heard singing, singing furiously with his crow's voice, with the orchestra," Olin Downes, New York critic, observed recently.

The great Italian conductor will lead the New York Philharmonic tomorrow afternoon. The complete programs for this and the Philadelphia Orchestra concert, directed by Stokowski, immediately following, will appear in Sunday "Dial Flashes."

Senator Henrik Shipstead, from Kandiyohi County, Minn., will be the National Radio Forum speaker tonight (WMAL, 9:30 o'clock). Senator Shipstead will discuss "Future National Legislation."

Requests for selections to be played on the organ by Otto F. Beck may be addressed to him at the Rialto Theater. Mr. Beck plays each Thursday evening at 11 o'clock and Saturday mornings at 9 o'clock over WRC.

William C. "Bill" Munday, jr., the football talkster, whose work apparently pleases the fans, is recovering from an operation on an infected toe, which has been hampering him considerably.

Not a member of Phil Napoleon's "Memphis Five" Orchestra hails from Memphis, and Phil, himself, has never so much as seen the city.

Back in 1917, when the orchestra was organized, it was the vogue to name jazz bands after some city. "Memphis Five" was selected for no other reason than because it was short and snappy, and seemed to fit the pulse of jazz.

WHILE common abroad, where musical presentations are broadcast without regard to length of time, the playing of Beethoven's "Ninth Symphony" under the conductorship of Howard Barlow Wednesday night, was one of the longest and most ambitious classical radio performances of the season. It lasted for an hour with only the briefest intermission for announcements.

The ninth was Beethoven's last symphony, and in addition to the orchestra, called for a choir of mixed voices. Beethoven was totally deaf at the time he composed it and never heard the work except in his mind.

Musicians in Washington were warm in their praise of the reading of the symphony given by Mr. Barlow. Boyish in appearance, this promising conductor is still only in his thirties. Slight of figure, in a light gray business suit, as we saw him recently in New York, he was in appearance far from the popular conception of a conductor of a large symphony orchestra.

Dare Interprets the Mode

New York, Nov. 14.

"I TELL you I made 'em myself, hon-est-lee, officer!"

Well, he took a couple of looks at my "nacre" covered finger nails, you know, that new silvery mother-of-pearl varnish that is so delightfully unreal and useless looking, and whether he decided I hadn't made them (the dolls, not the fingernails) or not, or that I was just getting away with murder anyhow and he had better nab me for something, he made me pay so much duty on my three Parisian boudoir dolls that I have respected them ever since—the boudoir dolls, not the officers!

Not that Parisian boudoir dolls don't stand on their own merits—because they certainly do if they are chosen with good taste and, er—a steady hand. And I don't think there is anything more decorative in a completely feminine way than the boudoir doll or dolls that a lovely lady can toss into the odd corners of her boudoir or drawing room.

Especially the newest ones that have decided to have a flower-shaped skirt which spreads in a huge circle all around the doll when she is perched, usually, at the head of the bed after it is made up.

I have tried to illustrate one of those that I brought back with me today, but they don't draw up in cold pen and ink anything near as nicely as they really look. Anyway, it will give you an idea of the latest in boudoir dolls. n'est ce pas?

* * * *

No, it was not a fib that I told the customs officer, at least the one about this doll wasn't. I didn't make all of it, every single stitch—but I did design it and I did watch the French-maid-who-was-Spanish make it step by step, so that I could tell you later how to make a real French boudoir doll. You know, Christmas is only five weeks off—and there simply couldn't be a better appreciated gift than a boudoir doll for any woman of any age, size, weight or degree of social servitude.

So quick now, before it slips your mind, over to that writing desk to make out a stamped, self-addressed envelope to send to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the leaflet of directions for making the beautiful boudoir doll that spreads herself all over the place like an elaborate boudoir pillow! I promise you that outside of Paris you have never seen anything the least bit like this delightful "poupee." (poo-pay).

* * * *

Don't suffer from chill blasts from suddenly opened doors or permanently drafty windows this winter, when it is quite comme il faut to wear an unlined velvet jacket, or perhaps a lame (lah-may) or brocaded one under your outer wrap. Over the decolletage of her evening gown for good taste and real chic Miladi Elegante will wear some sort of a jacket, and it will contrast either in color, or if not in color, then in material.

The thing to do is to check your evening wrap with your escort's overcoat, however ravishing it may be, and go to your seat in the theater or in the restaurant with the jacket covering your arms and shoulders. You can even wear this jacket when dancing if you really want to—and that's what kindly fashion has done for fragile femininity this season!

* * * *

If you haven't sent your stamped, self-addressed envelope for that oh, so practical and easily made decorative "gadget" in which to keep your rubber bathroom accessories, you can send it today—the last day, though, and there are only a few of the leaflets left!

Tomorrow's the day again for Dare's weekly fashion letter in The Sunday Post. Do look for it.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

(Bureau of Dairy Industry.)

1 pint of milk
1¾ cups bread crumbs.
3 or 4 eggs.
½ pound American cheese.

Put the bread crumbs and milk together in the double boiler and heat to the scalding point. Grate the cheese, or shave it into thin, small pieces, and stir it into the hot milk and bread crumbs, but do not let it cook. Add the salt. Take this mixture from the heat. While it is cooling, beat the yolks and whites of the eggs separately and butter a baking dish. The souffle will cook best in a good sized earthenware or glass baking dish 3 or more inches deep. After the bread, milk and cheese mixture has cooled stir in the beaten egg yolks and fold in the whites. The air beaten into the egg whites makes the souffle fluffy; therefore, mix the egg whites in with a carefolding motion. Pour the mixture at once into the buttered baking dish and bake in a very moderate oven for 45 or 50 minutes. Long, slow cooking is one of the secrets of making a perfect souffle. The moderate heat makes the air bubbles in the egg whites expand until the mixture is light and cooks it thoroughly so that even when a spoon is put into it for serving it does not collapse like a pricked balloon. That is what happens to a souffle, omelet or other similar egg dish that has been cooked too rapidly at too high a temperature. Souffles are not hard to make if one remembers this important point.

WORK ON BRIDGE

(This article is intended for the Auction and Contract Bridge beginner.)

One of the things for the inexperienced Bridge player to remember is that when Declarer has an Ace in one hand and a Queen in the other, without the King, Jack or Ten in either, the only way in which he can win two tricks in the suit is to lead toward the Queen. (A player is said to lead through the hand on his left, toward his partner's hand and up to the hand on his right.) Many have a confused idea that in this situation a finesse can be taken by leading the Queen toward the Ace; but the result of that play is fatal. If the King is in the fourth hand it will take the Queen, if the King is in the second hand the Queen will be covered and only the Ace will win; but there is an even chance of making two tricks in the suit when it is played the other way. Take the following hand, for example:

It would be played with Spades the trump and South the Declarer; at Auction it probably would be one Spade, at Contract it certainly would be four. West would lead the Queen of Clubs, and after winning that trick Declarer would see that he apparently must lose one trick in each suit and fall to go game. Only by discarding South's Diamond Jack on North's Heart Ace can this be avoided; and the only way to obtain the discard is to lead small toward the Queen of Hearts and have the good luck to find the King in the East hand.

South should lead the Deuce of Spades to trick 2 and North is bound to win that or the next Spade trick (North playing the Six on the first Spade trick and South playing the Seven on the second) because North and South between them have all the Spades from King down to Six. As soon as North wins a Spade trick he should lead a small Heart and, with Ace in dummy, East would play the King. With the King played by East and at least one trump entry left in the North hand, game is assured.

Let us suppose that West passes the first Spade; North wins and leads a Heart to trick 3 which East wins; East leads another Club which South wins, leads the Queen of Hearts and then the Seven of Spades; West will win this, cash a Club and then force South with a fourth Club; South will ruff with one of his trump honors, and then put dummy in with a Spade to cash the Ace of Hearts on which South will discard the Jack of Diamonds.

GOOD NEWS, BRIDGERS.

We are pleased to announce we can now renew the offer of Milton C. Work's great Contract and Auction booklet entitled the PLAYING PROBLEMS. Bridgers who received copies from previous offers are most enthusiastic over it.

PLAYING PROBLEMS present eighteen hands, the complete auction and contract bidding for each hand with reasons for each bid, the answers to every question and the reason for each answer in complete detail.

PLAYING PROBLEMS which will be of much greater value to the auction and contract player than many high priced textbooks, is not for sale. It has been prepared exclusively for readers of this newspaper by special arrangement with Mr. Work. One copy will be mailed to you upon request if you send self-addressed, stamped return envelope, together with 6 cents in stamps to defray part of the cost of printing and handling this 48-page booklet. Requests not complying with these conditions will be ignored.

What Today Means to You

"SCORPIO."

IF November 15 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 2 p. m. to 4 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 10 p. m. The irritating period is during the morning, especially so between 10 a. m. and noon.

Portents for this date are favorable, both as regards finances and health. A meeting with an almost forgotten relative or friend will bring about good results, and evening conditions will be inspirational so far as affairs of the heart are concerned.

Children born on this November 15 will, as they mature, be very matter-of-fact, and not in the least imaginative or enthusiastic. They will be good citizens, cautious and conservative and possess ability, but they will never inspire that affection radiated by one less circumspect and more spontaneous.

If you could only realize that you can not build a reputation on what you are going to do, but only on what you actually accomplish, life for you would be more productive and more solid. You are a great dreamer, and a poor executant. It is not that you are lazy. On the contrary, you work hard, but the fact remains that your very active brain devises and plans, and there it ends. You lack driving force and the spirit of adventure. Yet, the signs denote that one of your dreams will be made to come true, and that you will participate in its material advantages. This will not happen, however, until you have wasted many years of what could be a very useful life.

Your early life promises to be a continual struggle to keep your head above water. You will be too interested in solving the problems of others to pay much attention to your own. Necessity will, at last, assert itself, and you will then "make good" for yourself and not for others.

Although you usually possess a rather abstracted air, you are a good companion, more a listener than a talker. You have a dry humor, which is diverting, but never harmful. You are capable of a steady, constant affection, but are not very much swayed by spasms of emotions. You, as husband or wife, will wear well, and your marriage will never bring in its train regrets or thoughts of "what might have been."

Peter H. Burnett, first Governor of California.

Wives of Tomorrow

—FRANCES M'DONALD—

Child Marriages.

The New York board of education has just reported the marriage of 463 girls in the schools below high school. While people of marriageable age are avoiding marriage as never before, infants are rushing into the lifetime bonds. In the State of New York a girl may marry at 14 with the consent of her parents. But few indeed make such marriages with parental consent. The girls look older than their years and deliberately falsify the record in obtaining a marriage license.

The misery and regrets that await these children is beyond words. It is the end of normal existence for them. Children in years and utterly unprepared for the responsibilities that immediately crush them to the earth, the unhappy little victims face life without even the will to fight for happiness. They are in the course of a few years bent and spent with the struggle. Their children fill the clinics. Rickets, anemia, all the procession of ills that are the result of lack of nourishment, and lack of stamina.

It seems so strange that we do not care. We would not see a child drown or suffer in any other way. But this seems not to bother us at all. Eventually the babies die. Suffer for months and then die. We would not see a kitten treated so. But children are different. Their parents have so-called rights. Supposedly the right to do as they please, marry at 14 if they care to, and have children whether they have money to feed them or not. The State says "We can not interfere with the rights of the individual." They do not say that when an "individual" decides he would like to kill. Then we interfere with his right to do as he pleases. Why, then, can we not interfere when his course is to mean the death of a helpless small creature, struggling for breath? Sixty-six babies in every thousand die. That is a terrible record. It is a terrible thing to see a baby dying from want. Dying because it never had a chance to live.

Some day we will wake up. Some day we will be civilized. We shudder at the thought of heathens throwing babies in the river. How much better are we? When we teach the young in the schools how to live and how to approach the future intelligently and prepared, there will be no more child-marriages, and no more babies dying because their parents were only babies themselves.

Nearly 500 girls under 16 married in one year. And naturally that means 500 boys who must leave school and try to find jobs and support a wife. Within two weeks most of them will wish that they had never seen each other.

Have those thousand children been fairly dealt with?

CHAPTER XXXXI.

It was with great relief that he regained the music room and found that the explorer was still missing. He was not the last to appear, at any rate. He must have appeared as usual; no one seemed to look at him strangely. Lady Gwendolen smiled, as always. He regained confidence from this; his inner turbulence gradually subsided. His mind became keener. He thought of ways in which he could make his innocence appear even surer if he should be questioned when the body was found. He was thankful that he had left it in that tiny room; it might go undiscovered for some time. Which would be all the better for him. He was restless and walked over to the window. The musicians were playing the Kreutzer Sonata, and it had a disturbing effect on his nerves. Then had come Lady Gwendolen's questions as to the whereabouts of her brother. It was then he had gone to the window and looked out into the garden. The flash of lightning had been an inspiration. He said almost unconsciously: "I think I see the light of his cigarette now!"

And he felt immediately freer. It was an alibi of a kind he had established for himself. It would be thought that Lord Winston was murdered after, not before, that hour. And from then on he would keep with the others. Lady Gwendolen had joined him, and he had felt freer than at any time before. Only the knowledge that he no longer had his talisman at his side disturbed him. The old fortune-teller's words would sound in his ears: "Mind you, man, hold on to your knife; keep it by you all the time, asleep and awake, as though it were your very soul; danger, great danger, threatens you with its loss. Remember that!"

This was all that had come out at the trial. Robin had often speculated on Flint's feelings during the coroner's inquest, when all the evidence so fatally pointed to the poet. Did Flint experience any qualms on that occasion; did he suffer any compunction whatsoever; or was he glad that Robin's flight had diverted all suspicion from him? Did he, in that interval of days, lose faith in the fortune-teller's prediction, and feel elated that his stars hadn't let him down? Anyhow, reflected Robin, in matters of fate it is ever too early to rejoice. You were a king one day, a beggar the next. . . . So it had been always . . . ever since the world began. . . Yes, even he, Robin Smith, a poet, that is a mere beggar (as far as worldly goods were concerned), still had hopes . . . Who knew what would happen to him on the morrow? . . . He had wild hopes, he knew, and yet . . . there was tomorrow, and ever tomorrow. . . . . .

Robin had worked himself into a state of nervous depression with these unpleasant reminiscences. He found he could not go on with the poem. Disconsolately he threw himself onto his bed, and soon fell into a troubled sleep, in which his nightmare was peopled with all the people of the tragedy.

A knock on his door awoke him with a start. For an instant he could not tell where he was, so recently in his dreams had he been in the little jail at Alston.

"Come in," he called automatically. The maid appeared.

"And it's 'appy you'll be when I tell you why I'm 'ere," she grinned at the bewildered Robin.

"I don't know what you're talking about," he said irritably.

"I know ye don't!" was the unruffled reply, with a broad smile. "But fer a sweet smile I'll tell you."

Robin scowled instead. The new maid who had been put on in his absence was a continual torment to him. She seemed to consider the most absurd things funny; in fact, there was little about him or his affairs which didn't amuse her.

"Ah, now, fer a sweet gentleman, yer looking very cloudy," she chided. "Ef ye know what's behind me ye'd laugh, surely."

Robin noticed for the first time that she had one hand concealed behind her back.

"If you have anything for me, please give it to me and go!" he said with extreme dignity. "I am busy."

"Busy with sleeping it is ye were," she chuckled. "Now what'll you give me fer the present I've got fer you?"

Robin was extremely annoyed. He had still a hangover from his unpleasant dreams. And he was feeling particularly poignantly the silence of his lady of dreams. It was now exactly 58 days since he had heard a word from her. To be accurate, he had neither seen nor heard directly from her since he left her and Lady Dorothy at the door to his lodging house on the afternoon on which he had regained his freedom.

On that occasion she had given him her hand, and he had thought there had been a tender look in those black eyes—as the days passed one another with no further word, he became less certain as to the tenderness of that look, and began to think it was entirely due to his own elated frame of mind. However, that might be, he had held the dear hand in his, held it long, and pressed it tenderly. He had said some halt-faltering things about her goodness and his eternal gratefulness, which she had waved aside with a half-smile. There had been a promise in that smile. At the time he went hot, then cold and trembly; but of the promise he was becoming less sure. And this continued and prolonged silence was making him desperately unhappy. Even the joy of writing good poems, for he felt that they were good; even the exaggerated praise of the critics had the power to move him only momentarily. It was for Lady Gwendolen that his heart was crying, as it was to her that his poems were singing. "To the Lady of My Dreams" he had called his new book of poems, and all of them were cries for pity and mercy, for love and happiness directed to that goddess.

But the goddess, in the person of a very alive and independent girl, knew nothing of all this and, apparently, cared nothing, for not even a message had she sent by the faithful Lady Dorothy, who visited Robin with unfailing regularity and dined and tea'd him on frequent occasions.

The little maid looked on Robin's back with a grieved bewilderment. The gentleman didn't seem to like her; it was strange. All the other gentlemen in the house liked her very much, indeed. She couldn't understand. In perturbation she threw the letter, for it was a letter which she had been concealing, straight at Robin's head. It missed its mark, however, and fell on the floor just as she slammed the door.

The slamming caused him to open his eyes just as the white missile sailed past him. He reached over and picked it up.

A delicate perfume met his nostrils; it was agreeable as it was unfamiliar. His heart gave a leap of hope.

The writing, too, was unfamiliar, but even as his trembling fingers tore at the envelope, he knew.

"Dear Robin," it commenced. His first name! His heart was beating at a suffocating rate! "Lady Dorothy is asking you out here for another weekend and promises you the best room in the house. I want to add my invitation to hers, and tell you that there is some one here who wants very much to see you often and know you better. Yours, Gwen."

"Gwen!" Robin gasped. "Gwen!" So he was admitted to the intimacy of her friendship. And, surely, there was promise of more. Was he mad, or had Robin Smith really a chance with Lady Gwendolen Winston? He hardly dared let his thoughts carry him so far. It seemed almost sacrilegious. Yet . . . he hoped. And as he read the letter again and again he gained new confidence. He jumped from the bed and started out over the fine old square. He felt like a king!

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood—A year and half ago Leslie Fenton, who was continuing in the movies the success he had made on the stage, left here for parts undetermined.

LESLIE FENTON

He told friends Hollywood life, with its hypocrisy and unreality, was distasteful.

He needed to get away also for his health's sake. He had been working hard and required a rest. When Fenton left he said he believed he might go to an island near Sicily to spend the rest of his days.

Early in 1929 Felton sailed on an Italian freighter for Genoa. But instead of going to the island he'd dreamed of, he started on a hiking trip, seeing most of Italy. From Venice he walked to Paris and, after several weeks there, he again put on his hiking boots and walked to Berlin.

Homeland.

He finally arrived in England, his home country, improved in health, and there he played in several pictures. But Fenton again tired of acting and spent several months more walking on the continent, supporting himself by writing newspaper articles.

Now he is back in Hollywood, probably with the idea of taking it less seriously, as it should be taken, and, at least, much improved in health. He is starting over again because a new crop of leading men has sprung up.

Coincidentally, his first role is in "The Man Who Came Back." But, oddly, he doesn't make an appearance in the picture. Fenton's voice is heard often, but he never is seen.

Even Extras.

Even the extra player is feeling the difference that the talkies have made.

In foreign locale scenes, background conversation, such as is supplied by extras, must be authentic. A director rehearsing a scene in a French hospital tuned his ear for the "atmosphere conversation" and heard more buzzing in English than in Gallic, and so dismissed those who couldn't speak with some semblance of French.

It appears that the $7.50 player should also know languages. But when will the average extra, who spends the three days he isn't working each week looking for something to do, have time to study? And on an average salary of $22.50 a week?

John Barrymore sketches while idling. He generally draws heads of odd and queer characters he has seen. The one exception to this is frequent sketching of his wife, Dolores Costello.

Community Chest Plans To Meet "Emergencies"

Newbold Noyes, who recently agreed to continue as head of the Community Chest's special gifts committee, yesterday announced plans for meeting an "emergent situation." "We are going to have to raise more money this year than was contributed in 1930," he explained. "Statistics received from chest cities in all parts of the country show substantial gains in the amounts raised as compared with 1930, and in almost every instance analysis of the pledges show that increased larger gifts are largely responsible for these gains."

Chest officials pointed out that there was a consistent gain in gifts of $500 or more in the 1930 campaign over the 1929 drive, not only in the amount of money contributed, but in the percentage of the total pledged.

Station WOL Regains Its Permanent Status

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me the names of the inclosed specimens. V. L.

I am so sorry, but the specimens were mostly dry powder when they reached my desk. No. 2, however, could be identified; it is a species of celosia (cockscomb).

Please tell me the cause of large cracks in the soil of a new lawn. It is not caused by lack of fertilizer. At least, I used a goodly supply of such material. MRS. HENRY B.

Your lawn was established without proper attention being paid to the amount of rolling it received before it was seeded and even after the seed was sown. A new lawn, in order to prevent settling and cracking, should be rolled several times from north to south, south to north, east to west and west to east and then diagonally. You can not roll it too much. The only way you can get rid of these openings is to roll it in the late fall and again in the early spring before the grass has started to grow.

Please tell me the name and necessary care of the plant of which I am inclosing a leaf. J. L. K.

Leaf was from a alternanthere, a plant used for carpet bedding. Keep the plant well pinched back. Pinch the centers out of the shoots every two or three weeks to improve the shape of the plant. Keep it growing in rich soil, in a sunny location and give it water daily.

Please tell me the proper varieties of ferns to use to fill a fernery for winter house decoration. Shall I set the pots in the fernery or is it best to plant them in the box? What kind of soil shall I use? A neighbor suggests filling around the ferns with moss. If her suggestion is practical what kind of moss shall I use and where may I purchase it? Will climbing or trailing vines add to the charm of the fernery? Can you tell me where to get practical and very definite information regarding the planting of trees on a building site?

KATHERINE M.

Pteris ferns are well suited for ferneries for table use. For larger ferneries such as are used for winter ledges, Teddy, jr., Scotti or Boston ferns may be a wiser choice, all depending on the height you want. Pteris ferns are all low-growing varieties, rarely attaining a height of more than 10 inches. Plant the ferns directly in the box, provided there are holes in the bottom through which the excess water may flow. Use a soil composed of good loam, sand and manure in equal parts, or one of leafmold. Use no moss and water the plant about once in two days. The box will do better without any trailing vines. Better consult a landscape architect regarding trees for a building site.

Please tell me the usual height of a dahlia. Mine are 10 feet tall and still growing. C. J. N.

A dahlia usually attains a height of 10 feet.

Please tell me whether it is possible to offer pansies such protection that they will live in the winter in the open. Unfortunately I haven't room for a cold frame. ALICE P.

Yes, provided they are planted in a protected, sunny situation. Cover them in winter with pine boughs and leaves or straw.

Baked Pheasant.

1 pheasant
4 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon celery salt
1 cup water
1-3 cup fat

Wash and clean pheasant and cut into serving pieces. Sprinkle with flour, salt, paprika and celery salt. Heat fat in baking pan, add and brown the pheasant. Add water and lid. Bake 1 hour in moderate oven. Baste frequently.

Wild Rice.

2 cups rice
8 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
1-3 cup butter

Wash rice and soak for two hours in water. Add salt and cook for 1 hour in a double boiler. Stir frequently with a fork. Add the rest of the ingredients and cook for 5 minutes. Serve at once.

Cheese Relish Filling For Twelve Sandwiches.

2-3 cup yellow cream cheese
2 tablespoons chopped celery
2 tablespoons finely chopped onions
2 tablespoons catsup
¼ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons salad dressing

Mix ingredients and spread upon thinly cut buttered slices of white bread. Arrange sandwich fashion and toast until well browned. Serve at once.

Clean the sink with a cloth which has been dipped in kerosene. Rinse well in quantities of boiling water.

Your Name
WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, PH.D.

THE family name "Hale" may be traced back to three English sources. In most cases it is derived from the Old English "healh," and its full significance is "he who lives at a slope" or "he who lives at a corner." It sometimes represents the Anglo-Saxon personal name "Hasle" meaning "man" and "hero." Finally, it has not infrequently become confused with "Hall."

The family name "Hall" is generally derived from the old English "heall," and its full significance is "he who lives at or near the hall." However, it has sometimes become confused with "Hale" and "Hal." "Hal" is a pet form of "Harry." "Harry" represents the English attempt to pronounce the French "Henri." "Henri" is derived ultimately from the Teutonic "Heimrich" meaning "ruler of a home."

The family names "Cotterman" and "Cotter" are of English origin, and mean "he who lives in the cottage." Various forms of these names occur throughout the Hundred Rolls, a famous list of thirteenth century English names.

The family name "Badecker" (also spelled "Baedecker") is of low German origin. It means "the cooper," and belongs to that large group of family names which indicate the occupations of the persons who were first so called.

The family name "Hodgkins" means "the son of little Hodge." "Hodge" is merely a contraction of "Rodger." The personal name "Rodger" is ultimately of Teutonic origin, and means "famous spear." Some early spellings of this name are "Hogekyn," "Hodgskines" and "Hoddeskyn."

Watch this column every day. Your name will appear here.

Mrs. Montgomery Will Tell of European Trip

The Ladies Association of Metropolitan Memorial M. E. Church are arranging for a lecture by Mrs. James Shera Montgomery to be given at the church Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Montgomery will give a movie travelogue of the many places of interest she and Dr. Montgomery visited during the past summer spent in Europe. Mrs. Montgomery took these pictures herself, and will bring with them much of the atmosphere of the Old World.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

POPULATION INCREASE.

THE yearly increase of population in the United States is due to come to an end in 1944, according to Mr. J. S. Lawrence, writing in Barron's. This is a prophecy based on a calculation and, like all prophecies, is in some danger because of unforseen changes. The calculation is based on the trend in the death rate, certain corrections in those rates, the trend in the birth rate, and on the immigration under the present law. The death rate has about reached the irreducible minimum.

It has not fallen materially anywhere during the last eight years and, in some places, it has risen. The average age at death and the average age of the population both indicate that the present death rate is too low. Mr. Lawrence sets 16 as the death rate for the entire country, which will be normal in 1944.

Assuming that the birth rate falls during the next nine years as fast as it has fallen in the last fifteen, Mr. Lawrence sees deaths and births balancing each other in 1939. The first national census which went into much detail was that of 1830. It showed a great increase of population by reason of excess of births over deaths. Just one hundred years later we are having the last census which is to show an increase by reason of births exceeding deaths.

In his calculations, Mr. Lawrence does not take into account another factor which others include. These other statisticians predict an even more rapid decrease in birth rates because of the relatively small numbers of women of child bearing age and nearing that age. If this factor be considered the birth rate might reach the death rate before 1939.

An annual immigration of about 500,000 is expected to postpone the date of population stabilization until 1944.

This is not the first cry in the wilderness. For a few years vital statisticians have been telling us what was coming. Earlier in the spring a popular magazine, the American Mercury, carried an article to the same effect. Recently a special investigator for certain large business interests was around checking up on figures and investing generally. The University of Chicago sponsored a course of lectures and a series of round table discussion on the subject within a year.

For it is of supreme importance to agriculture, to industry, to manufacturers, to commerce, to municipal planning, to statecraft and to health that we should know of the population trend and plan accordingly.

FEAR THE UNDERLYING CAUSE.

A. M. J. writes: My 14-year-old daughter always screams at night. When we ask her what she dreamed she doesn't remember. Is there any way of stopping her from screaming?

REPLY.

Fear is behind her trouble. If you can get at the cause of the fear and overcome it the trouble will disappear. In any event the treatment consists in training.

If she will eat a light supper, spend her evenings quietly and sleep in a comfortable, well-ventilated room she will have fewer attacks.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

The Inactive Child.

Most normal young children seem a good deal like perpetual motion machines. Occasionally, however, one finds a child who is quiet, physically inactive and apparently passive even in his enjoyments.

Such a youngster should be studied. A physician's examination should establish whether or not there are any physical difficulties, such as malnutrition or chronic fatigue.

Sometimes sympathetic observation reveals that the child is suffering from emotional burdens from which he is seeking relief in day-dreams, which so preoccupy him that he has little time for concrete activities.

Sometimes the cause is none of these. It is simply that the child is one of those beings who lives much within himself, whose mind is busy with things concerning which it is hardly possible for him to be articulate at an early age.

He usually is a child of keen sensibilities who is very likely to be sensitive to beauty in one form or another.

With such a child our efforts should be directed not only toward balancing his development by stimulating him to various concrete activities, and to active play with other children, but also toward providing him with the means whereby he may express his inner life objectively through some creative medium.

If, for instance, he gives indications of interest in music, let him have simple instruments such as tom-toms and bells with which to experiment in rhythm and melody. If he seems to care about color and design be sure that he has plenty of paints, crayons and drawing paper, and bright pieces of paper for cutting and pasting.

If stories and poems seem to give him special delight, see to it that he has the opportunity to enjoy the best of these and encourage him to express himself in writing.

Fifth Ave. Fashions
NEW YORK

This one of tweed in the fashionable dark green coloring is outstandingly chic.

Its straight slim lines make it so.

Style No. 196 may be had in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. The medium size requires 3½ yards of 39-inch material with ⅝ yard of 35-inch contrasting.

Jean's Santa Claus

By Julie Anne Moore

STARTING MONDAY IN

The Washington Post

And see if you would do what Jean Melba did.

Because the mysterious young man who protected her from a masher's advances had lost her suitcase (and because she had no money) Jean accepted a well meaning invitation . . . she went to a certain apartment.

Someone Was Killed There That Night

Within five weeks Jean not only had to extricate herself from a net of suspicion but she had to make good on a tough job—to give every deserving little girl in New York a Christmas doll.

Read JEAN'S SANTA CLAUS and find out how she not only solved both problems but obtained from Santa Claus the best Christmas present in the world.

"OUR BOY! JUST WATCH HIM GO!"

As a Change from Potatoes

 Look for the Red, White and Blue Package*

WATCH him! 195 pounds of muscle, speed and courage! That's the kind of a boy to raise!

Part of it may be inherited. But a great deal of it is correct, properly balanced, easily assimilated diet.

As Nourishing As Meat But More Digestible

No food is richer in strength-giving qualities, yet more easily digested, than MUELLER'S MACARONI and SPAGHETTI. The Mueller processes, and the special farina-blend used as the main ingredient, give them an exceptional lightness and "fluffiness" attained by 9 minutes' boiling.

All the important food-elements are present—protein, mineral salts, carbohydrates. And the natural taste is so delicious that no special sauces are needed when serving.

Scores of New Recipes

MACARONI ROYAL

1 package MUELLER'S MACARONI; 7 slices lean bacon; 1 small onion, chopped fine; ¼ pound snappy cheese; 2 cans tomato soup. Parboil the macaroni 7 minutes in 4 quarts of rapidly boiling water to which 1 tbsp. salt has been added. Drain. Pan-broil the bacon. Place a layer of macaroni in the bottom of a baking dish, dot with pieces of minced cheese and bacon, add layer of macaroni; continue until used up. Mix the tomato soup and onion; pour over top. Bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes.

American Housewives Often Overcook Macaroni

The delightful fluffiness and lightness of Mueller's macaroni products are realized in ideal form by following the directions on the package and boiling nine minutes. If especial tenderness is desired, 1 or 2 minutes more may be allowed.

When you order, be sure to say "MUELLER'S" to your grocer. He has it, or can get it for you.

GERALDINE FARRAR HEARD IN CONCERT

BEST IN GERMAN SONGS

An enthusiastic audience greeted Geraldine Farrar, operatic soprano, a prima donna with many followers in the National Capital, when she sang in the opening concert of the Artists Series under the management of Mrs. Wilson Greene at Constitution Hall yesterday afternoon.

Miss Farrar was in wonderful voice and, while there were no arias on her program, many of her numbers displayed her dramatic interpretation and vocal skill in a high degree.

The sweetness of her voice with its impeccable enunciation, no matter what the language—and she sang in four yesterday afternoon—was shown to special advantage in the group of German lieder with which she opened her program. The Mozart numbers were well done and she sang Schumann in a way which would have delighted that composer's heart. The Schubert selections brought out other facets of her genius and the audience was charmed with her rendition of the lovely "Wigenlied" slumber song by Brahms.

The French group brought memories of her operatic career, when her grace, beauty and dramatic gifts enchanted audiences as a favorite prima donna of the day. The high point in the group was the fan song, "Vieiele Chanson Francaise," which pleased her hearers so well that she had to respond to an ovation. Miss Farrar was very generous with encores, requests for which came after each group. Her part of program was concluded with an attractive group of English songs, in which "A Song to Flora," by Franz Ries, was preeminent.

Miss Farrar's accompanist, Valentin Pavlovsky, gave several solo piano numbers with sparkling technique and a big tone which added much to the afternoon's performance in general. As an accompanist he was sympathetic and effective to an unusual degree.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

—With NELSON B. BELL—

WITH that enterprising alertness for which it is, I believe, widely and justly celebrated, the national park service of the Department of the Interior supplies me with a memorandum conveying the information that the story of the national parks of the country is told by model and photograph in the lobby of the Fox Theater this week, in conjunction with the first Washington presentation of "The Big Trail," for which three Western national parks served as locale. The exhibit material was furnished by the national park service, and so is both authentic and accurate.

Scenes in Yosemite, Sequoia and Bryce Canyon National Parks are depicted in the models, while the photographs cover Grand Teton, Mount Rainier, Yellowstone, Zion, Mesa Verde, Glacier, Grand Canyon, Crater Lake, Hawaii and Acadia. These photographs are enlargments of airplane views taken by Capt. A. W. Stevens, noted Army aviator, who at present is engaged in making aerial pictures in South America.

"The Big Trail" is really the old Oregon Trail, which so many of our pioneers followed on their way to build up the West. Much of the picture was filmed in and about the Grand Teton National Park, Wyoming, which borders the Jackson Hole on the east. Other portions of it were filmed in Sequoia National Park, California, and in the Grand Canyon National Park, Arizona.

One more item and we will let "The Big Trail" rest, at least until tomorrow.

Mrs. Harriet Hawley Locher, especially assigned to the publicity department of the Fox to exploit this epic subject, will have a notable list of hostesses receiving with her at the special performance for school children this morning at 9 o'clock.

The group will include, among others, the following: Mrs. Virginia White Speel, George Washington bicentennial committee; Mrs. Frank Hodges Clark, first vice president, League of American Pen Women; Mrs. Edgar B. Meritt, president, District of Columbia Federated Women's Clubs; Mrs. Cuno H. Rudolph, Mrs. Mina Church Brann, chairman motion pictures, Montgomery County, Md., Federation of Women's Clubs; Miss Elizabeth Barnes, State chairman, Sons and Daughters of the Republic; Mrs. William Wolff Smith, chairman motion pictures, D. C. Daughters of the American Revolution; Mrs. George C. Gillingham, chairman motion pictures, D. C. Federated Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley.

In addition to these, Hon. Cuno H. Rudolph, former Commissioner; Dr. Stephen E. Cramer, assistant superintendent of public schools; Mr. Lynn C. Drake, chief executive, Boy Scouts of America, and Mr. H. M. Starling, safety division of the A. A. A., will be in attendance.

Doors will be open at 9 a. m., making a nice long day for the house staff!

When Wesley Eddy again begins functioning as master of ceremonies at the Palace today it is to be hoped that he will not have so completely forgotten his way around back stage as to meet with the mishap that befell Betty Dodge, of the Dodge Twins, stars of the "Nightingale Melodies" revue, earlier this week.

Hurrying to reach the stage in time for her entrance, Betty tripped and fell down a flight of iron stairs, breaking practically everything but the Sabbath and her contract. A physician was hastily summoned and after a reasonable amount of manipulation, massage and mesmerism was able to put Miss Betty together again sufficiently to go on with the act. A little later on, however, when those muscles began to stiffen a bit, it was not so easy.

All of which serves merely as another proof that in the true artist's mind the primary consideration is that the show must go on.

And it always does!

Among the supplementary attractions at the Metropolitan this week there is a Vitaphone Variety called "Stepping Out" that is not quite so funny as it should be, but which, nevertheless, is enacted by a trio of principals that are what might almost be termed Washington favorites.

The eccentric comic of the three is Joe Penner, star of many a a Palace stage unit, who may, perhaps, be best remembered for his nut song, "Then Came the War." The straight man is Leo Donnelly, last seen on a local stage in one of the important supporting roles with Lenore Ulric in "Pagan Lady," at the National, and the woman in the case is Mary Phillips, the tough gal who made such a hit with George M. Cohan in his play "Gambling."

By the way, when the Metropolitan goes high hat, beginning Thanksgiving Eve, November 26, the two daily performances, all seats reserved, will be at 2:45 and 8:45 p. m.

Prior to that, though, there will be a few days of darkness, to be devoted to renovation and redecoration, the exact length of the period to be determined, so I am told, by the degree of prosperity enjoyed by the current bill, headed by the dialogue version of "The Gorilla." If "The Gorilla" stands up the way it has started, it will be continued through Sunday, November 23; if not, it will come off at the end of its allotted week.

Whichever way it goes, I am given to understand that the new Metropolitan lobby will be swanky no end—sort of a salon in the palace of the king effect, with gorgeous drapes, cut crystal and all that.

And that reminds me. After a request has been flashed on the screen, at the conclusion of the showing of "The Gorilla," that the picture's denouement be not disclosed to their friends by members of the audience who have seen it, the amplified organ, run through the loud speakers, strikes up, of all things, "Go Home and Tell Your Mother" for a recessional!

And in case you are at all fussy about tracing identities, it may be of interest that Will H. Philbrick, who played the rancher in search of a cook, with Eddie Cantor in "Whoopee," is the blackface Jeff in "The Gorilla," and Russell Powell, who was the ebony Kingfish with Correll and Gosden in "Check and Double Check," is playing the grotesquely comic character of "Windy Bill," in "The Big Trail," in whiteface.

Some weeks ago, when "Her Man" was at RKO-Keith's this column drew a hasty analogy between Marjorie Rambeau's work and that of Marie Dressler as the elderly bibbler in "Anna Christie."

Their comparative values now need not be estimated on quite so remote a basis. Both are in the cast of "Min and Bill," opening today at the Columbia, and there be those who say that at times Miss Rambeau comes dangerously near stealing a scene or two from her distinguished associates.

More of this later—even if it turns out not to be true!

Crew of British Vessel Cleared of Liquor Plot

Providence, R. I., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Nine members of the crew of the liquor-laden British motor boat Mazel-Tov, seized by the Coast Guard of Marthas Vineyard, Mass., on November 1, were freed today of charges of conspriacy to smuggle liquor into this country.

United States Attorney Henry M. Boss, jr., appeared before a United States commissioner and moved for dismissal of the charges upon advices from the Department of Justice in Washington. Mr. Boss said that the Government did not have sufficient evidence to prove that a conspiracy existed. The Government will attempt, Mr. Boss stated, to libel the boat itself and its cargo of 403 bags of choice liquors.

Three Bottles Helped Her
"I cannot praise your good medicine enough. After my baby came I was rundown. I had to go to bed often through the day. I took three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I felt like a different woman. If any other mother has those tired feelings like I had, I advise her to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Harold Goodnow, 36 Cane Street, Fitchburg, Massachusetts.

COMPROMISE LOOMS ON NORRIS MEASURE

McNary Stands Firm on Bill Seeking U. S. Operation of Muscle Shoals.

PROGRAM TAKING SHAPE

(Associated Press.)

Differences between President Hoover and some of his Republican leaders in the Senate over the Norris measure for Government operation of the Muscle Shoals, Ala., power and nitrate plant remained to be settled last night before the threat of an extra session of Congress next spring is dissipated.

Senator McNary, of Oregon, the assistant Republican leader, is standing firm for the Government operation bill, which is in conflict with the House measure for private operation. Senator McNary is chairman of the conferees on this legislation.

A compromise between the Senate and House is being sought. Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, author of the Senate's Government operation measure, already has offered a compromise whereby the power plant at Muscle Shoals would be under Government operation and control and the nitrate plant available to private lease. The House conferees so far have refused this.

Aside from the Muscle Shoals contest, which will be one of the first projects confronting the session, the legislative program is taking shape rapidly. It is a program which both Republican and Democratic leaders believe can be disposed of within the three months of the session.

Expansion of the public buildings program and possibly of the road-construction work as a means of aiding unemployment has first place on the tentative calendar. Appropriation of funds for seed and fertilizer loans to the farmers in the drought-stricken areas gets second attention. Enactment of the vital appropriation bills has precedence at all times.

While the Republican independents led by Senator Borah, of Idaho, are demanding additional farm relief legislation, it appears unlikely that the administration will sanction such a move. Mr. Hoover is on record against the export debenture and the equalization fee principles which are sponsored by the Democrats and the Independents.

Prohibition seems destined for considerable talk, but there is no sentiment now apparent for seeking immediate change in the dry law. The prospective report of the Law Enforcement Commission about the first of the year is expected to open the floodgates of oratory, at least.

Four Killed When Police Fire Upon Moh in India

Patna, India, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Four persons were killed and nine wounded today when police fired on a crowd at Jamalpur, on the East India Railway.

The crowd had refused to disperse when warned and attempted to rescue a number of prisoners by a fusillage of stones.

The trouble originated in attacks on liquor and toddy shops by railway coolies. There had been rumors that a recent rise in the price of foodstuffs was due to the sale of liquor.

Constables guarding the shops were assaulted by a mob, whereupon the assistant police superintendent arrested several men. The crowd was reported to have attacked the police from both sides.

16 Lost and 8 Rescued When Bark Founders

Puerto Montt, Chile, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Reports reaching here today from the Island of Chiloe said eight sailors were rescued when the Chilean bark Laura foundered on Monday with a loss of sixteen lives.

First word of the disaster reached this city last night and two small steamers immediately were dispatched to search for survivors. The ship had been caught for two days in a furious gale that had raged along the coast since Saturday. The ship carried several passengers in addition to her crew of sixteen.

Two Killed as Plane Falls.

San Diego, Calif., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Lieut. Wallace B. Hollingsworth, 33-year-old Navy flier, and Albert Pierson, aviation machinist's mate, third class, were killed yesterday when their plane fell outside Fall Brook, near the San Diego-Riverside County line, it became known today.

Blast Kills 2 in Home Of Mexican General

Mexico City, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Police today investigated explosion which occurred yesterday in the house under construction for Gen. Gilberto Limon, director of the Chapultepec Military Academy.

The wife and son of an army sergeant were killed and the sergeant and two sons perhaps fatally wounded. The family was acting as caretakers for the building.

Film Actress Goes Under Knife.

Los Angeles, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Miss Helen Chandler, film actress, underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Hollywood Hospital today. Her condition was reported as excellent. Miss Chandler came to Hollywood from New York, where she was well known on the stage.

President of Electric Company Ends His Life

He left a note explaining his suicide, but members of the family would not make its contents public. It is thought that worries resulting from the stock market crash and business troubles incidental to the current depression prompted the act.

Mrs. Hoover in Asheville For Brief Visit With Son

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Mrs. Herbert Hoover arrived this morning for a brief visit with her son, Herbert Hoover, Jr., who is here recuperating from an illness.

She was accompanied only by secret service men. Mrs. Hoover appeared worried as she stepped from the train and later told friends she dreaded the duty of telling her son of an accident to his brother-in-law, Tom Watson, of San Francisco. Watson, 13 years old, lost a leg in a street car mishap.

Mrs. Hoover will return to Washington Sunday.

14 American Foremen Dismissed by Soviet

Stalingrad, Russia, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Fourteen Americans, engaged as foremen in a new tractor plant here have been dismissed by the Soviet administration for "systematically violating their agreement with the tractor trust."

Danes Recognize Brazil.

By JACK ESPEY
(Post Staff Correspondent).

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—A Georgetown University eleven at the peak of form goes onto the turf of Yankee Stadium here tomorrow in an effort to haul down the colors of New York University for the third straight year. New York and its followers are violently opposed to such intentions and the word is out along Broadway to string along with the home town team.

This is the third successive time that a Georgetown team has come here as the under dog in a clash with Chick Meehan's Violets. But this time, say the wiseacres, the score will vindicate pregame dope. No more of those upsets which N. Y. U. swallowed in 1928 and 1929.

The betting is 8 to 5 favoring New York. One Washington "broker" put in an appearance at Georgetown's hotel with a pocket full of N. Y. U money.

Superiority Complex Noted of G. U.

But perhaps the dope will be spilled again. This Georgetown team has a superiority complex regarding an N. Y. U. game and it was never better prepared before this season for combat. Every man in Tommy Mills' ranks enjoys the best of physical condition with the exception of Joe Bandzul, substitute center, who has been complaining of a cold the last few days.

Mills made three last-minute changes in his line-up following a short practice this afternoon in the stadium. He announced that Charley Brickman, the squad's best lineman, would start at right guard instead of Dick Danner. Russ Danie at right half back instead of Phil Mooney and Leroy Bordeau in place of Manny Gillis at full back.

The change at right guard is figured to give Georgetown its most efficient defense in the line, while in the backfield the shifts are expected to bolster the running attack. Bordau's line plunging propensities are well known and Danieu is something of a bucker himself, although he takes no small part in tackle slices and end runs.

Maczees Scheduled To Do Kicking.

As usual, Johnny Scalzi will start at quarter back, while Bill Maczees, who will handle the kicking assignment among others, gets the call at left half back. Maczees is not the equal of Bob McNamara, New York's kicker, but Mills is hoping that he will show an improvement over earlier performances. Johnny Bozek will be held in reserve until the opportunity for one of his dazzling runs presents itself.

New York, too, is in fine physical condition and will place its strongest array on the field. The Violet back field is composed of four sophomores, each of whom is versatile on the attack, Bob McNamara, triple-threater,

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 14.—Maryland University and Virginia Polytechnic Institute Football Teams tonight were en route here for their battle tomorrow in which the Old Liners will be seeking their fourth victim among the "Big Four" colleges of Virginia.

Maryland is a pronounced favorite to add V. P. I. to the list of its conquests, having already defeated Virginia Military Institute, University of Virginia and Washington and Lee in order. It is a "clean sweep" that the Old Liners are seeking.

Despite the significance of comparative scores, Virginia Poly is the under dog. V. P. I. scored a 34-to-13 victory over Virginia, a team that Maryland could beat only 14 to 6, but another glance at the rivals' records show that Maryland swamped Washington and Lee, 41 to 7, while the Generals held Poly to a tie.

Maryland Backs Give Gobblers Task.

The Maryland back field of Poppelman, Woods, Chalmers, Evans, Berger presents a task for the Bobblers. Each of this quintet is a capable ball carrier with any one likely to break away for a touchdown.

Probably the chief threat of Maryland is "Bozey" Berger, whose pass-catching proclivities have catapulted him near the top of the scorers in the East. It was Berger who accounted for three touchdowns against V. M. I. in the first period to clinch that contest for the Old Liners and it was this same rangy lad who caught three passes in sensational fashion for touchdowns against Washington and Lee at College Park last week.

Approximately 800 Poly cadets, exclusive of the 60-piece band, made the trip. The football party included 26 players, Coaches Neal and Clark, and Cadet Manager H. H. Hurt. The squad included, Chandler, Seamon, McIntire, Palmer and Miles, ends; Green, Swart, Stark, Ritter and Grinus, tackles; Hite, Dyke, Jones and Kasun, guards; Brown and Wimmer, centers; Capt. Hooper and Hall, quarter backs; Hagerty, Spear, Hardwick,

Drake's Coach Scouts Own Team for Rockne

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 14 (A.P.). Believe it or not, Ossie Solem, coach of Drake's football team, was a Notre Dame scout last week.

Coach Rockne sent Tim Moynihan, one of his assistants, to scout the Drake game, but Tim didn't arrive until Saturday—whereas the game was played Friday night. Solem heard of the incident and immediately scouted his own team for the Irish. He drew several diagrams of Drake's plays, outlined the weakness, and mailed his findings to Rockne.

Notre Dame All-Stars To Play December 14

New York, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—The benefit football game between the Notre Dame All-Stars, led by Knute Rockne, and the New York Giants of the National Football League, will be played here Sunday, December 14, instead of on December 13, it was announced tonight.

The game was set back one day to make room for the meeting between the Army and Navy. Rockne has agreed to the shift in date and said he would get his team together for practice at South Bend a week before the contest.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Manhattan College will have an opportunity to avenge one of its 1929 defeats when the Jaspers face Catholic University at Innisgail Park tomorrow afternoon. Last year the Jaspers, then coached by Poe Schwarzer, traveled to Washington to meet this team and emerged on the low end of a 20-to-7 score.

The Washington team dropped six of its first seven games this season and has the poorest record of its football history. In its favor, however, it may be said that the team has been playing strong opponents and is better than the score indicates. It won its first victory last Saturday by swamping American University, 60 to 0. In running up this score, Catholic University looked good for the first time this season.

New Back Field to Oppose Catholic U.

Coach Law, of Manhattan, has arranged a new back field for this contest. Capt. Luddy Burke will be at his customary full back post and Del Negro will be at quarter back. Law has replaced Joe Sisko by Les Anderson and has given the other half back position to Eddie Ashkar in place of Bill O'Connor. Both Ashkar and Anderson are good ball carriers and strong defensive backs, but O'Connor and Sisko are sure to see service after the contest gets under way.

The Jasper line remains unchanged. Koeck and Moyer will be at the wing posts, Spears and Higgins, the tackles, Yuda and Ciccolella the guards, and Howie Smith at the center. The probable line-up:

Manhattan.	Positions.	Catholic U.
Moyer	L.E.	Fratz

Princeton-Harvard Deny Heal of Breach

New York, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Athletic authorities of both Princeton and Harvard indicated today there was no basis to reports that the two colleges had negotiated for a resumption of football relations, broken off in 1926.

Harvard all along has taken the attitude that since it did not initiate the break, which followed upon misunderstandings and some undergraduate ill-feeling, it was not up to the Crimson to make any move for revival of relations.

Stevens to Continue As Yale Grid Coach

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 14 (A.P.). The Yale Athletic Association tonight announced that Dr. Marvin A. Stevens, better known to football followers as "Mal Stevens" has been reengaged as head football coach at Yale for next year. He has been in charge of Yale football since 1928, as successor to Tad Jones.

BALTIMORE, MD., Nov. 14 (A.P.). A partially revamped Navy football team completed its work today at Annapolis for the intersectional meeting with Southern Methodist University tomorrow at the Municipal Stadium while the Mustangs themselves arrived in the early afternoon and went through a 45-minute workout.

Players Get Feel Of Wet Ball.

Coach Ray Morrison forewent a suggested indoor workout to give the visitors the feel of a wet ball, with prospects that the game tomorrow will be played on a soft field, if not in the rain. Rain would hamper the Mustang's chief threat, their passing game. Morrison said Burleson would start the game at right guard in place of Torrence.

Three special trains, bringing the S. M. U. 60-piece band and several hundred rooters are to arrive here early tomorrow. The regiment of midshipmen will be brought to Baltimore for the game which is expected to draw 30,000 spectators.

Ingram Drills Navy In Mud and Rain.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 14.—On a miry field and during a misty rain and fog, Navy football players this afternoon put the finishing touches to their preparations for the big intersectional tilt with Southern Methodist University at Baltimore tomorrow, primed to combat the far-famed forward passes of the Texans.

As indications point to a wet field for the battle, the Middies made the most of the workout which consisted chiefly in handling punts and running through formations and acclimating themselves to the elements. Head Coach Bill Ingram pronounced all of his charges in fine shape and on edge for a scrappy contest. Final announcement of the prospect of playing their ancient rivals of West Point in a charity game may furnish an inspiration for the tars to get back into their stride. At any rate there is confidence in the local camp that the Middies will come through victorious over the much touted Texans and their aerial circus stayle of play.

Carnera Quits Italy For Paulino Match

Genoa, Italy, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Primo Carnera, cutting short his mildly successful exhibitions in Italy, sailed today for Barcelona to train seriously for his fight there with Paulino Uzcudon, Spanish heavyweight, November 23.

The departure of the Italian giant followed upon newspaper criticism to the effect that he was indulging in too many banquets and too much barnstorming to be in his best condition for the bout.

"Carnera has a soldier's duty," one of them declared, "which is to go out and win."

IowaState Students Riot; After Spirit Is Doubted

Ames, Iowa, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Two thousand Iowa State College students overran the business district this afternoon following publication in the college paper of a letter from a merchant charging they were not supporting the football team properly. The fire department was called to extinguish several bonfires in the streets.

Canzoneri Knocks Singer Out in Opening Round to Gain Lightweight Crown

By EDWARD J. NEAL.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Quicker than he won the crown, quicker almost than the eye could follow, young Al Singer was stripped of his lightweight title tonight by Tony Canzoneri, brisk little Italian, who started his fantastic fight career as a bookblack in the streets of New Orleans.

Singer, hailed asthe new Benny Leonard when he crushed Sammy Mandell in a single round last August to mount the 135-pound throne, lasted for only two real punches. Tony nailed the sleek Jewish lad with one left hook to the chin, whanged him again and the battle was over after one minute and six seconds of the first round of what started out to be a fifteen-round match.

Crowd Boos Singer, Sensing Coup.

The "viewers with alarm" became very busy the minute Singer hit the floor, as busy as they were when Mandell, a pale, lifeless ghost of himself was battered into senselessness by Singer in something over two minutes, last summer. The crowd of about 16,000 rose and booed, howling Singer from the ring, though they cheered the exit of Canzoneri, the new king. Heads have been wagging over rumors for days and there were reports of a betting coup when Singer entered the ring a 2½ to 1 favorite.

As for the fight itself, there was so little action as to be hardly undertainable. Singer, apparently in splendid shape, sidled from his corner as Tony, a grinning miniature of Babe Ruth from shoulders to the top of his crinkly hair, danced toward him.

They met in the center of the ring, sparred cautiously, fell into a clinch, and pounded each other's ribs in desultory fashion. They boxed in the former police commissioner, who visited authorities at both academies, the Secretaries of War and Navy and President Hoover.

Army had at first refused to entertain a proposal for a postseason game under any conditions, but the negotiations were reopened two days ago when Gen. Smith announced that the Army would play if the game were arranged for December 6. Navy was scheduled to play Penn on this date and proffered December 13 as an alternative date despite the fact that it would cause complications during the semiannual examination period. A reconsideration of its stand resulted in the acceptance by Army today.

Despite the fact that it was made clear in the acceptance by Army that the game, December 13, would have no effect on the status of the eligibility breach between the two academies, scheduling of the contest was seen as the wedge which would result in the renewal of relations on a permanent basis.

Game Annually High Sport of Season.

The success of the negotiations assured what has been regarded as the high spot of the college football season annually with the service game topping in interest, rivalry and glamour any other battle on the year's schedule. The game as a magnet for dignitaries in all positions and the pageantry of the midshipmen and the cadet corps has been unmatched by any other contest. Tickets are always at a premium and with charity to benefit this year, it is expected to be a mad scramble for the 80,000 seats.

Navy is willing to play Army in a year in which the football fortunes of the Midshipmen are at almost their lowest ebb. Defeats by Notre Dame and Duke in succession and a rout at the hands of Ohio State have revealed the weakest Navy team in years with Army an overwhelming favorite to score its second successive victory in the service clashes.

Army, under Maj. Sasse's first year as coach, is enjoying one of its most successful seasons with only a tie by Yale to mar a record which includes victories over Harvard and Illinois.

Army Won 3 of 4 Last Battles.

The immediate years before the break in 1927 were almost uniformly successful for Army, which benefited greatly from the services of former college stars upon whom no restrictions were placed. It was the continued havoc which Harry Wilson, sensational half back, had wrought in his four games against Navy that aided Army to show three victories and a tie for the seasons of 1924, 1925, 1926 and 1927. Wilson had starred for four years at Penn State before entering West Point.

Chris Cagle, the most recent Army star, who figured with Wilson as the hero of Army's 14-9 victory over Navy at the Polo Grounds in 1927 in the last game between the teams, was another Army player who had had previous experience before entering the military.

A month after the 1927 game Navy demanded that West Point restrict its players to three years of varsity experience in college inclusive of their service on the West Point squad. This was the basis of eligibility at the Naval Academy and at other leading institutions. Army refused to alter its eligibility standards, contending that there could be no discrimination against any cadet whether in football or not, and the cancellation of the unexpired contract for the service games was announced by Navy.

Numerous efforts to bring the two academies together in athletics during the three-year interim had failed until yesterday, with Cabinet heads of the two services abiding by a "hands-off" policy.

Little Forecasts Victories For Yale, N. Y. U. and Penn

By LOU LITTLE (Columbia Head Coach).

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (N.Y.W.N.S.). Bill Roper finishes his long, successful coaching career at Princeton immediately following the Yale game tomorrow. Bill has had great luck and has done a real job, not only as a coach but also as a builder of our game. There are many who would, of course, like to see Roper finish his coaching with a victory, and I hardly feel that this is impossible.

Princeton will be in better physical condition for this game than for any since the opening of the season. Her full strength is entirely available and you never can tell what will happen in a traditional game of this kind.

Selections.

YALE-PRINCETON—Princeton will give Yale some trouble, but not enough to win. HARVARD-HOLY CROSS—Harvard should win, but Holy Cross will cause them plenty of anxiety. NEW YORK UNIVERSITY-GEORGETOWN will be quite a game. New York to win. CORNELL-DARTMOUTH—Dartmouth has too much reserve power. FORDHAM - ST. MARY'S — Fordham should win. PENNSYLVANIA - GEORGIA TECH—Penn will get started again by winning this. CALIFORNIA-NEVADA—See no reason why California should not win. CHICAGO-ILLINOIS—Illinois will win this one. FLORIDA-CLEMSON—Good game, but favor Florida.

HAVERFORD-CITY COLLEGE OF NEW YORK—City College ought to take this one. IOWA-PENN STATE—Iowa seems to be started; should win. KENTUCKY-V. M. I.—Kentucky. LEHIGH-RUTGERS—Close game, but Rutgers to win. LOYOLA-BOSTON COLLEGE—Boston College by close score. MARQUETTE - DETROIT—Believe Marquette will come through MICHIGAN-MINNESOTA — Michigan by touchdown. MUEHLENBURG-GETTYSBURG—Gettysburg a little too strong. NEBRASKA-MISSOURI—I guess Nebraska ought to finish ahead. NORTH CAROLINA - DAVIDSON.

NORTHWESTERN - WISCONSIN — Northwestern should come through. NOTRE DAME-DRAKE—A rest for Notre Dame boys in preparation for Northwestern. OHIO STATE-PITTSBURGH—Hard game to choose, but I am going to stick with Pittsburgh. OREGON STATE-OREGON — Rather believe Oregon will win.

PURDUE-BUTLER—Purdue without much trouble. ST. JOHNS-PROVIDENCE—St. Johns. SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA - HAWAII — Southern California without a great deal of worry. STANFORD-CALIFORNIA TECH—The right kind of a game for Stanford to develop offense. SYRACUSE-COL-

By CHARLES W. DUNKLEY.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—The Western Conference football championship will be settled tomorrow, with either Northwestern or Michigan winning or sharing gridiron honors of 1930.

Northwestern, undefeated and with victories over Ohio State, Minnesota, Illinois and Indiana, plays its final game of the Big Ten season tomorrow, meeting the powerful Wisconsin eleven at Evanston, while Michigan, also unconquered, engages Minnesota at Ann Arbor. Victory for both Northwestern and the Wolverines will virtually assure them a tie for the title as Michigan, which closes its season a week hence against Chicago, figures to triumph over the Maroons, who have not won a conference game this season.

If Northwestern and Michigan happen to be upset, Purdue will be lurking in the background ready to pounce on at least a share of the championship honors. Purdue's only hope, however, is the long chance that both Northwestern and Michigan will be defeated.

Chicago and Illinois Clash.

While Northwestern and Michigan are fighting for premier honors, a good old-fashioned football game will renew the Chicago-Illinois rivalry at Stagg Field. Neither Illinois nor Chicago has won a conference victory and Illinois' slump this year has made the Illini something of an even match for Chicago for the first time in years.

In the other game on tomorrow's schedule, Pittsburgh will come across the State line to battle Ohio State at Columbus, while Penn State will invade Iowa to engage the Hawkeyes at Iowa City. Purdue, last year's champions, have a breathing spell by meeting Butler at Lafayete. Indiana has an off date.

With a capacity crowd of 49,000 assured, Northwestern intends to make its home-coming a huge success by walloping the Badgers, although Wisconsin is expected to give the Wildcats a rough afternon. The fact that Wisconsin has been beaten once and tied in another games does not make the Badgers any less dangerous. Wisconsin showed tremendous power in the early season games, with a heavy scoring punch, and after a slight slump, may come back tomorrow with a terrific explosion.

Northwestern Loses Rentner.

President Cup Game Offer To Charity Goes Begging

THE offer of the Marines and Coast Guard to play their annual football game here for the President's Cup for the benefit of local charities has gone begging for a week and is still without a claimant, Maj. David L. S. Brewsterm, athletic officer of the Marine Corps, announced yesterday. He estimated that the game, scheduled for Griffith Stadium December 6, would draw a "gate" of at least $5,000.

An effort to have the game sponsored by the office of the director of public welfare of the District was met with the statement that the organization functioned solely on a District appropriation. Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the District's unemployment committee, was also forced to decline the Marine offer because his body is not permitted to handle funds.

Elwood Street, director of the Community Chest, pointed out, when Maj. Brewster offered to turn the proceeds of the game over to his organization, that the Community Chest was filled each year with the reservation that its donors were to give but once for all. Mr. Street believed that asking the chest's donors to attend the game at an admission fee might be construed by some to be a failure on the part of his organization to stand by its watchword.

Maj. Brewster also sought the aid of the Red Cross, and today officials of that body were to arrive at a decision. Maj. Brewster intimated that the Red Cross would be best suited to receive the proceeds of the game inasmuch as it is national in scope, and continent-wide in effectiveness, whereas if a local organization were to reap the benefit of the game the Marine Corps and the Coast Guard, national institutions, would be performing for the good of one small section of the country.

MATE BEATS TWENTY GRAND, WINS WALDEN STAKE

Bostwick Colt Triumphs in Upset

Twenty Grand, Odds-on, Trails Field in Early Running.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 14 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A. C. Bostwick's Mate, disappointed in two futurities, finally found, that as the copybooks tell, the turning of the long lane in the Walden Handicap at Pimlico this afternoon.

Running his usual game race, he had no breaks in the luck against him and won the event for 2-year-olds, at one mile and a sixteenth, by three parts of a length from Dixiana's Sweep All, with the Greentree Stable's Twenty Grand and Surf Board third and fourth and the Sagamore Stable's Backgammon down the course. Mate's share of the purse was $10,325.

Rout of Greentree Pair Stunning Surprise.

The utter rout of the Greentree Stable was a stunning surprise, for Twenty Grand, second to Equipoise in the Pimlico Futurity last week, and Surf Board, his stablemate, were odds-on favorities. However, the backers of Mate, the second choice, did well, the colt paying $6.30 straight and $3.60 place in the $2 mutuels. The unusual place price was because the Greentree pair finished out of the mutuel money, no show tickets being sold.

The decision of Tommy Murphy to start Twenty Grand was something of a surprise as it had been said officially the futurity was the last racing effort of the son of St. Germans. The decision to start Twenty Grand was not a happy one. The big rangy, long-striding colt was at a disadvantage in the going and never was prominent in the running.

The race was run in the fog of a gray, soggy afternoon. There was less than a minute's delay at the barrier, and at the break Sweep All went to the front. Kurtsinger, on Surf Board, sent the second member of the Greentree string quickly in pursuit.

Twenty Grand Tires Badly In Stretch.

They raced head and head past the stand to the turn, with Mate a length or two behind, and Backgammon and Twenty Grand bringing up the rear. The order remained unchanged down the back stretch, but as they rounded the far turn George Ellis brought Mate up on the outside. The trio fought it out head and head from there to the stretch, and in the last sixteenth Mate got his head in front. Twenty Grand saved a lot of ground, but tired badly in the stretch.

The weather was easily the worst of the meeting, a cold drizzle of rain falling throughout the afternoon. The crowd was small and not very enthusiastic. The field that went to the post for the Walden was one of the smallest in the recent history of the event, only five starting. Prince Peter, Anchors Aweigh, Priory, Tambour and Happy Scot were withdrawn, leaving the Greentree pair, Twenty Grand and Surf Board, Mate, Backgammon and Sweep All.

—SLUG—FIRST ADD RACES . . . L.

The Tranquility Farms Mine Sweeper defeated the favorite, Gay Bird, in the first race, by a neck, running the six furlongs in 1:15 on a muddy track. Gay Bird closed fast after a bad start and his weight told on him, as there was a long wait at the barrier. He also got away last. Garlic was third. Mynheer led for three furlongs when Mine Sweeper went to the front. He was well ridden by George Fields. The winner paid $16.40. There was heavy support for Miss Grace, Adams up, but she never figured in the race.

Tail Spin Scored in Second In Drive.

Another favorite was beaten in the second race when Gun Man was overhauled at the eighth post by Mrs. S. Bennett's filly, Tail Spin, Catrone up. Tail Spin got away last, but drew away to win by four lengths. Gun Man held the place, while Mullah was third and Wild Fowl, early contender, fourth. Gun Man, with E. Watters up, was backed heavily but, at the turn into the stretch he gave evidence of tiring, and Tail Spin ran over him. The winner paid $10.60. The race was for maiden 3-year-olds and upward.

The Brookmeade Stables' Weatherproof won the third race for 2-year-olds by a length and a half. E. K. Bryson's My Sweets, Adams up, and an outsider, was second, a half length in front of Toney Princess. The favorite, C. V. Whitney's Rideaway, failed to show any speed. The winner paid $12.70. My Sweets was $15.50 a place. Rideaway was the third successive favorite to fail. M. Garner rode the winner. Toney Princess set a fast pace, but tired. My Sweets was close up all the way and when Weatherproof took the lead held on as contender.

Five well-matched horses, all mud runners, went to the post in the fourth race at a mile and a sixteenth, and Mrs. James Arthur's Berber, Adams up, overhauled C. V. Whitney's Hat Broom at the sixteenth and won by a half length, Hat Broom getting the place, far in front of Syriac. Little Nap was fourth.

Voltear, Choice, Never in The Running.

Voltear, the favorite, failed to show anything at any stage of the running. Hat Broom, close second choice, took the lead from Little Nap at the turn into the homestreach and seemed safe, but Berber came with a rush.

Mr. Sanford's Parnell Bound, returning to good form, won the sixth race, 6-furlong sprint with twelve horses. Sturdy was second and Wicker third. Toki, the favorite, got away in front and had no excuse. Kurtsinger was on the winner and made a strong finish. This marked the sixth favorite to lose during the day. The time was 1:16, about the slowest 6 furlongs of the meeting. The winner had a margin of a half length. The price of $14 was hung up, and Sturdy was $11.80 a place; Wicker, $9.50 to show.

Woodcraft, the Audley Farm's 3-year-old colt, carrying the hopes of favorite players, scored handily in the final race of the program today, beating Storm by a length, with Raccoon third, four lengths farther back. Six started in the mile and 70 yard event for all ages. Woodcraft paid $7.30 in the $2 mutuels.

Crossbones set a fast early pace, with Raccoon in closest contention. Raccoon went to the front at the far turn, but was used up following the pace, and Quackenbush sent Storm to the front in the stretch run.

$10,000 Pimlico Cup Line-Up

Pimlico Race Track, Md., Nov. 14.—The line-up in the field in the Pimlico Handicap $10,000 added, at 2¼ miles, for 3-year-olds and upward, closing feature of the meeting tomorrow, follows:

—Pimlico Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

PIMLICO, MD., Nov. 14.—The Pimlico Cup, closing feature of the Maryland Jockey Club's fall meeting tomorrow, is the longest race in this country on the flat, two miles and a quarter, and on the muddy track, it will be almost like pulling uphill for the entire route. Fortunately, the scale of the handicap is light for the nine horses that make up the field, YARN being top-impost with 115 pounds. The field is somewhat disappointing in class for this severe test. It has failed to attract the leaders of the year's racing, as it usually does.

The two best horses in the race are INCEPTION, winner of the Bowie, and WILLIAM T., second in that event. At the greater distance of the Cup, WILLIAM T. should change the order of the finish, for he was very fast and overtaking INCEPTION at the end. Neither is of Cup calibre. GREY COAT may like the distance and the mud, and his last race was a smart effort. It is remembered that this horse won the last of the spring meetings in which he ran, on the closing day. He beat Blue Larkspur in the Dwyer, but aside from these two races he has little to recommend him. Both INCEPTION and WILLIAM T. finished in front of Sun Beau in the Bowie. But the Kilmer horse is by far better than either, in fact he is at the top of the handicap division now in training. He had a misjudged ride, and lost, and is ducking the Cup, but will start in the Maryland $25,000 Handicap at Bowie.

YARN has shown nothing to make him have a real chance in this race. His defeat of Sandy Ford at Woodbine is his best, but he has refused to run back to that. Weight will play no part in the race, hence WILLIAM T., being the best route horse, is selected to win the cup.

FIRST RACE—MEEK looks best in the first race for 2-year-olds. He is a mudder and is returning to best form. He was beaten only a length by Transformation in his last race last week. SAN PRESTO, which won at Empire City and at Saratoga, should be a dangerous rival, but he has no form in the mud, although by Dunlin. FERVID has failed to win in Maryland, but has been third in her four starts, and should keep up this record in this affair, which is further than she has ever gone, and may turn out to be to her advantage.

SECOND RACE—GEORGE DEMAR looks best in the second race. In his other start here, he had a fast track and, being a mud horse, conditions in this race will suit him better. He takes off weight and all he will have to do to win will be to run back to his last race at Empire City, which he won. MAYBE has been running well, but stopping. There is a chance he may go on, and should be second. He has either won or been second in his last four races. BELMONA'S last race did not do justice to the mare, and she should improve in this gallop, and at least be in the money. Her last winning race was at Long Branch on a fast track.

THIRD RACE—The Consolation Steeplechase, third on the program, with a purse of $2,000, seems to be a good spot for ICICLE, which won at Laurel from St. Vernon. ROONEY is dangerous. He has been running with better horses but did not come close since he defeated Indigo. He is tabbed for the place, with WAYFAIR next best in a well-balanced field.

FOURTH RACE—SANDALS should win the fourth race for 2-year-olds on her victory in the mud over Justiciary at Laurel. RONALD GREY will be a factor, but his last two races were disappointing. PHANTOM CLOUD is a mudder and should show.

SIXTH RACE—MADDER was third to Bowie the other day in the slop, and on that race should be hard to beat in the sixth. She was urged too much in the early running of the last start. EUPHRATES has been running with better horses and should be the contender here. FAIR BETH has a chance. She was third to Yankee Doodle a few days ago and is a mudder.

PIMLICO, MD., CHART, NOVEMBER 14, 1930.

WEATHER DRIZZLING. TRACK, MUDDY.

FIRST RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 1:16½. Off at 1:21. Winner, Tranquility Farm's br. c. (2), by Sweep—Sous Marine. Trained by J. Woods Garth 2d. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:49 1-5, 1:15.

Horses	Wgt.	Post	St.	¼	½	Str.	Fin.	Jockeys	Straight
MINE SWEEPER	114	7	1	2hd	1½	1h	1nk	Fields	$7.20
GAY BIRD	116	8	3	1½	2½	2½	2½	Cannon	1.25

MISS GRACE	104	4	7	4hd	6h	7hd	7½	Adams	4.50
TUSCAN KNIGHT	110	2	4	7½	8	8	8	Quackenbush	60.15

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MINE SWEEPER, $16.40, $6.20, $3.40; GAY BIRD, $3.80, $2.50; GARLIC, $2.90.

MINE SWEEPER, at home in the going, displaced MYNHEER after the first furlong, drew into a winning lead entering the home stretch, but was forced to a severe drive at the end to withstand GAY BIRD. Latter allowed to drop out of early contention, swung to the outside and closed full of run. GARLIC, rated along early, closed stoutly under a drive. OPTIMUS was unable to menace the leaders. MYNHEER weakened.

SECOND RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 1:46½. Off at 1:47. Winner, Mrs. S. Bennett's b. f. (3), by Rustic—Areopsan. Trained by E. Bietas. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 3-5, 1:15 3-5, 1:43, 1:47 3-5.

ZIPWICK	107	3	1	3nk	4h	6½	6h	Adams	51.20

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TAILSPIN, $10.60, $4.00, $3.20; GUN MAN, $2.80, $2.40; MULLAH, $5.20.

TAILSPIN, crowded back when the break came and very sluggish to settle in her stride, was far out of contention for six furlongs, found her stride while securing racing room on the inside and, reaching the leaders entering the home stretch, disposed of her opposition to draw out at will. GUN MAN went very wide while setting the pace, was unable to meet the winner's game finish. MULLAH, well back for six furlongs, passed tiring horses. MIRAGE tired badly, as did ZIPWICK.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:18. Off at 2:21. Winner, Brookmeade Stable's ch. g. (2), by Sunference—Winburn. Trained by G. R. Tompkins. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:48 3-5, 1:14 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WEATHERPROOF, $12.70, $5.70, $3.70; MY SWEETS, $15.50, $6.00; TONEY PRINCESS, $3.40.

WEATHERPROOF, restrained while racing in pursuit of the leaders, was forced very wide when moving up on the outside entering the home stretch, finished gamely, however, and was up in the last sixteenth. MY SWEETS, showing marked improvement and going in excellent form, raced TONEY PRINCESS into submission while saving some ground and fought it out stubbornly. TONEY PRINCESS went into a good lead and, tiring, lost ground when making the stretch turn and faltered as if short. PORTERDI was hard ridden and could not improve his position. RIDEAWAY was never a factor.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:50. Off at 2:50½. Winner, Mrs. James Arthur's ch. c. (3), by Bondale—Preesy Sneezy. Trained by J. F. Mayberry. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:15, 1:42, 1:48 4-5.

VOLTEAR	123	5	5	5	5	5	5	Romano	1.95

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BERBER, $19.30, $7.80, $4.00; HATBROOM, $6.20, $2.80; SYRIAC, $2.90.

BERBER, permitted to race under slight reserve in the early stages, gradually improved his speed, reached the leaders when rounding the far turn and, closing with splendid courage, were HATBROOM down to the wire in the finish. HATBROOM, under restraint while forcing the pace, displaced LITTLE NAP when ready, saved ground and held on stoutly. SYRIAC closed with good courage.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $10,000 added. Walden Handicap. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:20½. Off at 3:21½. Winner, A. C. Bostwick's ch. c. (2), by Prince Pal—Killashandra. Trained by J. W. Healy. Value to winner, $10,325; second, $2,000; third, $1,000; fourth, $500. Time, 0:23 4-5, 0:48 3-5, 1:13 4-5, 1:41, 1:47 4-5.

† Greentree Stable entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MATE, $6.30, $6.60, out; SWEEP ALL, $8.10, out; TWENTY GRAND, out.

MATE broke fast and was sent along for a position going to the first turn, was taken under slight restraint while racing on the outside down the back stretch, moved up with good speed to join the leaders and, in a game finish, took command inside the final furlong to win hard ridden. SWEEP ALL, displayed splendid ability on the footing, raced SURF BOARD into defeat and showed rare courage to fight it out with the winner. TWENTY GRAND, unable to stay in early contention, closed gamely in the final drive. SURF BOARD was stoutly ridden in an effort to force a rapid pace and weakened from his efforts. BACKGAMMON was beaten after a half.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:52. Off at 3:58½. Winner, E. F. Sanford's b. g. (3), by Nutcracker—Princess Seth. Trained by J. Edwards. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:24, 0:49 2-5, 1:16.

STRONG TACKLE	114	5	10	10½½	11½½	12	12	Garner	40.35

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PARNELL BOUND, $14.00, $8.50, $5.80; STURDY, $11.80, $6.30; WICKER, $9.50.

PARNELL BOUND, going in good fashion, and a keen factor from the start, joined the leaders at the final furlong pole and, continuing willingly, outstayed STURDY. Latter, on the inside from the start, closed stoutly in the heaviest footing. WICKER raced TOKI into submission, but could not stay with the first two. FIRST MISSION was going stoutly at the end. CANDY PIG went evenly. TOKI stopped suddenly.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,300; allowances. For all ages. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 4:25. Off at 4:25½. Winner, Audley Farm's b. c. (3), by Ormondale—Wood Violet. Trained by M. Henderson. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:24, 0:49 2-5, 1:14 2-5, 1:41, 1:47 1-5.

WINNIPEG	113	1	4	5½	5½½	5½	6	Garner	9.50

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WOODCRAFT, $7.30, $4.00, $3.10; STORM, $4.60, $3.40; RACCOON, $2.70.

WOODCRAFT, showing a fondness for the footing, was not hurried to reach contention, moved up fast after six furlongs, wore the leaders down steadily and was gradually drawing clear at the finish. STORM, a good mud runner, was rated close up, gained a brief lead at the final furlong pole, but could not withstand the winner. RACCOON had a lot taxed out of him, being rushed to keep pace with CROSSBONES and faltered badly in the final drive. CROSSBONES had good speed for six furlongs.

DEVITT PREP BEATEN IN N.Y. FRAY

Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Columbia University's freshmen closed their 1930 football season this afternoon on South Field by defeating the strong Devitt Prep School from Washington by the score of 6 to 0. It was the first defeat of the season the Southerners suffered.

Columbia scored the touchdown shortly after the game opened, when a Devitt man fumbled Wilder's kick-off and a Lion Cub recovered it on Devitt's 20-yard line. A few smashes at the line put Newt Wilder, Columbia's new star, over for the six points. The place kick was blocked.

Touchdown—Wilder. Substitutions—Columbia, Wuers for Dramba; Farrack for Migliore; Rodman for Phillips; Dockery for McDowell. Devitt—St. John for Millard.

LEADERS IN BIG TEN FACE TESTS TODAY

with Northwestern having the edge, because of important reserve material. Northwestern will take the field under a handicap, due to the loss of Pug Rentner, full back and forward passing ace, who not only will be unable to play tomorrow, but also will be out of the Notre Dame game a week hence. Rentner rates as a forward passing star comparable to Harry Newman, of Michigan, and without him the Wildcats will have to do considerable moving around with the back field. Capt. Hank Bruder and Quarter Back Lee Hanley will do the passing, with Bob Russell at full back.

Michigan Favorite Over Minnesota.

Michigan hits its last tough obstacle on the road to championship consideration in meeting Minnesota. The Wolverines are primed for the fiercest battle of the season because of the traditional rivalry existing between the two elevens. However, they will enter the game a favorite, because of their smooth-working forward pass attack with Harry Newman as an outstanding star in heaving the oval. The eleven with a pass threat is like a baseball team with a home run star. One smash over the fence beats in baseball and one long accurate heave turns defeat into victory in football. Newman has passed Michigan to victory in all of the Wolverines' triumphs, beating Harvard a week ago with a sensational long shot through the air.

LITTLE PICKS YALE, N. Y. U. AND FORDHAM

SWARTHMORE-URSINUS—Ursinus, TEMPLE-LAFAYETTE—Temple moving too smoothly to be upset. TULANE-GEORGIA—Travel may hurt Georgia, but I believe they should win. U. S. MILITARY ACADEMY-KENTUCKY WESLEYAN—Not much trouble for Army.

U. S. NAVAL ACADEMY-SOUTHERN METHODIST—Believe Navy will take this one. VANDERBILT-TENNESSEE—Favor Vanderbilt. VILLANOVA-OGLETHORPE—Good game, but Villanova should come through.

WASHINGTON-WASHINGTON STATE—Quite a game, but Washington State has too much power. WASHINGTON AND JEFFERSON—BUCKNELL—Bucknell. WESTERN MARYLAND—MOUNT ST. MARY'S—Western Maryland to win by about any score that they wish.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

YOU'VE probably tossed a stone into a pool many times and watched the ripples spread across the smooth surface. Those waves seem to travel outward. But in reality they do not! If a chip is thrown upon this rippling surface its only motion will be up and down. It is only the force that travels. The water remains in the same place. It is the same with ocean waves that appear to move rapidly across the surface.

"ALBIE BOOTH TOOK THE COW-HIDE FOR A 20-YARD GAIN" wouldn't sound exactly right, but it would be correct. Maybe some of you old-timers can explain how the football came to be dubbed "PIGSKIN"? (?)

The authority for the statement that the elephant's nearest relative, the tiny rock rabbit, is the only animal that makes hay while the sun shines is Warden Davis, Jasper Park, Alberta. The coney, as the rabbit is often called, cuts grass when it is green and lets it cure in the sun, turning it over daily. When the grass becomes hay it is stored for the winter.

Monday, today's pictures will be explained. JOHN HIX.

TECH-EASTERN GAME AT PARK LIKELY

School Heads Act Today On Move

Hardell Scrimmages Tech; Eastern Given Blackboard Drill.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

AT a meeting of the faculty advisers of the high schools yesterday it was decided that the question of the scene of Tuesday's final game of the high school series, featuring Tech's and Eastern's undefeated teams, would be settled this morning at the weekly meeting of principals.

Possibilities that the game, the proceeds of which will go to charity, and upon the outcome of which the championship of the high schools will hinge, would be shifted from Central Stadium to Griffith Stadium, where a large crowd could be accommodated, loomed distinct last night when an unofficial poll of principals showed four of the five in favor of Griffith Stadium.

Equipped, in approved college fashion, with the other's plays, Tech and Eastern are working hard in preparation for their three-fold important game next Tuesday at either Central or Griffith Stadiums. It will be the last game of the high school series; the championship hangs in the balance.

Hardell in Usual Frame of Mind.

Coach Hardell was in his usual frame of mind as he put his huskies through their workout, but Hardell's valuable assistant, Coach Spencer, was inclined to view the present edition of Tech as the finest eleven Hardell has turned out in his stay at the school. Spencer does not believe that they are as smart as the 1928 team, nor as tough as last year's lot, but he believes their native athletic ability would pull them through against either of these teams.

Hardell's first team, with Nelson, Reichman, Sachs and Gormley in the back field went through a light scrimmage yesterday against a third string eleven. Assistant Coach Wondrack had charge of a big team of sophomores who will be schooled in Eastern style of play and used against Tech's first stringers until the day before the tilt.

Eastern Concentrates On Blackboard.

Coach Kelley, of Eastern, confined Eastern's work yesterday to a blackboard drill. His men weathered the Central game very well and the feeling among the players themselves is that their hardest test is passed.

Plans for the break-up of Tech's famous spinner plays was concentrated on at Eastern. A scrub team has been equipped with Tech's basic plays.

Tech goes into its last game of the season without once having made use of the forward pass, usually one department of Tech's play that is outstanding.

G. W. Frosh to Battle St. John's Yearlings

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 14.—Three athletic contests will be staged here tomorrow morning preceding the rush of football fans to get away for Baltimore for the Navy-Southern Methodist gridiron tilt. A fourth event will take place away from home.

The St. John's Freshmen Eleven will entertain the Freshmen of George Washington University on the local college gridiron and the Johnnies will go to College Park for a cross-country run with University of Maryland.

At the Naval Academy, the Navy Plebes will stack up against the eleven of Mercersburg Academy of Pennsylvania, and the varsity soccer team will meet Villanova College of Pennsylvania on the pitch.

Georgetown Prep Meets Swavely Team Today

Georgetown Prep will make its final trip of the season today when it journeys to Manassas, Va., for a game with Swavely Prep.

The future Hilltoppers leave this morning with coach and star performer on the injured list, Ralph Duplin, Garrett Park mentor and former G. U. luminary, was injured by a fall between the halves of the St. John's game last week, while Capt. Dan Heskins has been handicapped by an injured hand for the las tthree weeks.

The only comparative scores available points out that the Prepmen must be on their toes to turn out a victory today. Gonzaga lost to the Virginians by a 19-to-6 count, while the Purple bowed to Georgetown only at 20 to 19.

MARYLAND U. CHOICE OVER VA. POLYTECH

Longer Than Usual Friday Drill Yesterday.

Tech's starting line-up will be, Seamon and McIntire, ends; Stark and Green, tackles; Hite and Jones, guards; Brown, center; Capt. Hooper, quarter back; Owens and Spear or Hardwick, half backs; Howard, full back. Green goes to right tackle for Ritter in the only line change; and if Hardwick plays, the Old Liners will face the same back-field quartet that upset the Cavaliers a week ago.

Because muddy fields slowed the Tech squad down Wednesday and Thursday, Coach Neal turned the customary light Friday practice into a longer drill, that lasted until dark. The Tech mentor was prepared tonight to make a determined bid for victory to avert a clean Maryland sweep through Virginia "Big Four" teams. Grinus, tackle, probably will not play, and Bus Hall and Bunt Otley, half backs, were slightly hurt.

The Cadet corps will twice parade through Norfolk streets tomorrow and will go through maneuvers on the field just before the game. Through the efforts of alumni in Norfolk and vicinity, a full day of entertainment awaits the corps. All cadets from Norfolk, Portsmouth, Newport News and vicinity will be permitted to remain at home over Sunday and return by special train to Blacksburg Sunday night.

By DILLON GRAHAM.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—On a rain-swept and bleak battle front in New Orleans two of Dixie's strongest gridiron machines, Tulane and Georgia, match strength and skill tomorrow to decide which will remain unbeaten in Southern Conference play.

Intermittent rain has fallen in the Crescent City all week, and weather forecasts point to the game being played on a quagmire. General rains throughout the South today gave indications that other important games would be contested on soggy gridirons.

Georgia Takes Final Drill In Mud.

The Georgia Team arrived in New Orleans today and took a light final drill this afternoon. Tulane has won three conference games and has lost only to Northwestern, while Georgia has two conference victories and a scoreless tie with Florida in addition to intersectional wins over Yale and New York University.

At Montgomery, Alabama hopes to make Louisiana State its seventh conference victim of the season. The Baton Rouge Tigers are in good shape, but their coach, Russ Cohen, entertains little hopes of stopping the Crimson Tide.

Landon Prep Wins, 7-0, Over Episcopal High B

Landon Prep's team visited Alexandria yesterday and returned home on the long end of a 7-0 victory over the Episcopal High Reserves. The contest was played on Hoxton Field.

Landon scored in the second period when Bill Seccombe, full back, led a drive down from midfield and charged over for the tally from the 4-yard line. Episcopal was offside for the extra point.

West Coast Conference Records Risked Today

San Francisco, Calif., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Coast conference football reaches its apex tomorrow with the scene laid in the Pacific Northwest, where championship aspirations of two undefeated teams will receive final tests. Washington State and Oregon, undefeated and untied, will face traditional rivals in their last conference games of the season. Winner of five conference games, including those with California and Southern California, Coach Orin Hollingbery's Washington State squad will line up against Washington in the annual State classic at Seattle.

Victor in three contests, Oregon will meet its old-time foe, Oregon State, at Corvallis.

Favorites to win, Washington State and Oregon will finish in a tie for the title if they come through tomorrow as expected. Conference championships are decided on a "games won and lost" basis, and, technically, Oregon can claim a share of honors despite a schedule much weaker than Washington State's.

Other big conference teams will see action tomorrow in minor games, all of them pointing toward important clashes to come. Southern California, planning for its December 6 setto with Notre Dame at Los Angeles, will entertain the University of Hawaii eleven.

Training School Plays Ft. Myer Gridmen Today

National Training chool plays its second game of the wek today on the Training chool field when the Fort Myer gridmen are entertained in a ga mecaheduled to start at 2:30 o'clock.

The alleged incorrigibles droped a close contest to the Catholic University freshmen last Tuesday by a 6-to-0 count, and lom as favorites today against the Militiamen.

No Changes in Panther Team for Ohio State

Pittsburgh, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Pittsburgh's Panthers will use the line-up that gained a one-point victory last week-end from Carnegie Tech in facing the Big Ten stalwards of Ohio State at Columbus tomorrow.

The Panthers are expected to start he game with Collins and Macmurdo, at ends; Quatse and Tully, tackle; Milligan and Lewis, guards; Daugherty, center; Baker, quarter back; Heiser and Reider, halves and Clark, full back.

WOLVERINES PRACTICE.

A final practice for the game with the O'Reilly A. C., in Richmond, tomorrow afternoon will be staged by the Wolverines tonight at 7 o'clock on the Virginia Avenue Playgrounds. The Wolves will meet at Sixteenth and E streets southeast tomorrow morning at 8:30 sharp to leave by bus for the Virginia city.

St. John's Meets Gonzaga In 12th Annual Fray Today

FOR the first time in the twelve years of competition between the two schools, Gonzaga enters the St. John's game today definitely the under dog. The contest gets under way at Griffith Stadium at 2:30 o'clock.

Gonzaga has been hit hard this year in many ways destined to call for a lowering of its colors today. Before the season commenced graduation had taken a heavy toll from the purple. Forced by this turn of events to play with an all-sophomore squad, Gonzaga has received throughout the season a host of injuries bound to reduce the efficiency of the squad.

Coach Paully Byrne's Cadets are in their best physical shape of the year. The former Hilltopper has been putting them through daily workouts at Tidal Basin Field and is satisfied with the way his team has been drilling.

Comparative Scores Favor St. John's.

Using comparative scores as a basis, the Saints appear to have the edge securely tied up in that Central beat Gonzaga, 12-0, while they were dropping a 7-6 debate to the same team. St. John's lost to LaSalle Prep, 7-0, while the Cumberland boys handed Gonzaga a 33-0 lacing.

V. M. I. Harriers Winners By a Point in State Contest

LEXINGTON, Va., Nov. 14.—Led by Capt. Ham Smith, V. M. I. varsity cross-country runners nosed out the V. P. I. harriers, defending champions, by a single point to win the second annual meet for State Southern Conference teams here today. Washington and Lee tied with Virginia for third place.

Smith covered the course of 5.6 miles in 30 minutes 40 seconds, the time being nearly a minute slower than his own course record. Billy Lauck, Virginia, placed second, a head of Capt. Johnny Miles, of V. P. I., with Jack Bond and Henry Wise, of the Cadet team, fourth and fifth. V. P. I.'s well-balanced team of freshmen runners captured the junior chase of 3.1 miles, with V. M. I. second, Washington and Lee, third, and Virginia, fourth. Hudgins, Tech star, led the pack home in 16 minutes 14 seconds, with Turner and Neidengard, of V. M. I., in the next two places.

All three youngsters were well under the old course record. The Techmen annexed five of the next six places, with Stern, of Washington and Lee, finishing sixth. Every runner of the field of 56 in both races finished strongly, though Holloway, Virginia freshman, suffered a broken finger when knocked down by a frightened horse along the course. The team scores: Varsity—V. M. I., 33; V. P. I., 34; Virginia and Washington and Lee, 81 each, tied. Freshmen—V. P. I., 25; V. M. I. 42; Washington and Lee, 84; Virginia, 88.

MAXEY TOPS SCORES IN VIRGINIA

William-Mary Star Has 13 Touchdowns to His Credit.

(Associated Press.)

OF THE 159 touchdowns and 71 extra points made by Virginia college football scorers this season, Red Maxey, the State leader, has scored 13 touchdowns and 2 extra points for William and Mary.

These men lead the 168 Virginia football players who have scored in all games played by Virginia college elevens, both in and out of the State.

Maxey has three more games to play in an effort to tie his high point record of 93. One of the games is to be played on the home field Saturday night, and the last two are scheduled for Richmond.

Throughout the season Byrd Hooper has been attracting considerable attention with his accurate kicks for extra points, which in at least two games have turned the tide of victory to the Gobblers. The Gobblers have scored thirteen touchdowns during the season, and Capt. Hooper's toe has added the extra point for eleven of them. Two were blocked. When he got off the kicks they went squarely between the goal posts.

Langley Field Aviators Host to Gallaudet

Gallaudet College grid squad leaves early this morning for Langley Field, Va., where the Langley Field Aviators will be met this afternoon. Two regulars, Bradley, end, and Gamblin, tackle, will be left behind today, both being on the injured list as a result of last Saturday's tilt with Shepherd.

Little is known of the strength of the Aviators, but Coach Hughes expects the closest sort of battle. His team will be outweighed slightly, but otherwise the Aviators hold no particular advantage over the Kendall Greeners.

TARHEELS PRIMED.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 14 (A.P.)—After a light workout, the University of North Carolina Tarheels left by train this afternoon for Concord, N. C., where they will spend the night. Tomorrow morning they will move on to Davidson for a clash with the Wildcats of Davidson College. The Collins men were all reported in condition for the contest.

Washington-Lee Wins, 25-0, Over Culpeper

Special to The Washington Post.

Ballston, Va., Nov. 14.—Washington-Lee's big battering bunch of huskies ran roughshod over Culpeper High today before a large gallery by the score of 25 to 0.

Lead by Capt. Stan Mortimer, who scored two of his team's touchdowns, the Little Generals exhibited a smooth attack which saw them score in three of the four periods.

Mortimer turned in the brightest individual work of the day when, in the last quarter he stepped to two touchdowns after sprints of 45 and 63 yards. Both were from scrimmage.

Culpeper never threatened, and only once came as close as the winner's 30-yard line.

Navy All-Opponent Team Mostly Irish

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Nov. 14.—The Naval Academy Football Team coaching staff headed by Head Coach Bill Ingram has selected a Navy all-opponent team to date for the Annapolis Evening Capital.

Their selection is jammed full of surprises in that the first all-star team includes nine Notre Dame players, plus Fessler, of Ohio State, and Battles, of West Virginia Wesleyan. Schwartz, the Notre Dame half back, whom Battles replaces, is listed on the second team but the Notre Dame left end is not mentioned. The teams follow:

First team—L. E., Fessler, Ohio State; L. T., Culver, Notre Dame; L. G., Kassis, Notre Dame; C., Yarr, Notre Dame; R. G., Metzger, Notre Dame; R. E., Conley, Notre Dame; Q. B., Carideo, Notre Dame; L. H. B., Battles, West Virginia Wesleyan; R. H. B., Brill, Notre Dame; F. B., Savolld, Notre Dame.

On the second team there is another array of stars, including four Ohio State players, as follows: L. E., Bylis, Princeton; L. T., Davis, Duke; L. G., Wingert, Ohio State; R. T., Haubrich, Ohio State; R. E., Larkins, Ohio State; Q. B., Scott, William and Mary; L. H. B., Hinchoman, Ohio State; R. H. B., Schwartz, Notre Dame; F. B., Murray, Duke.

Fifteen Court Tilts Booked by Gallaudet

Fifteen college quints, commencing with Haverford on December 12 and ending with Shepherd on March 6, have been booked to complete the Gallaudet College Basket Ball schedule.

Walter Krug, Kendall Green coach, has been putting a large squad through preliminary workouts in the process of separating the chaff from the wheat. Delmar Cosgrove, high scorer of the District last season, is again back in uniform. Among other aspirants for a berth on the squad is Konrad Hokanson, a reliable all around courtman from last year's squad.

Other veterans who will be on hand within the next fortnight are Johnny Ringle, John Wurdemann and George Brown. James Rayhill, a freshman who performed well for Kendall Prep last year, is among the new men working out with Krug.

December 13, Drexel Institute, at Philadelphia.

January 7, University of Maryland, at College Park.

January 9, American University, at American University.

January 10, Columbus University, at Kendall Green.

January 23, Maryland State Normal School, at Towson.

January 31, University of Baltimore, at Kendall Green.

February 4, Catholic University, at Brookland.

February 7, Benjamin Franklin University, at Kendall Green.

February 14, Southeastern University, at Y. M. C. A.

February 20, Maryland State Normal School, at Kendall Green.

D. C. ROLLERS FACING BIG NIGHT

National Junior Tourney Features; Greeks vs. Italians.

HEADLINING a busy Saturday night's bowling for local pinmen will be the National Duckpin Bowling Congress tournament for juniors and for boys under 14, which will be staged on the Arcadia, Georgetown Recreation and Convention Hall drives. Three games will be rolled tonight and the remaining three games next Saturday on the same alleys. Total pins will count.

An interesting match tonight at the Coliseum drives will bring together the Ahepa All-Greek Team and the Italian All-Stars. The engagement is carded for 8 o'clock.

D. C. Teams Meet in Intercity League Match.

The match between Georgetown Recreation rollers and Rendezvous pinmen in the Washington-Baltimore Intercity League, which was postponed from last week, will be held tonight on the Georgetown Recreation alleys. Sam Benson, Herb Young, Ed Bromley, George Gradt and Dave Burrows will roll for the home team, while Mac Wood, Al Work, Harold Daly, Red Morgan and Phil Goodall will compose the Rendezvous contingent.

Howard Campbell and Bernard Frye, Lucky Strike stars, who are 14 pins behind George Lang and Ed Blakeney, of the Baltimore Bowling Center Team, as the result of the first five games of their intercity match rolled on the Lucky Strike drives last Saturday night, will attempt to stage a come-back tonight, and Jack Wolstenholme, King Pin luminary, will attempt to increase his 43-pin lead over Wesley Askew, of Baltimore. Both matches will be rolled in the Maryland metropolis.

Business and Western Game Booked Monday

The high school grid contest between Western and Business, scheduled to be played yesterday afternoon at Central Stadium, has been postponed until Monday afternoon because of yesterday's early rainfall.

The cellar position in the series standing awaits the loser of the tilt. Business has yet to win a series game, losing to Tech 39—0, to Eastern 7—0 and to Central 24—0.

Western has fared little better this year, losing to Central 14—7, playing a scoreless tie with Eastern, and losing to Tech by a 33—0 count.

The postponement until Monday will be a distinct aid to Western, whose regular full back, center and end, Webb, Pimper and Buscher, are on the slightly injured list.

Football Too Costly, Abandoned by College

Wilson, N. C., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Giving the "great expense" of the sport as the reason, Dr. H. S. Hilley, president of Atlantic Christian College, today announced it would discontinue intercollegiate football competition for two years. He said it would continue intercollegiate competition in basket ball, tennis and track.

William-Mary Cubs Defeat Emerson, 20-0

Special to The Washington Post.

Williamsburg, Va., Nov. 14.—William and Mary Freshman Team, displaying a brilliant passing attack, downed Emerson Institute, of Washgame, 20 to 0. Palese and Choiko ington, here tonight in a hard-fought were outstanding for the Papoose while McCarthy and Draper shone for Emerson.

Emerson recieved and was held for downs. After a series of punts, a long pass from Robenbaum to Henderson put the ball on Emerson's 10-yard line. Emerson held for downs and McCarthy punted to Sullivan who ran back to Emerson's 25-yard line. Sullivan and Rozenbaum gained 13 yards on two plays and Palese ran through right tackle for the first score. Rozenbaum missed the kick. Score, 6-0.

Emerson received to start second quarter. McCarthy gained 9 yards on a criss-cross but had to be carried from the field with a leg injury. Trilling made first down, but on the next play, Palese, Indian full back, intercepted an Emerson pass and raced 35 yards to score. Emerson was off side on the kick for point.

William and Mary started its second team in second half and was until a long pass, Chalko to Henderheld on even terms by the visitors son, with the latter running 15 yard,s enabled the Papoose to score. A lateral pass netted the extra point, with Henderson receiving.

V. P. I. FROSH TAKE 4TH IN ROW

Washington and Lee Cubs Trounced by 28 to 0 Score.

Special to The Washington Post.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Nov. 14.—V. P. I. freshman eleven won its fourth straight game today, defeating Washington and Lee freshmen, 28 to 0, on a soggy field. Hard-driving backs rolled up one touchdown in the second quarter, one in the third and two in the fourth, while an aggressive line and smart play in the Poly secondary stopped drives in Poly territory.

Robinson, Poly full back, scored three touchdowns through the heavier Washington and Lee line after sustained drives down the field. Casey, fast Poly half back, raced 75 yards off-tackle in the fourth quarter through W. and L. The V. P. I. Cubs have scored 117 points to opponents' 8 in four games.

Charlottesville High Badly Beaten, 32-0

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Nov. 14.—Capt. Charles Weaver covered himself with glory in his final appearance for Harrisonburg High here today when the Blue Streaks walloped Charlottesville High, 32 to 0. The defeat was the worst ever suffered by Charlottesville in high school competition. Weaver, who had been out with injuries for five weeks, climaxed his efforts with a 91-yard run for a touchdown in the last five minutes. He previously had dashed 20 and 30 yards across the goal line.

Runs by Shank and Dundore paved the way for the first Harrisonburg touchdown in the first five minutes of play. The second came when a pass, Switzer to Heltzel, netted 50 yards and a touchdown. Charlottesville, completely outplayed, threatened o score only in the final minutes hen two long passes placed the ball n the 10-yard line. A fumble resulted and, on the first play, Capt. Weaver did his stuff through the line or 91 yards.

Maryland U. Charity Game Negotiations Off

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Negotiations for the transfer of the Maryland-Vanderbilt football game November 29 from Nashville to Baltimore, with a percentage of the receipts to go to charity, were declared off today by officials of the Community Chest, which sought the change. Too many details were impossible to arrange, it was said.

Officials of Vanderbilt had made the condition that a percentage of the charity receipts go to the Tennessee city.

With two Maryland games scheduled for the Baltimore Stadium in quick succession, it was feared the gate receipts would be impaired seriously by a third. Negotiations now are under way seeking to have a part of the receipts of the Maryland-Johns Hopkins game, also scheduled for Baltimore, to go to charity.

Apaches, Lansdownes Agree to Postponement

Inclement weather conditions and wet grounds forced the postponement of the game scheduled for last night between the Apaches, District independent champs and the Lansdownes, 1929 titleholders of Baltimore, under the flood lights at Griffith Stadium.

Manager Seymour Hall, of the Apaches, and Nate Weinstock, Lansdowne pilot, are to meet today to set another date for the battle. The game probably will be played sometime during the coming week.

DUKE GRIDMEN REST.

Durham, N. C., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Duke's gridmen took their usual pregame rest today, preparatory to meeting the North Carolina State Wolfpack at Raleigh tomorrow. The result of the game will have a bearing on State championship claims, if the State Collegians should upset the dope and break the winning streak of the Blue Devils. Jimmy Dehart's squad was reported in good condition.

SOUTH CAROLINA READY.

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—A final workout today completed South Carolina's preparation for the encounter with Sewanee on Melton Field here tomorrow afternoon.

Billy Laval continued to shift his backfield material, and remained silent as to his probable starting lineup. Monk Shand was calling signals from his regular position at tackle, as he has done since Boineau was removed from the line-up as the result of injuries.

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Nov. 14.—Les Deavers, manager of the Alpha Delta Omega Football Team, has booked the Alcoras for a game at Baggett's Stadium on Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Manager Cleveland Shaw, of Engine Company No. 5, reports his full squad will be available for Sunday's city championship tussle with the Iroquois Athletic Club here. The game is attracting considerable attention.

The Pirate Athletic Club will battle the Comets, leaders in the 125-pound division, on Sunday. The Washington outfit has made a great showing on the gridiron.

Fred Petitt, former basket ball star of Alexandria, has been offered the job of coaching the Alpha Delta Omega Basket Ball Team.

The Episcopal High School Football Team will bid for its seventh consecutive victory on the gridiron Saturday afternoon, mixing with the Shenendoah Valley Military Academy Team from Winchester, Va. Jack Martin, an Alexandria boy, is captain of the invaders. He plays in the back field and is their triple threat.

This game will be played on Hoxton Field and begins promptly at 3:15 o'clock. A large crowd from Alexandria and vicinity will witness the fray.

A blind pig bowling tournament will be held at the Health Center Saturday night at 8 o'clock. Bert Lynn is leading for the men's high score of the week with 147, while Mrs. Theresa Haynes has the highest game for women with 107.

COPPERS' STRENGTH PUSHES STOCKS UP

GRANBY ADVANCES 4⅞

New York, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Copper was king on the financial markets today, inspired by a 12-cent quotation for the red metal—representing a 2½-cent advance this week—stock prices scored their fourth successive rise, which meant that the rally had endured longer than any upward movement since May.

Net gains ranged from 1 to 5 points, but the trading was not particularly active until the last half hour when a scramble for the copper issues brought general covering throughout the list. Sales for the day totaled 2,640,690 shares, a drop of about 800,000 from yesterday.

Continuation of the rally, which averages 11 points for the four days, emphasized the influence which the depressed commodities have wielded over speculative sentiment. Prospects of a curtailment in copper output estimated at about 20,000 tons a month and the resultant gain in prices seemed to relieve the market of some of its worries.

Influence of Copper Cited.

The copper situation admittedly has been a difficult hazard on the road to recovery, and if the present improvement can be retained or expanded Wall street believes the consequences may be rather far reaching in that other basic staples may be helped by copper's example.

Another bullish factor was the drastic deflation in Federal Reserve brokers' loans, from which all traces of the big bull market have now been removed. Much of the current buying is obviously coming from the strongest sources, and any liquidation remaining will doubtless consist largely of loans held by interior banks.

The response of bonds to the stock market's performance was notable, especially in the case of secondary issues, which had been heavily sold early in the week. Wheat lost ⅝ to 1⅝ cents a bushel in sympathy with lower prices in Winnipeg and Liverpool and a bearish Canadian government crop estimate. Corn also closed lower, losing 1⅛ to 2¼ cents, reflecting lower Southwestern markets and larger receipts. Cotton rallied 5 to 14 points net.

Chrysler Gains Slightly.

A reduction of the Chrysler dividend announced after the close had been largely discounted by the stock, which closed fractionally higher. The automobile company's net loss for the third quarter was a forceful illustration of the difficulties that have beset the industry this year.

Other business news was routine. Weekly trade reviews reported continued irregularity. Dun's said mid-November was bringing no "really significant change" from the trends of recent months, although Bradstreet's found developments somewhat less one-sided during the past week.

Stocks ran into profit taking in the forenoon, but losses of 1 to 2 points were easily assimilated and the market worked slowly upward until late in the session, when 12-cent copper was announced. Then the copper shares, which had been making reasonably steady progress, attracted much wider buying, and the leaders of the group extended their gains to 3 points. Chile was up 4 and Granby 4⅞ at the close.

American Telephone Up 3⅞.

U. S. Steel rose to 146⅞, ending the day at the top, up 1⅞ points. American Telephone closed at 191½, 13 points above its recent low, for a net gain of 3¾. Union Pacific was strong, with a 5-point advance. General Electric, American Can, General Motors, Bethlehem Steel, American Tobacco "B," Standard Oil of New Jersey, Union Carbide, Westinghouse, Erie, Southern Railway, New York Central, Americatn Water Works, Electric Power & Light and Consolidated Gas rose 1 to 2. Amusements shares firmed after another early display of weakness, Fox and Loew's each gained a point.

Sterling cables touched a new low for the year, at $4.85⅝. The French franc was firmer. Exchanges generally were irregular.

Money was so abundantly supplied that about $50,000,000 offered in the call market went unloaned.

Chrysler Dividend Cut To 25 From 75 Cents

New York, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Directors of the Chrysler Corporation today reduced the quarterly dividend to 25 cents a share, compared with 75 cents previously paid.

The corporation reported for the third quarter net loss of $916,106, against net profit of $6,635,179, equal to $1.49 a share, in the third quarter of 1929. In the June quarter this year, the corporation had net profit of $3,238,139, which lacked 2 cents of meeting the dividend requirements for the quarter. In the March quarter this year the corporation earned 6 cents a share.

NEW YORK COTTON.

After selling up from an irregular opening the market declined under realising or liquidation but stiffened up again on a renewal of trade buying and covering. March contracts after advancing from 11.38 to 11.51, broke to 11.35, advanced to 11.60 and closed at 11.45. The general market closed easy at net advances of 5 to 14 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 9 points to an advance of 2 points. There was some selling on the relatively easy ruling of Liverpool and sentiment may have been somewhat unsettled by confusing rumors concerning possible changes in the Federal Farm Board or its policies. These rumors, however, were not confirmed and the market soon steadied on good trade buying particularly in the spring months and covering.

December advanced from 10.90 to 11.02 on the new contract, while May sold up from 11.30 to 11.77, making net advances of about 6 to 15 points. The demand then tapered off, and there was rather a sharp decline during the middle of the day on reports of Southern selling. While there also appeared to be considerable realising. The new December eased off to 11.87 and May to 11.61, making net declines of 10 to 15 points, but this brought in a renewal of demand from the trade and spots, while there appeared to be some Wall street buying. Offerings became light with prices working up to 11.14 for new December, and 11.86 for May in the late trading of 15 to 30 points net higher. The close was 12 to 20 points off from the best under realising.

The action of the stock market and the rise in advance of copper which some traders seemed to regard as indicating an improvement in the commodity situation probably contributed to the sharp afternoon advance and there were reports of some Western as well as Wall street and local buying in cotton. The census report showing domestic consumption of 444,494 bales for October, against 394,321 in September and 539,759 in October last year, was without apparent effect on the immediate market and readjustments of the technical position were considered partly responsible for the fluctuations.

Liverpool cables reported hedging and liquidation in that market. Exports today, 4,318, making 2,681,522 so far this season. Port receipts, 70,767. U. S. port stocks, 1,847.

NATURAL GAS LINE TO CITY PLANNED

Columbia Corporation Will Complete Extension Work Before Long.

TO SERVE VIRGINIA ALSO

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Contracts have been made to supply natural gas at wholesale to the gas companies serving Washington and York, Pa., according to announcement of President Philip G. Gossler, Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation, in a letter to be received by shareholders today. He states further that a 20-inch pipe line to this city from the existing lines of the Columbia System in southern Pennsylvania is in course of construction and will be completed about the first of the year.

President Gossler states that the foregoing will be the first section of a large high-pressure main pipe line system planned to be completed next year from the gas fields in Kentucky and West Virginia to the Eastern seaboard. This new line will supply the intervening territory in West Virginia, Virginia and Maryland and, supplemented by the southern Pennsylvania lines, will make available the great natural gas resources of the Columbia System to the large industrial and domestic markets along the Eastern seaboard.

The comparative consolidated income statement of the corporation and its subsidiary companies for the 12 months ended September 30, shows gross revenues of $101,138,348.11, as contrasted with $106,532,979.95 for the 1929 period. The decrease in revenues reported for the current year are due in large part, Mr. Gossler explains, to the warm weather experienced during the first part of the year in the territory served, resulting in materially reduced consumption of gas used by domestic consumers.

They are also a reflection of industrial conditions which have existed during this period throughout the country, resulting in less consumption of gas and electricity than during the same period last year. Furthermore, he cites, substantial amounts of the operating expenses in the gas department have been incurred in anticipation of future business, a continuation of the policy which has been followed with great benefit to shareholders in the past.

B. & O. Plans Improvements.

As the first part of improvements on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, calling for a total estimated expenditure of $1,185,000, contracts have been awarded for the construction of second track, revision of main track and extension of passing sidings between Bridge 74 at Hayesborough and West Alexander, Pa., a distance of 48 miles.

Sales of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., announced yesterday, were $100,960,189 for the month of October. This compares with $105,995,108 for the corresponding period a year ago, and shows a decrease of $5,034,919, or 4.75 per cent. Sales for the ten-month period ended October 31 were $901,129,179, compared with $856,940,565 for the same ten-month period in 1929, a gain of $44,188,614, or 5.16 per cent.

Col. Wade H. Cooper, president of Commercial National Bank, is in New York to attend the annual dinner of the American Academy of Political Science.

Shipments of Wheat Are Shown by Canada

Fort William, Ontario, Nov. 14 (A. P.).—Canada shipped 24,792,257 bushels of wheat abroad in five weeks ended October 31, the board of grain commissioners reported today.

Although snows tied up prairie harvest operations for several days, country elevators stocks now are larger than usual at this season.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Despite surprising relative strength shown by prices for December delivery of wheat here, the wheat market as a whole averaged much lower today. General belief was expressed that Farm Board allies were purchasing December wheat on a large scale on the other hand. Canada's 1930 wheat yield was officially estimated as 11,000,000 bushels larger than was forecast in September, and Canadian country marketings for 24 hours totaled 2,143,000 bushels, against 786,000 bushels a year ago.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous at ¼ to 2c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1⅝ to 2¼c down. Oats ¼ to ⅝c off, and provisions showing 12 to 42c drop.

As a result of the uneven character of wheat price changes, December wheat at times showed gains compared with yesterday's finish, whereas quotations for other deliveries were tending heavily downward. Under such circumstances the differences in value between December contracts and May contracts were cut more than half. However, during most of the time today the Chicago wheat market showed a decided downward slant. Owing a good deal to unlooked for setbacks in prices at Liverpool, with reports current that Argentine wheat cargoes were being diverted to England and that world shipments of wheat this week would prove heavy on account of large clearances from Russia.

Acting as a further drag on wheat prices here were reports that Kansas cooperative wheat organizations were struggling with serious financial problems similar to those of the Canadian growers' pool. Some of the Kansas cooperative bodies were reported as having accumulated storage charges which alone amounted to those of the Canadian growers' pool. Some of the Kansas cooperative bodies were reported as having accumulated storage charges which alone amounted to as much as 20c a bushel, aside from severe depreciation of prices since ownership wheat was acquired. Another bearish factor today was persistent slackness of export demand, together with word of a new transatlantic obstacle to overseas business, namely, notice that the Dutch government had proposed compulsory admixture of Holland-grown wheat with all imported grades.

Corn and oats values suffered in sympathy with wheat weakness. A break of 3-5c in premiums for white corn was without much delay was a further decline in prices for mill feeds.

Provisions went lower with grain, despite steadiness of hog values.

FIGHT TO KEEP OUT CEMETERY PUSHED

Board for Georges County, Refused Injunction, Enters Appeal.

BERWYN TRACT FIGURES

The fight over establishment of a cemetery on part of the old Woodward & Lothrop farm in the Berwyn district will be carried to the State Court of Appeals. M. Hampton Magruder yesterday filed an appeal against last year's decision by the Circuit Court.

Magruder is counsel for the county commissioners who were denied an injunction against the Northwest Cemetery Corporation by the Circuit Court. They had asked the writ to prevent establishment of the Berwyn graveyard.

The history of the cemetery, to be called the Washington Memorial Park, is long and controversial. It was first projected in 1920, and work on it began then. Also in that year a law was passed requiring that new establishments of that nature should obtain from the county commissioners permits before they were opened. J. Frank Lillard, head of the Northwest Cemetery group, claimed that work on his project was started before the passage of the law, and that he should therefore not be prohibited from continuing his memorial park.

The appeal is based on the fact the Circuit Court decision holds invalid that 1920 law, claiming that it gives the commissioners arbitrary power and is unconstitutional. Lillard and Ogle Marbury appear as attorneys for the Northwest Cemetery Corporation.

With E. B. Denford as master of ceremonies, the new unit of the Riverdale School was dedicated last night. Among the speakers who lauded both the building and the community it will serve were Nicholas Orem, county superintendent of schools; J. C. Moore, president of the Parent-Teacher Association, and Max Vollberg, mayor of the town.

Bird H. Dolby presented to the school a silk flag given to it by the Junior Order of American Mechanics. Music was furnished by the Citizens Band of Prince Georges County. School children also took part in the exercises. Mrs. May Willis Baker sang two solos and Miss Ruth Gary, a teacher in the Cottage City School, read a selection.

The audience was welcomed by Dr. C. A. Cary. The invocation was made by the Rev. Keith Custis. After the services those present were shown over the four rooms and the auditorium, which have been finished.

Seven hundred women, members of eleven Homemakers' clubs throughout Prince Georges County, gathered yesterday in the Oxon Hill School for the annual Achievement Day of the organization. Handiwork by members was displayed and hints on more efficient management of the home were exchanged. Miss V. M. Kellar, State home demonstration agent, spoke on "The Efficient Home."

Much of Miss Kellar's address was given over to discussion of the building and remodeling of houses, although she did not ignore the functions of homes once established. In building a new house, it is necessary to have ideas, she said. "The business of the architect you hire is to embody your ideas. If you haven't any, his work will fail, no matter how good an architect he is."

The Brandywine Club won first place in the original song contest which was one of the chief features of the program. Oxon Hill was second and the Suitland unit third. The clubs sang songs for which their members had written the words.

On the walls of the Oxon Hill School auditorium, where the meeting was held, were displayed old quilts and needlework, the property of members. Old china and silver, some of it brought to this country by the first settlers, was also on exhibition. Special numbers by other club members also were on the program.

The county commissioners will hold hearings on three questions of rezoning when they meet December 16. The properties affected are two lots in Tuxedo, belonging to Lester G. Berry; three in Greater Capital Heights, the property of J. W. Smith, and two in Fairmont Heights, owned by Patrick Diggs.

Owners of these lots are asking that their land be changed from residential to commercial zoning. The change has been approved by the Park and Planning Commission.

Fined $200 in police court yesterday for possession of liquor, Samuel C. Bird, of Washington, appealed his case and posted bond of $500 for his appearance before the circuit court at its next term. He was arrested near Laurel yesterday by County Policeman Harry Robinson, and was brought before the court immediately.

Fred O. Weismiller was fined $15 on the charge of reckless driving and parking without lights. He had been arrested by State Policeman W. A. Rogers. Adrian Cauter, convicted of driving without lights, paid $5 for the offense.

Six colored men, who had guessed wrong on the opening of the rabbit-hunting season by three days, were fined $25 each. They were arrested near Friendly, Md., by District Deputy Game Warden James W. Rogers. The convicted men are Milton Henson, Thomas Smith, Harold Stewart, Henry Roy, W. H. Stewart and James Taylor.

Pomona Grange of Prince Georges County has selected B. Geary Eppley, professor of agronomy at the University of Maryland, as its head for the next two years. He was chosen in place of J. B. Edelkamp, former master, who declined reelection. Prof. Eppley is the only faculty member of the Student Grange at the Maryland College.

Other new officers chosen were overseer, Augustus Wolfe, Townshend; chaplain, Miss Mollie Hall, Beltsville; steward, Thomas Joy, Chillum; treasurer, Summerfield D. Hall, Beltsville; secretary, W. F. Mulligan, Berwyn; lecturer, Mrs. Ella Nelley, Mount Rainier; gatekeeper, P. A. Gallant, Beltsville; assistant steward, J. B. Blandford, College Park; Ceres, Mrs. J. B. Edelkamp, Brandywine; Pomona, Mrs. Louise Anderson, Townshend; Flora, Miss Ruth Miller, Chillum, and ladies' assistant steward, Mrs. Emily Lepson, College Park.

More equitable distribution of the sum contributed by the county to the upkeep of the volunteer fire departments in Prince Georges is sought in a plan which will be presented to the advisory board of the county association when it meets next month.

The new method of dividing the appropriation is based on the equipment possessed by each company. For each piece of apparatus in class A, the company will receive $600; for each piece of class B, $400, while an additional sum, whose size is not yet known, will be paid to each company which has an ambulance and a unit of the county rescue squad. No company, however, will receive money on more than three pieces of equipment.

At present the county contributes $5,000 a year to the county association, which divides it equally between the nineteen member companies. If the change is approved by the advisory board, it will be embodied in a bill to be presented to the Legislature, authorizing the county commissioners to distribute the sum under the new plan. Another feature of the proposed schedule is the provision that no company which does not own a pumper shall be included in distribution of the funds.

RESEARCH CHEMIST EXPLAINS NEW FUEL

DISCUSSIONS ARE HELD

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—How ethylized gasoline has developed from a laboratory plaything to a commodity in general use was told by Dr. Graham Edgar, a New York director of research, in an address before the Virginia section of the American Chemical Society here tonight.

Chemists from all over Virginia were gathered here for the afternoon and evening meeting. Starting at 2:30 p. m., there was an inspection of research work in progress in the university laboratories, followed by informal gatherings for discussion groups.

Dr. Edgar spoke in the auditorium of the Cobb Chemical Laboratory. The meeting was preceded by a dinner in honor of the speaker at the University Commons.

Dr. Edgar has been director of research for a large nationally known corporation since 1924. He received the B. S. degree from Kentucky University in 1907 and his Ph. D. from Yale in 1909. Fourteen years of teaching chemistry followed. Most of them were spent at the University of Virginia. He left there six years ago.

The researches of Dr. Edgar cover a wide range of subjects in physical and analytical chemistry. More recently he has carried on a series of investigations into physical properties and other qualities of many hydrocarbons and related subjects. He was particularly conversant with such facts as are known about engine detonation.

Dr. W. G. Crockett, of the Medical College of Virginia, is chairman of the Virginia section of the American Chemical Society. Dr. Lauren B. Hitchcock, of the University of Virginia, editor of the section bulletin, was in charge of the program tonight.

Frederick Opens Bureau for Jobs

County Is Urged to Provide Work on Roads at Once.

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Nov. 14.—An unemployment bureau was opened in the Federated Charities building today, under the auspices of the Frederick County Emergency Drought Association. The move followed a conference between officials of the association and the county commissioners, at which the commissioners were urged to provide road work at once.

State Senator Emory L. Coblentz, David C. Winebrenner, secretary of State under Gov. Albert C. Ritchie; James H. Gambrill, jr., head of Grain Plant; Edgar H. McBride, lawyer, and others urged the commissioners to appropriate funds for highway improvement to relieve the distress facing many this winter.

Employers and those out of work are asked to register at the bureau. Failure of corn canning factories to operate, on account of the drought, has deprived hundreds of persons of from six to eight weeks of profitable employment.

Mrs. Ellen Keyser Dies At Cumberland Home

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 14.—Mrs. Mary Ellen Keyser, 42 years old, widow of Albert N. Keyser, Baltimore & Ohio engineer, who was killed at Okonoko, W. Va., June 21 last, died yesterday at her home, 319 Grand avenue, after an illness of seven years.

She is survived by one son, J. P. Morris, by a former marriage, and one daughter, Miss Esther Keyser; two brothers, John J. Leonard and James Leonard, both of Pittsburgh, and three sisters, Mrs. Margaret Wagner, Mount Union, Pa.; Mrs. Margaret White, Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Carl James Miller, this city. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning from St. Mary's Catholic Church.

ARLINGTON WILL ASK BRIDGE ROAD IN BILL

Measure Is to Be Introduced in Congress Session Next Month.

ACTION IS NOW AWAITED

ARLINGTON COUNTY,
BUREAU OF THE POST,
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

A bill which will give the Federal Government the means to build that portion of the boulevard to be known as the Lee boulevard across Arlington County from the Memorial Bridge to the northwest corner of the Fort Myer Military Reservation will again be before Congress at its session next month, it was learned from Representative R. Walton Moore yesterday.

Mr. Moore stated that all who know the situation recognize that in addition to the Mount Vernon boulevard, which is to connect with the Memorial Bridge, another approach to the bridge from the south must be provided, which will be partly on land owned by the Government and partly on land within the jurisdiction of Virginia. The bridge is nearing completion and the boulevard is being rapidly built, but the matter has not been decided. The Virginia Highway Commission will proceed whenever the Government is ready with some plan. This, however, awaits the action of Congress.

Mr. Moore said that at the last session of Congress identical bills relative to the matter were introduced by Senator Swanson and himself. The Senate bill passed that body, but the chairman of the House committee on roads was of the opinion that consideration of the measure should await the short session. It provides for an investigation, estimates and the formulation of a plan. He stated that he had been assured by the Bureau of Public Roads before Congress adjourned that this could be done without legislative authority. Therefore, it is now probable that by the time Congress convenes the Bureau of Public roads will be able to supply data on which final action can be based this winter to insure the completion of the approach before the opening of the bicentenary year.

Policing Mill'tary Roads.

Mr. Moore added that there seems to be no "unfinished business" in Congress pertaining to Arlington County locally except the approach to the Memorial Bridge and the effort to provide for policing the military roads in the county by the director of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission. The policing bill was favorably reported by the House committee on military affairs at the last session, but met some opposition when it was reached on the unanimous calendar. Mr. Moore hopes, however, that its enactment may be possible during the short session of Congress.

Supervisors Meet Today.

Efforts to solve the problem of where the funds are to come from to meet the many demands from citizens for extensions to the county water system will be the principal business before the meeting of the county board of supervisors today at the courthouse.

Chairman Edward Duncan yesterday declared that he did not know what action the board would take. He felt that it was far more important at this time to use all available funds for the extension of the water mains than for the building of roads.

"The roads in the county are at this time in better condition than I have ever seen them, and people are appealing for water, not only for domestic use but to provide means of heating their homes.

Another matter that will come before the board is a request from Robert H. Forman, zoning administrator, asking for the setting of a date for a public hearing on several changes in the present county zoning ordinance in order that citizens may express opinions.

Height of Hedges.

One of the principal questions which Mr. Forman will ask the board to settle is contained in section 10 paragraph 10 of the zoning ordinance in which it is provided that no hedges or fences shall be more than 3 feet in height. Since the ordinance is not retroactive, the administrator wishes to know whether hedges which were planted prior to the adoption of the ordinance and at that time not over the maximum height be now considered a violation if permitted to grow beyond the height allowed.

From a traffic standpoint, Mr. Forman points out it is an important question, since at many street intersections hedges have been permitted to grow to heights which obstruct the view of the approaching motorist.

The section prohibiting a merchant in a local business area from handling a wholesale order should be amended to read, "where handled on the premises," Mr. Forman considers. As an example, he points out, a merchant may get a large order for feed for a dairy and have the order delivered directly from the producer to the consumer. A number of other minor changes in the ordinance will be brought to the board's attention.

Parent Teacher Association.

The Parent Teacher Association at the Washington-Lee High School at a meeting held in the school auditorium last night elected Frederick P. Dewey as its first president. Other officers are, Harold M. Brown, first vice president; Mrs. Clarence Simmons, second vice president; F. E. Schulte, third vice president; Mrs. Joseph Shawhan, recording secretary; Miss Ellen Fox, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Richard N. Sutton, assistant secretary and historian, and Mrs. E. V. Smith, treasurer. The president announced the appointment of W. B. Gilmore as parliamentarian, and the Rev. Elmer Lucas as chaplain.

The association voted to hold its monthly meetings on the fourth Thursday. The December meeting falling on Christmas Day, the meeting will be held on the third Tuesday. There will be a special meeting of the executive committee Tuesday night of next week in the school auditorium. All standing committees will be appointed.

The Army Air Corps held its fall dinner and dance last night at the Army, Navy and Marine Corps Country Club with a large gathering in attendance. Dinner was served at 8 o'clock and was followed by dancing until midnight. Music was furnished by the orchestra from Fort Myer.

Having held his offices at the courthouse open until 9 o'clock last night, County Clerk William H. Duncan announces that approximately 200 hunting licenses were issued to persons anxious to take advantage of today as the first of the hunting season for all small game.

Services at the Clarendon Methodist Church tomorrow will be conducted by the pastor, the Rev. John H. Pearson. At the morning service his subject will be, "The Abundant Life." In the evening he will preach on "Hidden Among the Baggage."

The Rev. George P. Mayo, founder and principal of the Blue Ridge Industrial School, will speak at the 11 o'clock morning prayer service at St. George's Episcopal Church tomorrow. He will tell of the work which the school is doing. The celebration of Holy Communion will be conducted tomorrow morning at 7:30 by the rector, the Rev. Henry J. Miller.

Held for Grand Jury.

Pleading guilty to a charge of having operated an automobile while under the influence of liquor, John W. Caney was held for the action of the grand jury by Police Judge Harry R. Thomas in police court yesterday. Bond was fixed at $500.

Winchester Firm Files Assignment

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 14.—A deed of assignment was recorded today by the Eastern Silica & Chemical Corporation through its president, John F. Penrose, for the benefit of creditors. David H. Sencindiver, Winchester, was named trustee. Creditors listed numbered 53, with claims aggregating $118,953.53.

Real as well as personal property assets were transferred to the trustees. Real estate comprises 56 acres of land near Gore, Frederick County, where analysis has disclosed a superior glass sand in almost inexhaustible quantities. Machinery, bonds, notes and accounts receivable also were recorded. Filing the deed followed action of the board of directors, who held the corporation's plant was incapacitated as a result of a fire at the works the night of October 29, which is believed by authorities and company officials to have been incendiary.

Officials said the loss exceeded $100,000, on which they carried $80,000 insurance. A number of creditors threatened judgments after the fire.

PASTOR'S WIFE FILES MAINTENANCE SUIT

Mrs. Bertha Duncan Minor Avers Husband Struck and Deserted Her.

SAYS SEPARATION FINAL

Suit for maintenance was filed yesterday by Mrs. Bertha Duncan Minor, wife of the Rev. George Clifton Minor, pastor of the Rockville Christian Church and head of Briarley Hall Academy, Poolesville, in circuit court at Rockville.

Through Miss Vivian V. Simpson, Rockville attorney, the wife alleges many marital difficulties which include cursing, striking and mistreating the plaintiff and threats to have her committed to an insane asylum. The wife charges that Mr. Minor has deserted her on several occasions.

She charges specifically that on October 2, the minister struck her and so injured her that she was forced to undergo treatment by a physician and that on November 9, she again was mistreated. The wife declares that she left the home of the defendant because of his conduct toward her and that the separation is final.

The action states the minister has an income of about $400 a month, $100 as pastor of the church and the balance as a director of the school. She asks counsel fees and a reasonable allowance for her support. The couple was married in Washington May 26, 1895, and has three grown children.

Police Search for Car That Struck Down Bride

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 14.—Maryland State police are searching for the driver of a light blue roadster, which this afternoon struck Mrs. George E. Beasely, 18-year-old bride of less than two months as she was walking along the side of the Generals highway, near Gotts Station. The woman, who was en route to a store, was found unconscious.

She was hurried to the Emergency Hospital here, and Dr. J. Willis Martin performed an operation. Little hope is held for her recovery. Among other injuries, both of her legs are badly mangled.

ALEXANDRIA TO ADD SIX TO POLICE FORCE

BILLS FOR TAXES MAILED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The strength of the local police force will be increased by the addition of six new patrolmen, effective December 1, bringing the membership of the force up to 35 members, including the captain and sergeants. This was decided upon at an informal meeting of the city council Thursday, and announced yesterday.

The entrance salary for a private on the force is $110 a month, with a maximum of $125; motorcycle police receive $140, and sergeants $150 a month. It is announced that applications for the position may be made to Capt. W. W. Campbell.

A movement to increase the size of the force has been under consideration by the city council for some time.

The six new policemen will be divided into three squads, patrolling from 4 p. m. until midnight; midnight to 8 a. m., and from 8 o'clock until noon.

Ten members of Alexandria-Washington Lodge No. 22, A. F. & M., were presented with silver lapel buttons at the regular communication of the lodge Thursday night in honor of the completion of 25 years as members. The presentation was made by William A. Moore, who was master of the lodge when these ten members received their Master Masons' degrees. Those receiving buttons were Donald L. Aitcheson, R. H. C. Beverley, L. P. Chauncey, W. H. Evans, John Gary, P. T. Mander, G. C. Ramey, Charles B. Swan, Charles E. Tennesson and W. I. Whitson. The stated communication was largely attended, and another feature of the evening was an address by Macon Ware, of Falls Church, district deputy grand master of District No. 1.

The custom of presenting these 25-year souvenirs was started last year when badges were presented to all living members of the lodge who had completed 25 years. It was then decided that this would be done annually, the buttons being presented by the past master who presided when the members received their Master Masons' degrees. Last year the presentation was made by J. Fred Birrell. In 1931 Leopold Ruben will make the presentation, and in 1932 Dr. Thomas B. Cochran will present them, his class of 22 members being one of the largest now in the lodge.

Bills for State taxes were received yesterday by the taxpayers of Alexandria, covering taxes on intangibles, including bonds, notes and other evidences of debt, money in bank, and also the capitation tax. City Treasurer Roger C. Sullivan mailed out a total of 15,000 bills, payment of which is due not later than December 6, after which date a penalty of 6 per cent will be added on all unpaid bills.

The income tax of the State is 4½ per cent on the first $3,000; 2½ per cent on the next $2,000, and 3 per cent on all income in excess of $5,000.

Many hunters obtained licenses yesterday at the offices of Elliott F. Hoffman, clerk of the corporation court, today marking the opening of the general hunting season in Virginia for upland game, including deer, turkey, quail, rabbits and other small game.

The second payment of 10 per cent to depositors of the defunct Bank of Del Ray will be paid by check Monday, according to Courtland H. David, receiver of the bank. The total amount to be paid stockholders will be between $9,000 and $10,000, and this will make total payment of 43 per cent of the deposits thus far made to the depositors.

Mrs. Mary Fones, wife of Thomas R. Fones, died Thursday at her home, 528 South Patrick street. The funeral will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from the home, conducted by the Rev. Pierce S. Ellis, pastor of the First Baptist Church. Burial will be in the Presbyterian Cemetery. She is survived by her husband, two sons and four daughters.

John M. Fadely, aged 83 years, died Thursday night at his home, 329 South Patrick street. The funeral will be held at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon from Cunningham's Funeral Home, 809 Cameron street. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Ryland T. Dodge, pastor of the Temple Baptist Church. Burial will be in Bethel Cemetery.

Bishop of Virginia to Preach.

Leesburg, Va., Nov. 14 (Special).—The Right Rev. H. St. George Tucker, Bishop of the Diocese of Virginia, will preach the sermon and confirm a class of candidates in St. James' Episcopal Church here Sunday morning.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

SONG FOR A DECLINING MARKET.

READ me today's lows, mother;
Give me the bottom's new;
Tell me if "Steel's" still quoted.
Is there a chip called blue?
What of the oils and railroads?
Is there a stock called Penn?
Tell me is New York Central
Yet down to five and ten?

Go through the table slowly;
I will be brave, I vow.
What are Gillette and Carbide?
How cheap is Simmons now?
Is there a quote on Richfield?
Is there a bid for Nash?
What can I get of Chrysler
If I've a dollar cash?

What has become of Byers?
What is it now per pound?
How low is Coca Cola?
What price is old Howe Sound?
Gen'ral Electric—tell me—
Is it a dime per load?
What is the price per bucket
Now for New Haven road?

Tell in a gentle whisper
How did the coppers close?
Is it true Anaconda's
Lower than Gotham Hose?
Is A. & T. now selling
Ten points below Budd Wheel?
Speak! Is the quote on Eastman
Cheaper than Newton Steel?

DON'T hesitate to tell me
What price Raybestos-Man.?
Will six or seven dollars
Buy full control of "Can?"
Is J. I. Case still sinking?
And do the tables show
U. S. Tobacco lower Than Briggs or Radio?

Read on and spare me nothing—
Is Motors down to three?
And is "Gas" selling under Rumely or Armour B?
Oh, tell me where is Timken,
And where is Alcohol?
Then bring a cup of poison—
For I have got them all!

IT looks as if the fellow who called them blue-chip stocks was color blind.

T. G. H. reports hearing a man send his little boy out to the market with a half dollar to buy two pounds of railroad shares.

AMERICAN DIALOGUES.

"Do you realize what it would mean to this country if there were no skyscrapers?"

"Sure, I do. There would be no Harold Lloyd comedies."

The Prince of Wales says he is a terrible golfer and a terrible public speaker. Well, in the latter case he can't blame it on the clubs.

Add complete characterizations: The kind of woman who thinks that because she bought an apple from somebody she has done her bit to help America readjust itself.

J. Peters talked on the splendid progress made by the drama committee, and Mrs. Frank M. Hoadley, of Chevy Chase, chairman of publicity, on the Maryland Clubwoman, official organ of the State Federation.

Innocent Man Is Freed; Held Since 1900 Trial

Richmond, Va., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—A Richard Phillips, Negro, was learning all over again today the meaning of the word freedom. He hasn't experienced freedom in 30 years.

Phillips was twice sentenced to die for the murder of Joseph New, killed January 16, 1902. A stay of execution followed the second trial, and Phillips was judged insane. For the last 30 years he has been in the asylum although in 1901 it was discovered that Grant Watts, a witness in Phillips' trial, killed New. Recent examinations disclosed no traces of insanity, and Gov. Pollard ordered Phillips released.

Thanksgiving Turkey Shoot Is Announced

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 14.—An announcement has been made by the Cumberland Gun Club that it will stage its annual Thanksgiving Turkey Shoot on Tuesday, November 25, at the club traps, Cumberland Fair Grounds.

Twenty-one fat gobblers will be offered to the trapshooters who take part in the Lewis Class program, while four turkeys will go to the lucky ones in a special card shoot limited to non-shooters. Four cards will be used at each shoot, with the public privileged to participate. The annual Christmas Turkey Shoot will take place at the fair grounds on Tuesday, December 23.

DIVIDENDS DECLARED PAID BY WARDMAN

GAVE PERSONAL CHECK

Payment of dividends in 1928 on stock of the Wardman Mortgage & Discount Corporation was supplied personally by Harry Wardman, testified a former cashier of the firm yesterday before Judge William P. Woolls, in Alexandria Corporation Court in a hearing at which minority stockholders are requesting appointment of a receiver for the organization.

The testimony of the former cashier, Mrs. Augusta Brown, who also served as bookkeeper of the firm until July, 1929, and that of John Berg, a certified public accountant, comprised the day's proceedings and the court recessed until Tuesday.

Mrs. Brown declared in court that Wardman on November 3, 1928, tendered her his personal check for $1,698 and told her to use this amount to pay dividends in the corporation because of the lack of money on hand to meet this obligation.

She said also that in January, 1928, Wardman told her to "keep the stockholders satisfied as far as possible and things will work out all right."

Mrs. Brown denied entering a note for $839,000 in the corporation's ledger and said this was done after she had left its employ.

She was questioned by Attorney Harry F. Kennedy, representing the plaintiffs.

Berg, who made an audit of the corporation's books on behalf of the minority stockholders instituting the suit, testified for an hour and was excused temporarily in order that the court could hear Mrs. Brown. Berg will resume his testimony Tuesday.

Jersey Sophomore Killed in Virginia

Williamsburg, Va., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Allen Messer, 28 years old, of Bloomfield, N. J., sophomore at the College of William and Mary, was killed and two other students were slightly injured in a collision between their car and a truck near here early this morning.

Messer was killed instantly, a sliver of glass penetrating his brain. An inquest was conducted by Dr. George Poyts, of Providence Forge, resulting in the exoneration of the truck driver, Lewis L. Curling. A heavy fog was held responsible for the accident.

Rev. Dr. James Moffatt, 86, Dies at Cumberland

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 14 (A.P.).—The Rev. Dr. James E. Moffatt, pastor emeritus of the First Presbyterian Church, who retired in February, 1928, after having served the same church 50 years, died this afternoon, aged 86. A native of Bloomington, Ind., where his forebears migrated from South Carolina after having founded the Hopewell Presbyterian Church in Chester District previous to the Revolution, he was educated at the University of Indiana, Monmouth College, in Illinois, and McCormick Seminary, Chicago.

He came to Cumberland in 1878 after having been pastor at Decatur and Ottawa, Ill. He served twice as moderator of Baltimore synod, five times as a commissioner to the general assembly, and three times as moderator of the Baltimore Presbytery. Dr. Moffatt is survived by one daughter, Miss Ethel Wyn Moffatt. A son, James H. Moffatt, head of the English department of the Boys' Central High School, Philadelphia, died a year ago.

Bradley, rector, sang requiem mass. Burial was in St. Mary's Cemetery. Mrs. McGregor died from a heart attack. Six children survive. They are Katherine, Rutherford, N. J.; Nora and Marie McGregor, Mrs. Nellie Kilroy and Harold and Joseph McGregor, at home.

JURY RECOMMENDS THEFT LAW CHANGE

WOULD SPEED HEARINGS

Changes in the Maryland law to permit trial of minor larceny cases in the county police court instead of cluttering the files of the circuit court, was recommended yesterday in the report of the Montgomery County Grand Jury for the November term.

The report of the grand jury, presented yesterday to Judge Robert B. Peter in Circuit at Rockville, points out that a great many offenses were presented to the grand jury which involved the theft of articles of small value or small sums of money, in one case below $5, which under the present law must be presented to the grand jury, presentments found and tried by the circuit court.

"In view of the fact that at the last election the voters of the State approved the calling by the governor of a constitutional convention we heartily recommend to the Montgomery County Bar Association, in the event a constitutional convention should be called, that they work out an endeavor to secure the incorporation in the new constitution of provisions separating the cases wherein persons are charged with the theft of articles of small values or sums of money up to the value of $50, so that these cases may be tried by our most excellent police court as a court of original and final jurisdiction.

Would Save County Money.

"We feel if this could be accomplished it would save the county a great deal of expense incident to holding in jail of offenders for periods of months before they are tried and would save the further expense incident to trying these cases in the circuit court," the report declares.

Chief of Police Alvie A. Moxley and the county police force were commended for their efficiency, and the opinion expressed that the small number of cases presented to the body was due to their ability and efficiency. The grand jury returned 38 presentments after hearing 108 witnesses in 48 cases brought before the body.

The grand jury reported that the conditions in the county jail are as good as can be expected in view of existing conditions. The courthouse showed evidence of overcrowded offices and inadequate space and protection for the valuable documents in the structure. Both the courthouse and jail situation will be remedied upon the completion of the new courthouse and jail building now under construction, the jury reports.
